'Important' Complaints Only to Go to WPA Chief

Harrington Tells Workers Alliance Of Limit to Debate On Labor Matters

By Robert C. Albright.

Col. Francis C. Harrington, new Works Progress administrator, will receive workers' delegations only on the more important matters of WPA labor policy, he told Workers Alliance chiefs in effect yesterday.

Although WPA spokesmen denied Harrington intended any rebuff to the Workers Alliance, left-wing relief workers' organization, a statement to reporters following the interview was interpreted by some observers as a change in WPA's labor policy.

The statement, in the third person, said Harrington "hoped to settle labor problems and questions promptly and move on to something else. He stated that he would receive delegations whenever matters of sufficient importance were under discussion to justify such action."

Change Apparent

Other spokesmen pointed out that WPA labor relations officials are maintained in each State, in addition to a board of appeals to which workers may resort, and labor complaints normally are routed through this machinery. They said Harrington meant that except on important questions, the usual course would be followed.

But a change was apparent in the close contacts with the Workers Alliance formerly maintained by Deputy WPA Administrator Aubrey Williams, who was once criticized by the Senate's Sheppard committee for telling a delegation from the group to "keep our friends in power."

Yesterday was Harrington's first meeting with David Lasser, president of the Workers Alliance, and Herbert Benjamin, secretary-treasurer of the relief labor organization. Lasser in a statement recently criticized Harrington's appointment, because the colonel was of the "Army type."

Committee Agrees on Report

Meanwhile the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee reached unanimous agreement on essential points in a politics-in-relief report expected strongly to condemn WPA activities in three States during the recent campaign. The committee will meet again this morning on slight changes in wording and submit the report to the Senate on January 3.

Other developments, as Administration relief policies headed toward a Congressional showdown:

Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, announced he will call his Senate Unemployment Committee into session next week to consider proposed changes in administration of relief. Byrnes said the group also will seek to ascertain how much of last year's $1,425,000,000 relief appropriation remains. Williams recently said WPA will have to shut down on February 7 unless deficiency funds are appropriated.

Reports were circulated that President Roosevelt is considering creation of nonpartisan county

'Flo' Lawrence, Silent Film Star, Dies by Poison

Beverly Hills, Calif., Dec. 28 (AP).—Florence Lawrence, star of silent films, killed herself today by swallowing poison in her home here, police reported.

Featured in her early days as "Baby Flo, the child wonder," Miss Lawrence was the original "Biograph Girl" and the original "Imp Girl" in the silent screen era. She used the same makeup table with Miss Pickford when she was being starred and Mary was on the road to fame.

Miss Lawrence was 52. She gave every promise of rising to great stardom in her early pictures, but suffered a tragedy in 1915 which blighted her career.

She was playing in a scene with Matt Moore in which they were to be rescued from a burning building. In the filming of the scene they were trapped. Miss Lawrence could have jumped to immediate safety, but chose instead to go back into the flames to aid Moore. Both were burned. (Picture, Page 28.)

Grace Moore Bows to Wallis, And Raises Furor on Etiquette

By the Associated Press.

Cannes, France, Dec. 28.—Grace Moore sailed for New York aboard the liner Conte di Savoia today, oblivious of the controversy she stimulated by giving the Duchess of Windsor a deep curtsy in public.

DUCHESS OF WINDSOR

The curtsy is reserved for royalty, and the American opera singer and movie actress had come face to face with an increasingly puzzling question, whether the American-born duchess who married an abdicated king is or is not royalty.

The duchess had a private box at a concert given by Miss Moore yesterday. During the concert the singer stopped before the duchess' box and curtsied. The controversy was on. The Riviera winter colony was divided on the issue with the Americans and French insisting the duchess might just as well be given royal prerogatives, since they believe she is certain to be given them soon anyway.

GRACE MOORE

On the other hand, some of the English say the duchess never will have these honors. The Countess of Pembroke, an expert on court etiquette, definitely is opposed to curtsying before her.

"If the duchess is made a royal highness," she was quoted in London's Sunday Dispatch as saying recently, "then I shall be pleased to drop her a curtsy."

Health Researcher Starves 14 Ticks 5 Years, and They Still Bite Infectiously

The strange tale of the tick known as Ornithodoros turticata, which not only can go without food for five years, but can deal out relapsing fever with its bite after being starved that long, was told yesterday by Dr. Edward Francis, veteran germ detective of the United States Public Health Service.

DR. FRANCIS

In a scientific article published in the service's weekly Public Health Reports, Dr. Francis described in full his laboratory pets—14 tiny bugs, survivors of an original colony of 119, the study of which may go far toward solving mysterious aspects of the disease they transmit.

Relapsing fever occurs almost exclusively in this country in Texas, where the experimental ticks came from, and California.

"The answers to the questions of how long this tick will live and how long it will carry virulent spirochetes are held by 14 of the original ticks which still survive in good condition, all of which are females," said the research scientist.

"The importance of these observations from the viewpoint of eradication of relapsing fever is apparent. Control measures must reckon with a tick hiding in caves and living in rodent burrows, harboring virulent spirochetes in its fasting body for five years and in its fed body for six and one-half years, and probably longer, and transmitting the infection through the egg to the next generation of ticks."

Dr. Francis, probably best known for his pioneering work in tularemia, received the ticks in 1931. All received their first meal together on arrival, feeding on monkeys which immediately came down with relapsing fever. Then their fast began.

De Valera to Be White House Guest, Preceding British Rulers by Month

Eamon de Valera, American-born prime minister of Eire (Irish Free State), is the fifth foreign notable scheduled to be the guest of President and Mrs. Roosevelt in 1939. De Valera has accepted the President's invitation for an overnight stay at the White House May 7, it was announced yesterday.

DE VALERA

Crown Prince Olaf and Princess Martha of Norway will be Presidential guests at Hyde Park, N. Y., in April, and the King and Queen of England will visit the White House in June.

In the past year the President and Mrs. Roosevelt have been hosts to Anthony Eden, former British foreign minister; Paul van Zeeland, former premier of Belgium; Crown Princess Louise of Sweden; Myzejen, Ruhije and Maxide, sisters of King Zog of Albania; the Sultan of Muscat and Oman; Premier W. O. Mackenzie King of Canada; Prince Louis Ferdinand, grandson of the former Kaiser, and his bride, Princess Kira.

De Valera will open the Irish exhibit at the New York World's Fair May 10 on a four-week American stay. In 1918 De Valera toured the United States and raised a $2,500,000 fund for an Irish republic after a thrilling escape from an English prison.

Inch's Size Unknown, Briggs Laments In Last Speech as Physicists' Head

Delivering his farewell address as president of the American Physical Society, Director Lyman J. Briggs, of the Bureau of Standard yesterday deplored the fact that none of us knows just how long is an inch.

"We have," said Dr. Briggs, "the anomalous situation in this country of a legalized system of metric weights and measures which is used for scientific purposes and a customary system of weights and measures which is in common use but has never been formally legalized."

DR. BRIGGS

As to the inch itself, he pointed out that Congress, when it made the metric system legal in 1866, defined the meter in terms of the inch. Transposing, one finds that an inch equals 0.02540005 plus meters.

"It is obvious," said Dr. Briggs, "that it is not practicable to lay off this incommensurable decimal fraction on a meter bar, so that this relation defines a theoretical inch rather than one that can be derived with exactness from the

Doctor Honored for Tracking Down Hay Fever's Lair in Body

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 28.—A 28-year-old Minneapolis physician tonight received the Theobald Smith award of $1,000 for research on histamine, a blood substance that may be accountable for hay fever, asthma and other afflictions of allergic persons.

The prize was given to Dr. Charles F. Code, of the Institute for Experimental Medicine of the Mayo Foundation, by the medical section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, which is holding its annual meeting here.

The presentation featured the close of the second day of the association's assembly, which is being attended by some 5,000 American and foreign scientists.

Dr. Code's studies, begun three years ago in London and transferred to Minneapolis in the past year, resulted in the disclosure that increased quantities of histamine are associated with increased numbers of eosinophil cells in the individual. The latter is one type of white blood cell.

Association of eosinophil cells with asthma, hay fever, food sensitivity and other allergies has long been known "and their possible relationship to histamine has frequently been intimated," Dr. Code said.

Histamine itself is a strong chemical, present in animals and humans,

Coster Case Witness Dies Mysteriously

Linked to Blackmail Of McKesson Head, Cheated Arrest; 3 on Bail as Extortionists

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Dec. 28.—Investigation into the death, under mysterious circumstances, of a key witness in the blackmail plot against F. Donald Coster-Musica, held the attention of Federal authorities tonight as they continued inquiry into the manifold activities of Coster-Musica as president of McKesson & Robbins, Inc.

The man, whose name was withheld, died last summer just as he was about to be taken into custody in connection with the drug company investigation.

Although Federal authorities would not say whether the witness died violently or from natural causes, they did reveal that the mysterious circumstances in connection with that death warranted an investigation, and that his death may conceal ramifications of the blackmail plot against Coster, who is believed to have paid untold thousands of dollars to keep secret his identity as Philip M. Musica, a convicted swindler.

3 Held as Blackmailers

The witness, it was further revealed, was in the drug business and also had been engaged in the diversion of illicit alcohol.

Meanwhile, three persons accused of having blackmailed Coster-Musica were held in bail on a Federal complaint charging violation of a section of the Lindbergh law of 1934.

Assistant United States Attorney General McMahon previously had explained the Government expected to prosecute under a part of that statute which makes extortion in interstate commerce through threats—either to person or reputation—punishable by a maximum of 20 years' imprisonment and $5,000 fine.

Walter H. Cragg, disbarred attorney, was held in $7,500 bail and Joseph Brandino and his sister, Mary, in bail of $7,500 and $5,000, respectively.

Threatened for Years, He Says

"These defendants threatened Coster over a period of years and mulcted him of large sums of money," Assistant United States Attorney Irving Kaufman told the court at their arraignment.

Coster-Musica committed suicide December 16 in his Fairfield, Conn., home after his identity was disclosed and several investigations started to determine how he was able to build up $18,000,000 in false assets of the corporation's crude drugs department without detection from within the concern.

Assistant State Attorney General Ambrose V. McCall, conducting an investigation to determine if the State fraud act was violated, questioned Sidney J. Weinberg, a director of the drug concern and a partner of Goldman Sachs & Co., bankers.

Weinberg said he had no suspicion who Coster-Musica was.

"I accepted him as a successful businessman," he said.

The crude drug department was under Coster-Musica's supervision with his brother, George E. Dietrich-Musica, working with him. Two other Musica brothers, Robert and Arthur, are being held with George on a charge of conspiracy to violate the securities act of 1934.

'Sea Monster' Is Captured In Md. River

Frederick, Md., Dec. 28 (AP).—It's safe to go swiming in the Monocacy River "Alley" is back home.

"Alley" is a 4-foot, 40-pound, 6-year-old alligator with sharp teeth. He broke out of his cage in Harry L. Ebert's store six months ago when the sun was hot and scuttled for the river two blocks away.

Since then swimmers have reported seeing sea monsters of all shapes and sizes.

William Baer was breaking in a new pair of shoes along the river bank Monday when he saw the strange thing. He looked again, fearful that the Christmas celebration had brought apparitions.

But it was "Alley"

Hope Wanes for Two Trapped in Gold Mine

Kirkland Lake, Ontario, Dec. 28 (Canadian Press).—Hope faded tonight for two miners trapped more than 16 hours in the Lake Shore gold mine, biggest gold producer in Canada. Rescue crews had been working steadily 2,400 feet underground toward John Holubec, 33, and Vito Vlaisavgevich, 40.

Army Visions College Fliers Fit for War

Some With Only 50 Hours' Training Might Be Sent To the Front Lines

By the Associated Press.

Army Air Corps officials said yesterday the college youths trained as air pilots under plans unfolded by President Roosevelt probably would require only brief post-graduate instruction to fit them for war service.

"In an extreme emergency," they said, "the pick of those with 50 hours' flying experience might even be sent to the front lines.

"They should be as well trained as many who went to the front in 1918," a spokesman commented.

The President's plan calls for training of 20,000 a year.

Approval Reported

It was reported last night that the President has approved a far-reaching program to train large numbers of youths as aviation mechanics.

Many of the future mechanics, informed sources said, will be chosen from the 160,000 boys enrolled under the National Youth Administration. The program also is expected to embrace many students in private aviation ground schools.

Emphasis will be placed on the civilian aspects of the program, it was said. The first aim will be to provide experts for non-military aviation in peace-time. However, the "cream" of those trained would become available for military service, if they so desired.

Though exact current figures are confidential, records indicated the Army Air Corps has fewer than 2,000 military fliers in active service and still fewer in reserve. The Navy has a somewhat larger number.

Weeding Will Be Fast

At the end of last year, there were 1,438 flying Army officers, and since then 208 have been added. Training has been stepped up from 200 toward a goal of 500 pilots a year.

In the Army Air Corps Reserve, there were 1,511 pilots in the principal group, composed of those requiring an estimated three months additional schooling, and others rated as observers.

In a second group were 132 fliers who had not had Army training. In a third were 175 former pilots not qualified now for combat flying because of age or other disabilities.

Officials said most of the reservists would be ready to fly by the time planes were available.

The Navy listed 1,043 flying officers in addition to 17 dirigible experts, 439 enlisted men qualified as pilots, 548 aviation cadets with the fleet and 46 ashore, about 300 students at the Pensacola training station and an inactive reserve force of 460 pilots.

Of the college-trained youths, an Army spokesman said additional training given would depend on the time available, with 200 additional hours considered most desirable.

The instruction outlined by President Roosevelt would save much time by weeding out youths without natural apititude for flying and providing a basis of information so

Hounds Bring To Bay Bandit Who Got $6,700

Freeburn, Ky., Dec. 28 (AP).—A sheriff's posse ringed tonight a mountainous section seven miles from here, where Sheriff Earl Scott said, a bandit who robbed the Merchants & Miners Bank of $6,700 had been brought to bay with bloodhounds.

"I feel sure we'll take him at daylight," Scott said.

The bandit, armed with a pistol, cut all telephone wires in this little eastern Kentucky mining town before entering the only bank shortly after noon today.

Assistant Cashier W. H. Fitzpatrick, alone in the institution, said the man seized all the cash available, locked Fitzpatrick behind the grilled doors of the vault and fled to his automobile.

Suspected Bank Robber Escapes G-men Bullets

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 28 (U.P.)—Sam Guidette, wanted in connection with robbery of the Hanceville, Ala., bank, escaped today in a barrage of bullets from pistols of Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

Guidette escaped by rapidly twisting his automobile over country roads near here. He did not return the pistol fire of the G-men.

BISHOP JAMES H. RYAN, of Omaha

THE REV. MAURICE SHEEHY, of Catholic University

Bishop Ryan and Mgr. Sheehy See Roosevelt; Will Leave Today on 18,000-Mile Good-Will Tour

The Most Rev. James H. Ryan, D. D., Bishop of Omaha, Nebr., and former rector of the Catholic University of America, and the Rev. Maurice S. Sheehy, head of the department of religious education at Catholic University, called at the White House yesterday to pay their respects to President Roosevelt before leaving today on an 18,000-mile air journey around South America.

Bishop Ryan, a nationally known educator, said after his White House visit:

"This trip will enable me to realize an ambition I have entertained for many years—that of visiting our South American neighbors.

"I hope that we may, in our visit, be able to discover new opportunities for developing cultural relationships between the American republics."

Dr. Sheehy, a former president of the Eastern Association of College Deans, said that on this trip invitations would be extended to prelates of the countries visited to attend the golden jubilee exercises of the Catholic University in November, 1939.

Dr. Sheehy will broadcast from Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, Lima and Quito.

A luncheon will be tendered Bishop Ryan and Dr. Sheehy by Washington friends at the Mayflower Hotel today, and in the afternoon they will fly to Miami, Fla., the first leg of their journey.

Actress Tells Jury Buckner Had No Party

Came Here 'Just for a Sleigh Ride,' Dancer Says at Lobby Hearing

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Dec. 28.—The Federal grand jury hearing evidence concerning William P. Buckner, jr., charged with using the mails to defraud in connection with the sale of Philippine railroad bonds, was told by today's only witness that Buckner had not staged a $5,000 party in a Washington, D. C., hotel on August 21, 1937, which was supposed to have been attended by National legislators whose favor he wanted to gain.

While three persons were brought before the jury today, only one of them offered testimony. This was Miss Noel Carter, a petite redhead, actress and dancer. She came before the grand jury after Assistant United States Attorney William P. Maloney escorted a "Mr. and Mrs. John E. Sherman," otherwise not identified, into the jury room.

It was learned that the Shermans had not testified today. Miss Carter's testimony apparently was in direct contradiction to Maloney's beliefs, because, according to the assistant United States attorney, the bill presented by the Washington Hotel for entertainment and refreshments on the night in question amounted to $5,000. Maloney, it is understood, is anxious to question four members of the House of Representatives who are said to have been at the hotel party.

In this connection, however, Maloney is obliged, while Congress is in session, to submit to the wishes of the Congressmen, as they cannot be subpenaed except while the House is in recess.

Miss Carter was before the grand jury for a half hour. When she

History Made At Lima, Says Papal Editor

Fascists Exaggerated Aims to Claim Failure, Newspaper Suggests

By the Associated Press.

Vatican City, Dec. 28.—L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican newspaper, said today that the Pan-American conference's declaration of "spiritual unity" and "equality among nations and individuals without prejudice to race and religion" would live in the history of civilization.

The newspaper's comment on the meeting just concluded at Lima, written by its director, Count Giuseppe della Torre, was in contrast with declarations of the Fascist press that the conference was a failure.

After noting that some commentators had said the conference was "shipwrecked," L'Osservatore said:

"It may be that such a conclusion reflects prejudice and artifice rather than reality; a vast program may have been imputed and anticipated in order that it might afterward be said that it melted away while crossing the equator from north to south."

[In Washington, the United States' project for greater cultivation of cultural relations between the Americas was given a boost yesterday when the Maritime Commission notified the State Department that four ship companies had agreed to grant a 50 per cent discount in fare to students and teachers traveling between North and South America. The companies are the American Republic Line, the Grace Line, the Furness Prince Line and the Mississippi Shipping Co.

[Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles called it a very gratifying development.

U. S. Prefers to Play Own Music, Teachers Told; Hear Symphony

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Assured that America's greatest boom in music activity is under way, 800 members of the Music Teachers National Association launched an enthusiastic convention yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel.

The teachers heard of a vast public that's no longer willing to buy its musical culture for the price of a concert ticket, but insists on making its own music by learning to sing or play an instrument.

Before them was painted the happy picture of "10,000 home symphony players over the country participating in broadcast programs." (A home symphony player is one who picks up an instrument,

Blue badges, plentifully displayed by auditors at last evening's concert in Constitution Hall, indicated that a goodly number of delegates to the sixtieth annual convention of the Music Teachers National Association had turned from professional problems of the opening session to the enjoyment of hearing the National Symphony Orchestra. It was to these visitors from far and near that Dr. Hans Kindler addressed a few words of welcome, and it was for them that he planned the program which brought novelties and familiar compositions into neighborly contact.

Rome 'Abandons Hope'

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Dec. 28.—France prepared virtually to double her military and naval forces in Somaliland today with orders for new reinforcements to face any threats from Italy's East African empire.

A second warship was assigned to the East African Port of Djibouti, named in Italian agitation for French territory, while the 1,969-ton dispatch boat D'Iberville, mounting three 5.5-inch guns, proceeded from Beirut, Syria, back to Djibouti, her base during the Italian-Ethiopian war.

The second vessel was the 2,441-ton destroyer Epervier of the Eastern Mediterranean Fleet. She is capable of 37 knots and was expected to reach the Somaliland port before the slower D'Iberville.

Navy Minister Confers

In the afternoon Navy Minister Cesar Campinchi conferred with Erik Labonne, French resident general in Tunisia, who has been in Paris conferring on the colonial situation and arranging details of Premier Daladier's projected trip to Tunis January 3.

(A dispatch from Rome said Italian sources indicated that Italy virtually had abandoned any hope of territorial gains at France's expense and said the Fascists had no intention of invading French Somaliland.)

Two passenger ships were held at Marseille to carry 1,000 Senegalese sharpshooters to Somaliland to bolster a garrison of 1,500 troops already there. Djibouti, between the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean, is the terminus of the railroad to Italian Ethiopia.

Italy Has 80,000

The two warships and the battalion of troops ordered to East Africa were understood to be all the reinforcements contemplated for the present by the French government, although Italy was estimated here to have 80,000 troops in East Africa.

The reinforcements followed French press demands for strengthening colonial defenses.

French and British officials, meanwhile, undertook to put a damper on a scare stirred up by reports of Italian troop concentrations around Somaliland.

French editors received the government's recommendations not to emphasize unduly reports of French-Italian tension. The British embassy made a similar request

Senators Approve Daladier Decrees

Paris, Dec. 28 (AP).—The Senate finance committee, reporting today at the opening of debate on the 1939 budget, expressed solid support for Premier Daladier's economic decree laws of November 12.

Abel Gardey, spokesman for the committee, said the decrees already had brought improvement in the French financial situation and should be continued in force.

He urged that the work of a special committee for governmental reorganization and reduction of the number of public employes be speeded up.

CAPITAL CAVIAR: One of the upper-crust officials here—$10,000-a-year man—is taking lessons in ventriloquy. Uses a dummy called Winnie May . . . It was Anne Lindbergh who persuaded the dour colonel to winter in Paris instead of Berlin—he couldn't see that it made any difference.

The discovery that the First Lady sometimes charges her purchases to Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and sometimes to Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt gives rise to some speculation. Women here tend to assume that so long as her purchases are within reason she charges them in the President's name. But when she's bought a dress too many she signs her own name and uses her private little nest egg.

POTOMAC PIFFLE: One reason why Jack Garner felt warm when he emerged from his last talk with the President was that he wears heavy long underwear on even mild Washington days . . . Which can make it warm in the Oval Room . . . The most caustic take-off in many a Gridiron Dinner was the one on Senator Cotton Ed Smith at the last one; he looked as if he were wearing two suits of heavy underwear as he listened.

"—biggest day in a girl's life"

Few thing "bring out" a woman so much as the privilege of breaking a bottle of champagne on the prow of a new warship. After this signal honor, especially if she won a baby prize as an infant and a beauty prize as a girl, she can grow old serenely. If the admirals of the Navy Department tried to select all these lucky girls they'd be in deep water all the time.

So they let the wife, daughter or widow of an American officer with a conspicuous record christen the smaller boats, but put it on mayors or Governors to choose the girls to champagne-dunk the ships named for cities or States.

Their devout aim, naturally, is to build enough warships so practically every city and State can eventually send a girl with a bottle of champagne to the shipyards.

DIPLOMATIC DIDOES: The German Charge d'Affaires who got his ears pinned back when Sumner Welles read him a lecture on German manners at the State Department the other day, Hans Thomsen, happens to be a great favorite of Hitler.

When Hitler visited Rome, Herr Thomsen hurried across the Atlantic to act as interpreter in the chats with Mussolini. On that occasion he wore for the first time, with eclat, the new uniform prescribed for German diplomats.

Usually Thomsen dresses and tries to behave like an American, and because he was a pre-Hitler, pre-Nazi career diplomat he gets the benefit of the doubt.

He and his wife are popular with Americans, who prefer to think (sometimes they kid themselves) that chaps like Thomsen or the last two Ambassadors, Dieckhoff and Luther, couldn't possibly approve of all the Nazis are doing.

Frau Thomsen occasionally gives friends German kuchen and bonbons at Christmas . . . Once some of these were offered to a non-Aryan—who shied away, suspecting they might be poisoned. Plain silly, attractive, friendly Frau Thomsen wouldn't hurt a butterfly.

Hearings Open Today on Laws On Pedestrians

Commissioners Stress Their Impartiality on Proposed Control

A capacity crowd is expected in the District Building board room today when public hearings open on regulations proposed to control pedestrian traffic.

Commissioner Melvin H. Hazen announced yesterday that every District resident "who has anything to say" will be given an opportunity to express his views. The hearings will begin at 10 a. m.

Drafted by Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal, the regulations would prohibit pedestrians from crossing streets in the middle of blocks and would establish a maximum fine of $300 for walkers who fail to comply with a policeman's signal at intersections.

Requiring pedestrians to cross streets only at crosswalks, the rules would also ban walking against red lights at controlled corners.

The proposed rules "in no way reflect sentiment of the Commissioners," Hazen said.

"The purpose of holding this public meeting," he added, "is to permit the citizens of Washington to say whether we should adopt pedestrian control laws. It is up to them to say what they want and how they want it—we are merely going to listen."

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer has pointed out that over a three-year-period—from January 1, 1936—approximately 73 per cent of all Washington traffic deaths involved pedestrians.

After exhaustive studies of the pedestrian fatality problem, the Commissioners' special advisory committee on highway safety recommended control laws. Today's hearings are a result of that recommendation.

In addition to at least 25 District residents, the American Automobile Club, the Keystone Automobile Club and the Federation of Citizens' Associations will express their views.

From a "man in the street" poll conducted by The Washington Post several weeks ago it was revealed that sentiment is about equally divided—with the edge slightly favoring some manner of pedestrian control.

Should Washington vote today for control of "jaywalking," Commissioner Hazen promised immediate steps to amend present traffic regulations.

Burdick Asks Review on 'Food' Tax Deductions

Representative Usher L. Burdick (Republican), North Dakota, asked the Board of Tax Appeals yesterday to review the Internal Revenue Bureau's claim that he owes $64.03 on his 1935 income taxes.

The revenue bureau had disallowed deductions from Burdick's taxable income for donations of $277 to "hungry Indians," $750 to "white people" and $25 to "hungry on the streets." The deductions were not allowable under the law, the bureau said.

Burdick said: "I made contributions to Indians as a group, who were undernourished, including children, and I contributed meat and bread, which was passed around the group. Contributions made to white people were of the same character."

He told the board that, according to the revenue board's ruling, such deductions were allowable if a taxpayer fed "a starving bunch of cattle," but not if he fed human beings without first contributing to some organization.

CIO Textile Union Officers to Hear Gorman Charges

President Francis Gorman of the United Textile Workers of America last night was charged with anti-union activity, dual unionism and contract violation in a complaint filed by two ranking U. T. W. officials.

Filing of the complaint marked the latest step in the feud between Gorman and fellow officials which originated when he announced that his union no longer could be considered an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

The charges were presented to James Starr, secretary-treasurer of the union, by George Baldanzi, U. T. W. vice president, and Frank Benti, vice president of the Dyers' Federation, an autonomous union within the U. T. W.

Starr said that he had called a meeting of the U. T. W.'s executive committee in New York for next Wednesday when Gorman will be invited to hear accusations against him.

Won't Quibble, Col. Harrington Makes Plain to WPA Alliance

Relief

boards to "police" administration of relief. The proposal was represented as a compromise with coalition Republican-Democratic demands that administration of relief be entirely returned to the States.

Maj. B. M. Harloe, of the Army Corps of Engineers, was designated assistant administrator and chief engineer of WPA, the post formerly filled by Col. Harrington. Since last summer, Harloe had been executive assistant to the chief engineer. Harrington designated Capt. G. E. Textor, of the Corps of Engineers, to be executive assistant to Harloe, and appointed Dallas Dort temporarily to act as his own executive assistant. Dort formerly was chief of the WPA special inquiry division.

Harrington's statement of his views on WPA labor relations was made to reporters after Lasser and Benjamin conferred with the administrator on "matters in which the Workers' Alliance was interested." Lasser and Benjamin frequently have led delegations of protest before Harry Hopkins and Williams.

First published reports of Harrington's statement to reporters quoted him as saying he expected to put an end to periodic pilgrimages of disgruntled Works Progress employees to Washington—by "settling their problems and moving on to something else."

Harrington later said this was a misinterpretation of his remarks, and authorized the fuller statement saying he would receive delegations "whenever matters of sufficient importance" justified it.

His view is understood to be that there is no need for labor controversies and prolonged discussions if labor problems are promptly settled by regular machinery provided by the agency.

Believes in Organization

Questioned last week on his views toward WPA employes organizing, as under the Workers Alliance, Harrington told reporters:

"I think the WPA workers have a perfect right to organize. I want to make it clear if there is any doubt about it that I believe in organization and in dealing with employes through organization."

Four developments will throw attention on relief when Congress returns next week—the Sheppard report to the Senate, action by the Senate on Hopkins' nomination to be Commerce Secretary, submission of a deficiency budget for WPA, and a meeting of the Senate Unemployment Committee.

The Sheppard report, already in rough draft form, will be submitted to the Senate later this week. While it is expected to condemn in no uncertain terms WPA campaign activities in Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Kentucky, Senatorial candidates in those States probably will not be subjected to censure, and blame may not be directly placed on either Hopkins or Williams. The report is expected to be largely factual, permitting the reader to draw his own conclusions.

U. S. Calls 130 To Tell of Actions Under Huey Long

By the United Press.

The Federal Government last night marshaled more than 130 to testify at hearings scheduled to open in New Orleans January 30, at which it will inquire into certain public activities in Louisiana under the regime of the late Huey P. (Kingfish) Long.

The hearings, which will be conducted by the United States Board of Tax Appeals, involve back claims of $100,000 against Abraham L. Shushan and Seymour Weiss, political associates of Long.

Federal authorities, it was learned, hope the evidence will uncover details of public works contracts awarded in the delta State during Long's administration.

Reps. Dies and Cox Seek Anti-New Deal Bloc To Control House Committee Appointments

By the United Press.

A bloc of conservative Southern Democrats, led by Representatives Martin Dies, of Texas, and Eugene Cox, of Georgia, are seeking supporters in a drive to deliver important House committee posts to anti-New Deal Congressmen, it was learned last night.

COX

Determined to play an important role in the Seventy-sixth Congress, Dies and Cox, who actively opposed the wage-hour bill last session, have been contacting fellow Southerners, who hold 115 of the 262 House Democratic seats, in an effort to gain their united support in the drive for committee control.

At the same time they have been playing up to the conservative element in Northern Democratic ranks in order to obtain the additional 24 Democratic votes necessary to give their bloc a majority vote in party strategy.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Capper (Republican), Kansas, predicted yesterday that a "growing trend" toward the G. O. P. would bring the party the Presidency in 1940.

Regarding possible Republican candidates for 1940, Capper asserted that "we have a lot of them." He named Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan; Thomas E. Dewey, New York prosecutor; Senator Lodge (Republican), Massachusettes; Senator Taft (Republican), Ohio, and Representative Barton (Republican), New York.

Capper said the existing farm act will have to be revised to guarantee farmers the cost of production plus a reasonable profit.

The Congressinoal Record, which daily publishes a transcript of Senate and House proceedings, may don a new dress this winter. The Joint Committee on printing is considering placing three columns on a page instead of two. Senator Hayden (Democrat), Arizona, said this would save $135,000 a year.

The commercial club of Rhame, N. Dak., asked Senator Frazier (Republican), N. Dak., yesterday to arrange for Federal purchase of the town if the Government proceeds with its plans to buy most of the surrounding farm land.

Rhame is in Bowman County, southwestern North Dakota, where 2,427 of the 5,119 inhabitants were on relief in October. Repeated droughts and grasshopper plagues have swept the area.

The club declared "practically all of the business men are facing financial disaster."

Employment in U.S. Dropped in Nov.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—A survey issued by the National Industrial Conference Board today estimated American manufacturers provided jobs for 189,000 additional workers in November.

But even with this gain, the conference board said, "'total employment in the country declined fractionally, as compared with October."

Total employment, is was estimated, declined 0.1 per cent, "chiefly because the number of workers engaged in agriculture dropped more than seasonally."

Western Union To Pay $1,537,000 In U.S. Tax Claims

The Government agreed yesterday to accept $1,537,000 in settlement of 60 income-tax claims totaling $3,700,000 against the Western Union Telegraph Co. and 11 subsidiaries. Some of the cases had been contested since 1920.

The claims grew out of the Western Union's virtual absorption of the 11 smaller companies through long-term leases of their properties.

The Government contended that the leased companies had taxable income from what the Western Union paid them under the leases. The Western Union contended that the smaller companies became virtually nonexistent under the terms of the leases.

All Creeds Join Tribute at Bier Of Dr. Simon

Beloved Jewish Leader Buried; Homage Paid To 'Friend of All Men'

Men of many creeds and stations in life joined yesterday in final tribute as Rabbi Abram Simon's body was laid to rest in the Washington Hebrew Congregation Cemetery.

The 66-year-old religious and civic leader, who died here Saturday, reposed in the temple of the congregation he loved so well and served so faithfuy for 35 years, as his younger colleague, Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld led the service.

Hundreds of friends of the revered rabbi and prominent religious, civic and educational leaders heard the virtues of the beloved leader extolled.

"We Have Lost a Friend"

"We have lost a good friend, a counselor and good neighbor, whose devotion was not limited to the four walls of his congregation," said Bishop James E. Freeman, of the Washington Cathedral.

"I am conndent that the estimate of this community of our beloved friend could be worded simply—that he was a prince, a leader among men. He was in every sense an apostle of good will."

Bishop Freeman said he missed the eloquence of Dr. Simon, who shortly before he died broadcast a Christmas good will message.

A very large part of the success of the consolidation of the clergy of this city to act for the benefit of man was due to Dr. Simon, Bishop Freeman said.

"Spirit With Us Everlasting"

Standing in the pulpit and looking down on the simple gray casket, Bishop Freeman said:

"I come with my poor words, my brother though silent, I come here as your friend, speaking for all clergymen in this great Capital City. Your spirit will be with us everlasting."

Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, of the cathedral, read a portion of the Ninetieth Psalm in paying tribute to his friend. The Rev. Dr. William Rosenau, of Baltimore, representing the Central Conference of American Rabbis said, "We mourn a dauntless hero."

"Dr. Simon worked steadfastly that this world would be a better place in which to live," he said. "His kindness, his eloquence and beloved character will long be remembered.

Praising his work, the Rev. Dr. Julian Morgenstern, president of the Hebrew Union College, from which Dr. Simon was graduated, said:

"He came to us as a lad of 15, some 52 years ago, determined to serve Israel and all mankind. He would make this world a better one for this generation and for those that follow. He would put an end to hatred, persecution and suspicion and in their stead substitute faith, peace, friendship and unending happiness.

"He labored well for these ideals in this community. His own life exemplifies his ideals. How richly he achieved in all his years we now proclaim with our yearning and mourning.

"Old friend and dear brother, leader and teacher among us, we do not let thee go until thou hast blest us, as you have in life, with your everlasting spirit; it shall always remain with us."

Bereaved Family Present

The bereaved family of Dr. Simon sat in silence as their many friends said farewell to the "friend of man." His wife, Mrs. Simon; their only son, David; a brother, Jacob Simon, of California, and Mrs. Simon's two sisters, Mrs. C. J. Fruend and Mrs. Arthur Conn, occupied the family pew.

His head bowed in mourning, Dr. Gerstenfeld viewed the crowded congregation, and after a moment's pause, said:

"It is not easy to speak these words of homage, as the younger colleague of Dr. Simon, in this hour of grief. To many of you what I could say would be superfluous and utterly inadequate. I bow my head before a great master whose life was a living example of our living faith."

At the grave, Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, and chairman of the Committee of Religious Life in the Nation's Capital, led the services of farewell.

The monthly meeting of Argo Lodge of B'nai B'rith last night at the Jewish Community Center, was made the occasion for a memorial to Dr. Simon, whom Maurice Bisgyer, national secretary of B'nai B'rith, paid tribute to Dr. Simon's part in the growth of the order.

Mr. Bisgyer told of Dr. Simon's years of service as a member of B'nai B'rith's National Anti-Defamation Commission and also of his role as a leader in national affairs. Kaddish (the Jewish prayer for the dead) was said for Dr. Simon by Rabbi Gerstenfeld.

Officer in Crash Dismissed, Second To Stay on Force

The Police Trial Board yesterday recommended dismissal of Private Page O. Mangum for "conduct prejudicial to the reputation, good order and discipline of the police force."

At the same time the board recommended Private Howard O. Hurd, of the Thirteenth Precinct, be restored to duty with loss of pay for the period of his suspension and a fine of $50 for "having been under the influence of an alcoholic beverage while on special duty on the evening of December 17, 1938."

Mangum, according to G. R. Littlehales, chairman of the board, crashed into a bus on the Baltimore boulevard and was convicted of reckless driving. He gave his driving permit to the bus driver and told Baltimore police his car was stolen.

Woman, 103, and Blind Cripple Saved in Fire

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—After a fire spread today from a Brooklyn junkyard to a four-story apartment house and routed 26 families into cold, Mrs. Rose Moskowitz, blind and with only one leg, was carried out from a first-floor apartment by Max Solowitz, and Samuel Sellinger carried his 103-year-old mother, Mrs. Rose Sellinger, to the street.

Bill for Relief of Railroads Drafted By Rep. Lea, House ICC Committee Chairman

Representative Lea (Democrat), of California, chairman of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, revealed yesterday that he will offer far-reaching legislation to succor the financially harassed railroads during the first few days of the Seventy-sixth Congress.

He declined to reveal specific details of his measure, but he said it will be so drafted as to protect all of the Nation's economic factions involved in the future course of the industry, including labor, shippers and investors. In this connection protracted hearings will be held so business and labor leaders can air their views.

Lea's plans became known fewer than 24 hours after Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, had discussed the rail problem with President Roosevelt and had pledged his full co-operation to a program of rehabilitation.

Despite this optimistic picture, there was no indication last night that there was any semblance of agreement among Lea, Wheeler, the White House or other Government agencies responsible for the forthcoming legislation. There appears to be a unanimity of feeling, however, that the solution does not lie in Government ownership.

Lea and Wheeler are agreed that there must be no attempt to rush the program until all concerned have been heard, despite the fact there is a crisis in the industry.

The President is understood to be agreeable to this program. In line with his new policy toward legislators, he is insisting the committees headed by Wheler and Lea write the legislation.

The Montana Senator also is understood to have left no doubt in Mr. Roosevelt's mind that he would not propose or defend remedial legislation which might be vetoed.

Lea indicated yesterday that competition in the transportation industry was one of the most vital issues to be considered in the forthcoming program.

"My bill will mean only a start in the direction we are to take. It can and probably will be changed."

Snow or Rain Forecast Here; 27 Die in U. S.

Sub-Zero Wave Spares D. C., But Grips Nation Again

Although Washington will escape the sub-zero temperatures and windy blizzards now general in New England and Midwestern States, snow or a cold rain can be expected before nightfall, the Weather Bureau said last night.

The mercury will fall to a minimum of 24 degrees this morning and be followed by snow flurries in the afternoon, according to the predictions. Skies will be overcast throughout the day.

In the frigid belt that yesterday extended from the Rockies to the Atlantic Seaboard and from New England to the Florida border the Nation's Capital fared comparatively well.

The mercury here rose yesterday from a low of 20 at 8:30 a. m. to a high of 27 in the mid-afternoon. At 10 o'clock last night the temperature had dropped to 23 was due to sink back to 20 early this morning.

The weatherman predicted slightly warmer weather for today, with rain or snow for tonight and tomorrow. Friday will be much colder. Winds will be moderate and southerly today. Snow was forecast today for Maryland and Virginia.

A new cold wave was forecast for the ice-sheathed Plains States for today, with freezing weather engulfing most of the Nation.

Fatalities attributed to the wintry onslaught and treacherous icy highways yesterday reached 27. Exposure deaths were reported from such widely scattered centers as Parsons, Kans., Waterbury, Conn., and Birmingham, Ala.

Hundreds of automobiles lined ditches in western Michigan as snow plow crews labored to restore transportion on the main highways. Many Christmas visitors still were marooned there, with temperatures as low as 18 degrees below zero.

In Minnesota the mercury slid to 34 below. In New York the temperatures ranged from 10 below in the Adirondacks to 18 above at Albany.

"I cannot afford to become bald" says this foreman and in his own home plays along with the symphony orchestra that's coming through his loudspeaker.)

Ernest LaPrade, of the National Broadcasting Co., New York, who spoke on audience participation in radio programs, said "Toscanini and his colleagues would be surprised if they knew how many unofficial members their orchestra comprise." To cite an example, the speaker told about the flute player who reported last season "that he had played five different symphonies under five different conductors during a single week-end."

And, LaPrade added, there was another participant who wrote in to say:

"I have been enjoying playing with all the symphony orchestras given over the air for the last ten years. I am now 77 years old and in order to play more efficiently I shall take lessons again."

And there was also the Piano Tuners Association's resolution giving thanks for new business coming to them by reason of the fact that so many home pianos had had to be tuned to the standard pitch.

"Music is no longer just an art," LaPrade told the teachers. "It is an ideal sport; and, like other sports, its complete enjoyment is reserved for those who participate in it. The notion seems to be gaining ground that the performer also gets something out of it."

However, music isn't only fun. According to Ernest G. Hesser, of the department of music education at New York University, who also spoke at the opening session, music is fast becoming an integral part of our life—a necessary part.

Describing present-day American living as one fast round of hurried meals, business conferences and social engagements, Hesser said, "music can lift people above the din and clamor, counteract hysteria, preserve normalcy in thinking and restore individual and national poise. This it does by bringing into their experience beauty. And by so doing it makes them more sensitive to beauty's every manifestation, whether it be in realm of tone, or color in architecture or painting, or in human thought and action."

These talks were features of a general meeting that preceded a White House reception tendered the visiting music teachers by Mrs. Roosevelt.

Discussions contained in the papers were an introduction to a score of others to follow today. Numerous forums for special groups within the association, and the societies meeting in conjunction, are scheduled.

Edwin Hughes, association president, opened the convention with an address of welcome.

Members of Phi Mu Alpha Fraternity presented their Little Symphony Orchestra from the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N. Y., in a concert at the hotel after the day's sessions were over. Frederick Fennell directed the ensemble in a program of music by Mozart, Scarlatti, and two American composers, Mabel Daniels and Howard Hanson.

Last night the National Symphony Orchestra, under Hans Kindler, entertained the convention visitors with a concert in Constitution Hall.

Ganz to Be Toastmaster

Important figures in the music world will take the spotlight at meetings today. Edward Johnson, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will address a banquet tonight at which Rudolph Ganz, director of the Chicago Musical College and widely known pianist and composer, will be toastmaster.

Howard Hansen, composer and director of the Eastman School of Music, will speak at some of the sessions. Before a joint session of the American Musicological Society and the Music Teachers National Association, Ernst Krenek and Nicolas Slonimsky, prominent composers, will speak.

ginning of the concert with the joyous elan and irresistible rhythmic impetus of the polonaise from Rimski-Korsakov's opera, "Christmas Eve." From this the transition was natural to the jubilant dignity and grave happiness of Mozart's "Jupiter" symphony, one of the greatest odes ever written to the indomitable spiritual aspirations of humanity. If ever music expressed the celebration of the victories of thought over the trammels of material environment, it is in this supremely beautiful masterpiece of poetic imagination.

Whether or not it was J. B. Cramer who suggested the title of "Jupiter" for the last of Mozart's symphonies is a question for the arguments of musicologists. Within certain limitations, the epithet is appropriate to the Olympian grandeur and serenity of the work as a whole, although there is lacking in its very human motivation the detachment of the classical deities. The plentitude of harmonious ideas and the vigorous flow of inspiration would make it seem that the music represents the slow growth of meditation. Yet the symphony was composed in 15 days.

During the intermission the auditors had an opportunity to adjust themselves to the leap from the eighteenth to the twentieth century, for the second half of the program offered first local performances of three contemporary works. Burnet C. Tuthill's "Bethlehem: A Pastorale" has traveled considerably among the orchestras of the United States since it was completed in 1934, and last night's hearing revealed the reason why many conductors have selected it for performance. That reason is the atmospheric charm of the music which evokes the emotions of peace and calm.

As in similar cases on record, the music was wrought before the title came to mind. The composer has stated that his intention was the establishment of a pastoral mood, and that the music developed a character which made the title an inevitable one. Scored for the ordinary modern orchestra with the addition of piano and the substitution of a basset horn for the second clarinet, the pastorale moves meditatively in a slow five-eight rhythm. Because of its beauty and fine instrumentation, the work is an admirable addition to the orchestral repertoire.

The two movements from "Time Suite" by Roy Harris represented that interesting American composer in one of his exceptional veins. Many of us have heard on our receiving sets the entire suite, which was written on a commission from the Columbia Broadcasting Co. Composing expressly for radio projecting sets certain definite problems for resolution, and these puzzles have been neatly solved by Mr. Harris. But the fact that each movement of the suite was definitely limited in duration does no detract from the effectiveness of the music in the concert hall, where one listens to it as pure music.

In "Religion" Mr. Harris employs that starkness of melodic line and that economy of harmonic investure which suggest a Puritanic restraint in emotional expression. Technically, the effects are produced by the use of the ancient Phrygian and Lydian modes, but that is quite beside the point that the music is singularly poignant. In "Communications," which the composer calls a study of musical tempo in relation to mundane time, the emotional content is small in comparison to the intellectual stimulus. One may see in the steadily increasing pace of the music a symbol of the development of communication from the slow letter to the electrical flash.

Constant Lambert's "The Rio Grande" called to the assistance of the orchestra the Washington Choral Society and the American pianiste, Evelyn Swarthout. This provocative and brilliant piece of impressionistic writing a setting of verses by Sacheverell Sitwell, has no reference to our Rio Grande del Norte, but to a Brazillian stream, and the jazz idiom reflects a tropical languour. A certain satiric quality in the music makes one feel that the young English composer had in mind a combination of the romanticism of Liszt and the materialism of today.

Clever, imaginative and humorous, this composition has a captivating zest which was given full justice in the sparkling performance. The choral portion of the work had been well prepared by Louis A. Potter, and Miss Swarthout utilized a facile technique in the piano solo part which demands a ready hand with cadenzas. The concert came to its close with a rousing performance of the prelude to "Die Meistersinger."

Hans Kindler conducts the National Symphony Orchestra Wednesday night in Constitution Hall. Assisting artists; The Washington Choral Society and Evelyn Swarthout, pianist. Program: Introduction and Polonaise from "Christmas Eve" (Rimski-Korsakov), "Jupiter" Symphony in C major (Mozart), "Bethlehem: A Pastorale" (Tuthill), Two Movements from "Time Suite" (Harris), "The Rio Grande" for orchestra, chorus and piano (Lambert), Prelude to "Die Meistersinger von Nuernberg" (Wagner).

Holiday Buying Done Early, Merchants Say

The peak of the Christmas shopping and mailing rush this year came several days before December 25, Arthur J. Sundlun, vice president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, said yesterday, announcing that the "Shop Early—Mail Early" campaign would be adopted again next year.

"So successful was this year's promotion of the early shopping and mailing idea that both the merchants and the postal officials will continue this effort again next year," he added.

whose means of passage through the body has mystified science. Dr. Code and his associates indicate that eosinophil cells are carriers of histamine.

The discovery also is linked with leukemia, an often fatal disease produced by an uncontrollable increase in the number of white blood cells. It was found that patients with lymphatic leukemia had a normal blod hsitamine, while persons suffering from myeloid leukemia showed a blood which contained enormous quantities of histamine.

Predicts Dropping Of I. Q. Child Tests

Dr. Arnold Gesell, Yale University child expert, predicted the early abandonment of the intelligent quotient as a mental test for children.

"A child should never be classified as febbleminded on the basis of an I. Q. alone," Dr. Gesell said.

His observations were based upon study of 10,000 cases now on file at the Yale Clinic of Child Development.

"Feeblemindedness in the eyes of society is a medico-legal concept and demands a responsible diagnosis of the ultimate outlook of the child," he said. "It is fallacious to conclude from I. Q. statistics that a child is made feebleminded by poor environment or that a hitherto alleged feebleminded child becomes normal through improved educational surroundings.

"Above all, in the cases of child adoption, foster parents should not be permitted to think that a child of meager growth endowment can be brought up to full normality through a good home and nursery school advantages."

Triple-Billionaires Seen in 30 Years

The coming of the first American triple-billionaire was predicted within 30 years by Carl Snyder, New York economist.

Snyder based his forecast on the proviso that the historic system of wealth creation will last that long, a conclusion drawn from the study of the Pareto Curve, a mathematical method devised by the Italian economist, Vilfredo Pareto, to show the distribution of wealth-making and other talents through an entire population

Snyder claimed that the wealth of rich men of other times appeared to be limited by the total of the national income and that, with few notable exceptions, rich men of the present and past were born in poor circumstances.

"George Washington or Stephen Girard or even Thomas Hancock, the rich men of Colonial days, amassed as great a fortune, for their generation, as John D. Rockefeller or Henry Ford in our own."

Furthermore, he said, distribution of great wealth has varied only slightly through the years, not only in the United States but in England, Germany and France. All this, he declared, suggests existence of a "law" which regulates the size and distribution of fortunes.

Snyder suggested that the explanation is that great fortunes are distributedf in the same proportion as are money-making talents.

Cobra Venom Stimulates Brain

Small injections of venom from the cobra, deadly snake, stimulates the brain and improves angle vision and muscular co-ordination, David I. Macht and Moses R. Macht, of Baltimore, reported to the association.

The venom is injected into the muscles once a day or less as a substitute for morphine. Its effects are slower than the drug, but last longer and are not habit forming.

Iodine Foods Seen Halting Appendicitis

Appendicitis occurs less frequently in the coastal areas of the Atlantic and the Pacific, according to findings reported by Dr. Roland M. Harper, of the Geological Survey of Alabama.

Abundance of iodine in the foods of inhabitants of these areas is thought to be a factor, Dr. Harper said. The high appendicitis rate corresponds with the well-known "goiter belt" of the American interior, which has been traced directly to low iodine in soil and food, he said.

Dr. Harper found it significant that the lowest appendicitis rate in the United States is in South Carolina, the State which advertises the rich iodine content of its soil and vegetables.

Sarnoff Bemoans Dictator Terrors

David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, accused the dictator nations of Germany, Italy and Russia of creating an "intellectual reign of terror." He addressed tonight's session.

"In our own twentieth century," Dr. Sarnoff asserted, "we are witnessing witch burnings in the domain of science. How else can one interpret the public burning of great books, the exile of leading scientists from their homes and the proscription of thought?"

emerged, she posed obligingly for photographers, then said: "They are just trying to pin something on him—Buckner."

Asked why she had gone to Washington, if there was no party, she replied: "Oh, I just wanted to go for a sleigh ride," and laughed.

The reporter inquired whether she had gone to Washington with Buckner.

"No; with Mr. Gillespie," she said.

Her reference was to William J. Gillespie, a Brooklyn broker, co-defendant with Buckner. He is out on bail.

Miss Carter said she was no longer an entertainer in the Hollywood restaurant here, but had gone in for commercial photography.

Unable to Explain Male Superiority

Dr. Calvin P. Stone, professor of psychology at Leland Stanford University, confessed he had been unable after considerable study to explain why male horses are so superior to females. He pointed out that only 14 per cent of American track records are held by female horses, that only one mare has won the Kentucky Derby and that only 22 per cent of 2,400 consecutive stake races run between 1923 and 1939 were won by females.

"Size, weight and physical conformation have not been found accountable," he said. "Traditional opinion is not against females, since the profit motive is very strong in racing circles. As far as I know, no geneticist has been able to ascribe it to a genic mechanism."

Savant Recommends More Airships

Dr. W. F. Durand, of Leland Stanford University and a member of the National Advisory Committee on Aeronautics, recommended renewed construction of lighter-than-air craft in this country and forecast greater safety, economy, speed and comfort in air travel.

He declared the destruction of the Akron and Macon did not prove airship transportation dangerous.

Educational System Called 'Unbalanced'

Dr. Oscar Riddle, of the Carnegie Institution, Washington, attacked the American educational system, called it "unbalanced," said it neglects science and eventually succeeds in "anesthetizing the better functions of the mind of our boys and girls."

Dr. Riddle called for appropriate sex instruction of the young, adding that "teachers whose English vocabulary is too restricted to present these subjects inoffensively should burn midnight oil or return to college."

that "we can pour the rest of the training at them pretty fast," a spokesman said.

Idle Plant Possible Site

Under present plans for training mechanics, a long-idle naval ordnance plant at South Charleston, W. Va., will be used to provide advanced technical schooling for the most capable youths willing to serve in the Army and Navy.

The proposal to train pilots brought expressions of approval from several Senators yesterday.

Chairman Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, of the Senate Military Committee endorsed it. Senator McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, said the country was deficient in trained aviators, but he predicted pacifist opposition to the plan.

Senator Schwartz (Democrat), Wyoming, asserted: "In every war in which we have entered, we have paid a terrible price for being unprepared. We should have training such as this."

Johnson Urges Expansion

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—Louis Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War, will say in a forthcoming magazine article that a proper air defense program will justify expenditures by the aircraft industry for expansion of production.

Writing for the January issue of Aero Digest, Johnson says if a production program geared to the demands of defense is adopted, it will reduce the cost of airplanes.

"The time has now come," the article goes on, "to prepare to go into greater production with the best-adapted of our military types and models."

It adds, "we must aid in the development of the airplane industry so that upon M-day, it will be able to go into mass production without delay.

"We can do this most effectively by adopting a well-formulated aviation expansion program looking forward to our needs for today, tomorrow, for the next year, two years from now, and for the future."

Pointing out that the aviation industry has been hampered in previous years by the limited size of military orders, the Assistant Secretary of War says the adoption of an expansion program would enable aircraft manufacturers to keep a maximum number of its expert personnel on duty at all times.

Royal Air Force Rises

London, Dec. 28 (AP).—Royal Air Force personnel has been expanded until it is expected to total 100,000 active airmen by next June.

Between March and November personnel increased from 69,000 to 85,000. The flow of recruits was steady but hardly sufficient for needs of the hastened plane-building program.

Rome "Abandons Hope"

Rome, Dec. 28 (AP).—Italian sources indicated today that Italy virtually had abandoned any hope of territorial gains at France's expense and said the Fascists had no intention of invading French Somaliland.

Four weeks after the outbreak of Italian clamor for French recognition of her "natural aspirations" in Africa, diplomats suggested that a basis for a settlement between Rome and Paris might lie along these lines:

Independence for Tunisia, French north African protectorate mentioned most often in the Italian territorial agitation touched off November 30 by Foreign Minister Ciano in the Chamber of Deputies. Under such an arrangement, Rome could maintain control over the 90,000 Italians in Tunisia.

An Italian share in the administration of the French-controlled Suez Canal and lower rates for shipping through that waterway.

Improvement of the Port of Djibouti, capital of French Somaliland and terminus of the French-controlled railroad to Addis Ababa in Italian Ethiopia, for the benefit of Italian shipping.

The possible creation of a free port at Djibouti, with lower rates on the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railroad for Italian shipments and a larger Italian share in the control of the rilroad.

Russ Paper Scoffs At German Threat Against Ukraine

Moscow, Dec. 28.—The widespread foreign relief that the recent German interest in the Ukrainian problem may be a prelude to another attempt to conquer the Soviet Ukraine was dismissed today as an idle fantasy in the country most directly involved—the Soviet Union.

This German "campaign of racket and absurdity" was noted here only as "an artificial and fragile plant growing from the sour soil of Munich."

Special Cable to The Post.

Berlin, Dec. 28.—Field Marshal Gen. Goering is scheduled to visit Libya in February as the guest of Italo Balbo, according to reports tonight. These reports are of peculiar interest in view of the current Franco-Italian tension, resulting from Italian claims on France in North Africa and elsewhere in the Mediterranean.

Earth Spaded For Venezuela Embassy Here

Legation Staff Attends Ceremony Starting $140,000 Building

The first earth for the foundations zof a new Venezuelan Embassy, at Massachusetts avenue and California street, was turned yesterday by Dr. Don Jacinto Fombona-Pachano, the charge d'affaires.

The two-story stucco, modernistic Spanish building will be constructed at a cost of about $140,000 on a triangular lot which has been vacant for years. A ten-room chancery on the corner will be connected with the 20-room residence by a wing, to form one architectural unit facing on Massachusetts avenue. Construction is expected to be completed within six months.

The entire legation staff with the exception of the Minister, now at Lima, were on hand at 3:15 p. m. to witness the ceremony, as were representatives of State Department and press.

Afterward principals and spectators adjourned to the present legation at 2400 Sixteenth street northwest, where Dr. Fombona-Pachano said the event constituted a new step to intensify the relations between the South American republic and United States.

Others attending the ceremony besides the Charge d'Affaires and Senora Fombona-Pachano were Arturo Lares, Secretary of the Legation; Col. Carlos Sanchez, Military Attache; Luis Coll-Pardo, Commercial Attache; Senora Coll-Pardo and Senorita Luisa Coll, E. C. Briggs, acting chief of division of the American republics; Robert F. Woodward, division of American republics; Dr. Pedro de Alba, assistant in charge of the Pan American Union; L. G. Towne, president of the A. L. Hartridge Co., Inc., contractors for building the embassy; Ralph O. Wilson, vice president and construction manager of the company; Stanley Glines, of Ulen & Co., of New York, and Chester A. Patterson, New York architect for the building.

Arms Parley Urged On Roosevelt

President Roosevelt was asked by a delegation from the National Peace Conference yesterday to lead a campaign for a world conference for economic and military disarmament.

John Nevin Sayre, president of the peace organization, said after a call at the White House his group had "gained the impression from the President that prospects for such a conference are not hopeless."

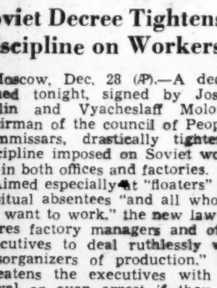

The statement presented to the President was signed by 800 persons from educational, religious, labor and business groups.

Soviet Decree Tightens Discipline on Workers

Moscow, Dec. 28 (AP).—A decree issued tonight, signed by Joseph Stalin and Vyacheslaff Molotoff, chairman of the council of People's Commissars, drastically tightened discipline imposed on Soviet workers in both offices and factories.

Aimed especially at "floaters" and habitual absentees "and all who do not want to work," the new law requires factory managers and other executives to deal ruthlessly with "disorganizers of production," and threatens the executives with removal or even arrest if they fail to exercise a firm hand.

Vatican Paper Rejects Fascist Press View That Lima Conference Was Failure; Declares Actions at Parley Will 'Live in History'

Lima

newest cruisers will make a goodwill tour of Latin America early next month. Although final details remain to be worked out, officials said Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, commander of Cruiser Division 7 and former budget officer of the Navy Department, is expected to take his ships on the trip.

[The division is composed of the San Francisco, Quincy, Tuscaloosa and Vincenes, but the latter is scheduled to be overhauled shortly and may not make the journey, it was explained.—Editor's note.]

Buenos Aires, Dec. 28 (AP).—A considerable portion of the public and press of leading South American capitals has expressed belief that the eighth Pan-American conference, which closed at Lima yesterday, served an unmistakable warning on Germany, Italy, and Japan to keep out of the Western Hemisphere.

Many representative newspapers and public figures have indicated, however, that they fail to see any threat of armed invasion from those quarters.

Therefore they are not inclined to favor a military alliance with the United States which they fear might drag them into a major war.

Important newspapers like La Nacion, La Prensa and Critica, of Buenos Aires; A Noite, of Rio de Janeiro, and others of Santiago and Montevideo, despite a few discordant notes, agreed on the principle of continental solidarity against aggression as reached at Lima.

Still here was some disagreement whether the expression itself—the declaration of Lima—was a strong enough repudiation of totalitarianism.

Foreign Minister Joe Maria Cantilo, of Argentina, objected to one newspaper's view that his opposition to a binding Pan-American alliance system had given the totalitarian powers a chance to assert the principle of continental solidarity was a failure.

"Whoever reads my speech before the conference December 10 will find little enough basis for such a claim," the minister retorted.

Nevertheless, Critica, with a circulation of over 600,000, regretted the failure of the Lima conference openly to condemn military dictatorships in Europe and Asia.

The conservative La Nacion, on the other hand, held that nations of South America like Argentina could not afford to turn their back on Germany and Italy, with whom they maintain close commercial ties, and from whom they receive many immigrants.

Representative opinion, expressed in large public meetings of the leading political parties in Buenos Aires, Montevideo and Santiago, ranged between these two points of view.

Berlin, Dec. 28 (AP).—The German foreign mouthpiece, Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, asserted today that the United States had failed at the Pan-American conference at Lima, and that the outcome "alarms no one."

"Considering the violent campaign by the United States to persuade Latin America of the existence of a menace from authoritarian states," Korrespondenz said, "one can hardly regard the Lima resolution (for defense against foreign aggression) as success for these efforts.

"The Lima resolution alarms no one. There is indeed no country so foolish as to attempt what the American states declare they will not tolerate."

Special Cable to The Post.

Rome, Dec. 28.—Encouraged by the conviction that the Lima conference was "a lost battle for the United States and the democracies," Italy is making big efforts to expand her trade and influence throughout Latin America.

The first tangible sign is a commercial treaty with Uruguay, signed yesterday. It is hoped this will triple trade between the two countries. Italy's chief import from Uruguay is wool.

Army Pours Through Balaguer Fortifications, Insurgents Report

By the Associated Press.

Zaragoza, Spain, Dec. 28.—The insurgent command announced tonight that its Aragon army corps had smashed through a formidable line of government fortifications north of the Balaguer bridgehead, cutting a wide swath through government territory in Catalonia.

The action took place 16 miles northeast of Lerida, tonight's communique stated. Heavy fighting was reported continuing.

The Spanish insurgent command announced its forces shot down at least 19 planes and probably six more in one of the most spectacular air fights of the war north of Tarragona on the Catalonian front.

A communique said an insurgent squadron of 24 chaser planes clashed with a government formation of 61 fighters and bombers over Alfes, a few miles southeast of Lerida. The report said machine-gunners kept up a steady fire for several minutes, after which the government planes turned southeastward, taking the fight over the Valls Aerodrome.

Insurgents Repulsed

With the Governent Army on the Lower Segre Front in Spain, Dec. 28 (AP).—Four divisions of insurgents, reported to be Italians, attacked again and again today with all their force on the Castelldans sector in an attempt to reach Borjas Blancas from the southwest, but were met with equal fire from government lines.

They struck from behind a high ridge facing bomb-ruined Castelldans, 12 miles southwest of Borjas Blancas, and down the road from Cogull to Soleras, Granadella and Bobera.

If they reached Borjas Blancas they would cut the Lerida-Tarragona highway and bring their new line about 15 miles east of Lerida.

A government army corps political commissar asserted the insurgents were three days behind schedule in attempting to take Borjas Blancas.

Smithsonian Scientist, Cast Out by Nazis, Receives Decoration From King of Belgium

Dr. Ernst Schwarz Gets Medal of Merit; Wants to Be Citizen

A Smithsonian Institution scientist, who left Germany when the Nazis asked him to give up his job, has been decorated by King Leopold III of Belgium, it was learned here yesterday.

The decoration, a medal for scientific merit, has been conferred on Dr. Ernst Schwarz, internationally renowned specialist on mammals.

Political outcast in one country, honored scientist in another, Dr. Schwartz is, technically at least, a WPA worker in the United States. The project on which he is engaged—labeling and rearranging the Smithsonian's mammal collection—is financed by the WPA.

The medal was received last week via the Belgian embassies in London, England, and in Washington. It was accompanied by a letter expressing King Leopold's appreciation of the part Dr. Schwarz took in publication of a book on findings of a scientific expedition in the Far East led by the Belgian monarch when he was crown prince ten years ago.

At the time of the expedition, Dr. Schwarz was a research specialist at the National Zoological Museum in Berlin.

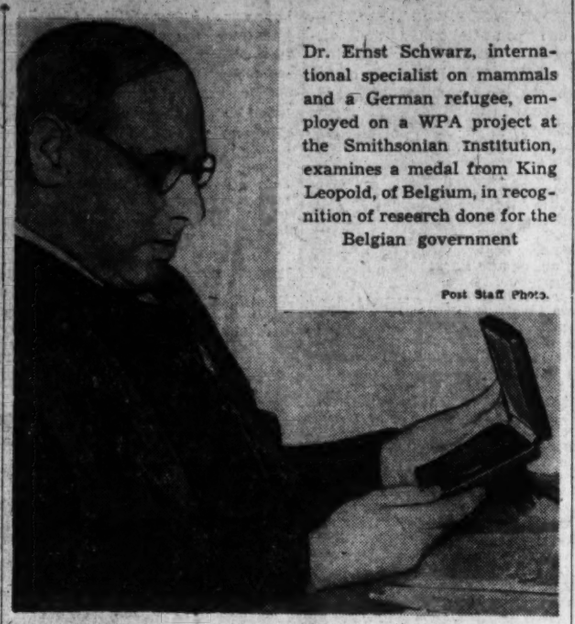

"In September, 1933, I was told I would have to give up my job," he said. "Also I thought it best to leave the country, because at that time there was no doubt as to what was coming, I managed to get most of my important papers and books to England. If I had remained longer, no doubt things would have been different."

Dr. Schwarz submitted his report on the findings of the Belgian expedition three years ago. The greater part of his work, he said, was done in London at the British National Museum.

On the policies of the Hitler government, Dr. Schwarz would only comment: "I never enter into politics. I am a scientist."

Dr. Schwarz, who came to the United States in 1937 from England, where he had lived since leaving Germany, said he has received his first citizenship papers.

"I have found a home here, and I believe it is the loyal, the patriotic thing to do, to become a citizen," he explained.

Dr. Ernst Schwarz, international specialist on mammals and a German refugee, employed on a WPA project at the Smithsonian Institution, examines a medal from King Leopold, of Belgium, in recognition of research done for the Belgian government

Japanese Bombers Improve in 18 Months in China

Shanghai, Dec. 28 (AP).—Japanese aviators have developed from among the world's worst to among the best bombers through daily practice during 18 months of the Chinese-Japanese war, neutral observers say.

There is general agreement among the military experts who have watched Japanese aerial progress up the Yangtze valley that the Japanese have changed from third-rate neophytes—as shown by their record in the early fighting around Shanghai—to destructive marksmen from the air.

The observers, however, reserve judgment on just how good Japanese pursuit pilots are when it comes to actual combat in the air.

Americans in China Urge Retaliation Against Japan

Tientsin, China, Dec. 28 (AP).—The United States Chamber of Commerce of Tientsin today telegraphed the State Department urging that the United States take retaliatory trade measures against Japan, which it charged with numerous infringements of American rights in China.

The telegram declared that North China was the greatest potential undeveloped market in the world, and urged measures to protect American trade there.

(The United States on October 6 delivered to Japan a note charging discrimination against American trade in Japanese-occupied parts of China and demanding maintenance of the "open door." Japan's reply November 18 was considered unsatisfactory by the State Department.)

Nazis Vision 'Big 4' Parley On Italy's Aims

Ribbentrop Reported Planning to See Ciano On Tension With France

By the United Press.

Berlin, Dec. 28.—Nazi political quarters tonight discussed a possibility that the "Big Four" of Munich might meet again in January to seek a peaceful settlement of their outstanding problems, including the acute tension between Italy and France.

There was no confirmation of these rumors, but it was reported simultaneously that German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop soon may confer with Italy's foreign minister, Count Ciano.

It was indicated that Ribbentrop, who discussed Italy's clamor for French North Africa territories when he went to Paris early in December to sign an anti-war declaration, might seek to pave the way for another Big Four conference in his talks with Ciano.

Chamberlain Visit First

Such a meeting probably would bring together Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain, Premier Daladier of France, Premier Mussolini of Italy and Reichsfuehrer Hitler of Germany for the first time since their meeting at Munich September 29 when the Czecho-Slovak Sudetenland was delivered to Hitler to prevent war.

It was indicated that any visit which Ribbentrop might pay to Rome would not come until after Chamberlain's consultations the second week in January with Mussolini.

It was learned in London today that Chamberlain will refrain from any attempt to mediate the Italo-French dispute when he visits Il Duce, meaning that Britain will not bring any pressure against France for concessions to Italy as the price of peace.

Briton Looks at Spain

Chamberlain is expected, however, to concentrate on an attempt to bring about a further withdrawal of Italian troops from Spain.

German intervention in the Rome-Paris dispute is not anticipated here, inasmuch as neither party has asked for it, and Germany is said to be determined to remain aloof as long as she is not formally asked to intervene, despite her obligations under the Rome-Berlin axis.

Nazi leaders almost unanimously are of the opinion that the troubles between France and Italy will be settled without resort to war.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Mr. Niven Made Grade Without Any Headlines!

With Better Luck Would Have Starred by Now; 'Pygmalion' Inspires a Novel Campaign; This, That and the Other About the Theater

Among all the talented young actors in Hollywood, none is coming along faster at the moment, than David Niven. His work with Errol Flynn, Basil Rathbone and Donald Crisp in "The Dawn Patrol," current at the Earle Theater, places him indisputably in the top flight of film players able to weld the divergent elements of comedy and tragedy into a well-nigh perfect performance. "Change of pace" is the usual term. Niven has it and is able to employ it deftly, with never any impairment of the realism or effectiveness of his portrayal. Had he had Errol Flynn's luck with headlines, his career would be as luminous as that of his pal in "Dawn Patrol."

BELL

It is odd the way Mr. Flynn's escapades invariably have redounded to his professional advantage. Recently, Flynn started with his dog, Arno, for a walk on Catalina Island. Arno got himself into a fight and Flynn was arrested for not having had his pooch in leash. That would have been that, except that the other combatant happened to be the pet of the judge who tried the case. It was a headline story.

A while back, Flynn struck up an acquaintanceship with a prospector he happened to like and staked him to money and a plane to work a claim in Alaska. The claim was no good, but his buddy got a mountain named in honor of the actor, with another resultant first-page splash. Then there was the time when Flynn backed a deep-sea diver to salvage a brass cannon off the Isle of Pines. The diver really found it—a relic of the old buccaneer days—and it made good copy and a lot of elegant souvenir trinkets. And that other time when Flynn got mixed up in a good-natured barroom brawl in Havana and it almost became an international incident. Now his boat, the Sirocco, has been libeled as oversize for an alien resident and "Robin Hood" is in the headlines again. The man probably carries a horseshoe in each hand and wears a four-leaf clover in every pocket.

But, as I was saying, if David Niven had got half of Flynn's breaks in the matter of unpremeditated and unsought publicity, he would have been equally famous and as conspicuously "on top" long ago. For this Niven lad has led no uneventful life, either. Now that he is climbing nimbly up the ladder on his own steam and the excellence of his work before the cameras, he is beginning to divulge heretofore unknown and unsuspected chapters of his past.

Worked His Way Out of "Hock"

It seems that Niven landed in New York four years ago to make his fortune in this country and so took up quarters in the swanky Waldorf-Astoria. Nine days later he rediscovered what he already had known—that he couldn't pay his bill and couldn't even get his shirts back from a Chinese laundry. So he made a deal with the Oriental to work a full day delivering washing in return for his laundry. For a delivery wagon, he borrowed a limousine from Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., and two days later, with a clean shirt, got a job as a wine taster for an importer, which took care of the Waldorf's bill.

Anyhow, it makes a good story and if it had been Flynn's no doubt would have been bannered across the pages of every paper in the country.

There is another period in Mr. Niven's adventurous life upon which he is a trifle more reticent. It has to do with a mysterious business venture with machine guns and ammunition in Cuba. The only reason Niven ever landed in California was because the first ship clearing Cuba was bound for Panama!

So David Niven has had to rely on the sheer merit of his work, instead of printers' ink to get himself "up there" in films. His work in "Dawn Patrol" was a big boost. They are claiming now that his performance opposite Merle Oberon in "Wuthering Heights" will be an even bigger one.

In the meantime, he might tag along with his friend Flynn and crash some of those headlines!

That made-in-Britain film version of George Bernard Shaw's comedy of "Pygmalion" has so upset every expectation that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has decided to take its time in marketing this particular picture to the trade and feel out the country in advance with regard to its probable national rating. The Shaw "invasion" will be a gradual and closely scrutinized innovation in "selling" the public. "Pygmalion," according to present plans, will be released in a couple of cities only at a time, instead of popping it into every film exchange and every theater in the country on a fixed countrywide release date. This will be the first time such a procedure ever has been followed in the case of a popular-priced, continuous-performance, regular-movie screen subject. "Pygmalion's" reception, incidentally, has greatly softened George Bernard Shaw's attitude toward the "movies." His "The Doctor's Dilemma" will be produced by M-G-M, also with Gabriel Pascal producing—but it will be made in Culver City, instead of England, as originally planned.

Two Prodigious and Comic Young Fellows

There is more than immediately meets the eye in "Blondie," first release in Columbia's series of pictures based on the comic strip characters, now on view at the Metropolitan. Some of the less heavily featured members of the cast are worth a word or two.

For example, little, 4-year-old Danny Mummert, who appears as Baby Dumpling's playmate, Alvin, is recognized by science as a real juvenile prodigy. He can name all the States in the Union and their capitals, identify every member of the President's Cabinet and perform other mental feats many adults can not accomplish. His average mental age is eight, instead of half of that.

And "Daisy," of course, is the picture's star comedian. "Daisy" is of a breed of dog that, I think, would baffle even The Post's Mr. Berner, but he is, none the less, a very funny young fellow, with his "fright" ears and all. "Daisy's" right name, by the way, is Spooks. The liberties these film people take!

The original company and production of Tony Sarg's Marionettes will present "Treasure Island" at two performances—11 a. m., and 3 p. m.—next Monday, January 2, in the Masonic Temple Auditorium, Thirteenth street and New York avenue. These performances will be under the auspices of the women's committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. W. R. Gardner, 115 Leland street, Chevy Chase, Md., and will be for the benefit of Spanish children made destitute by the war in Spain. The proceeds will be used to purchase foodstuffs for the undernourished and starving youngsters, victims of a struggle in which their part seems to be wholly one of innocent and pitiful suffering.

New Year's Stars at the Earle

ANITA LOUISE AND DICK POWELL
as they appear in the co-stellar roles of "Going Places," a romantic comedy of the race tracks—and other places—opening a week's engagement on the screen at the Earle Theater tomorrow

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Dec. 28.

POLITICS: Paul Kern, the Civil Service Commissioner, was in the mayor's office—and was fired three times. On each occasion, Kern would accept the mayor's edict, go to a ball game to cool off and then, in the morning, he'd be recalled . . . LaGuardia finally called him, in the morning, and shouted: "This time you're really fired—through—finished. There are no ifs or buts about it. You're fired—definitely and completely. But—don't take the afternoon off."

HELP WANTED: One evening last week, during the dinner hour, I went to the Plaza, the Stork Club, Harry Richman's, Tony's, the Tavern, Sardi's and Moore's; then to the opening of "Outward Bound"; then to the Casa Manana, Onyx, Cotton Club, Famous Door, Stork, El Morocco, 18 Club, Lindy's, Dave's and Reuben's . . . The next day, at Moss Hart's, the guests, including Woollcott, Dorothy Parker, Ruth Gordon, Alan Campbell, played the "Truth Game." They were asked whether they'd rather, for three months, do my job or spend the time in prison . . . The unanimous decision—was prison.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT: Sam Briskin, the Columbia film producer, went into a story conference with two of his writers. "Now, then," he suggested, "in this story, why does he have to be a musician? I think it would be more colorful if you made this man a railroad engineer" . . . The writers looked at each other in amazement and tried to control their laughter. "Listen, don't smile that way," Briskin exploded. "When you guys get to know me better you'll learn that I don't take everything I say seriously."

REALTY DEPARTMENT: Damon Runyon's first big newspaper job was for a Frisco daily, in 1906. The day after he was hired Runyon discovered a three-alarm fire raging in one of the residential sections. He phoned his office, but failed to elicit any excitement . . . Runyon rushed back to his desk and started to write a six-column story about the fire—but it was rejected . . . "This is a helluva big fire," Runyon protested . . . "Take it easy," the editor explained. "This is still 1906. A few months ago we had a real fire here in Frisco, and we're trying to get over it."

MUSIC DEPARTMENT: Alan Bush, the British composer, met Marc Blitzsten, complimented him for having written "The Cradle Will Rock" and regretted having missed seeing it . . . "A Brooklyn Drama Group is performing it tonight," Blitzsten invited, and so they went . . . After the performance, the author told Bush: "They made a mistake, in the third scene" . . . "It wasn't the third," Bush corrected. "It was the fourth" . . . "But you never saw it before," Marc asked. "How do you know?" . . . "Well," confessed the Britisher, "I've been lecturing on your show all year."

ILLUSTRATED SECTION: The Rockefellers no longer intend to be depicted as a serious minded group . . . Winthrop Aldrich, of the Rockefeller clan, went to the World's Fairgrounds to inspect some of the buildings, and the news-cameramen were about to photograph him . . . "Winthrop, Winthrop," Mrs. Aldrich interrupted. "'Don't let them catch you looking like that—so grouchish."

DRAMA DEPARTMENT: William Saroyan, the novelist, completed a new play called "A Fine How Do You Do" . . . A producer wrote and asked him what the play's about . . . "It's about the only thing that endures," was the reply . . . "But what is it which endures?" the producer insisted . . . "The only thing that endures," Saroyan explained, "is the young man (preferably with a young woman) who understands, smiles and says, 'Give me a beer. Give this girl one, too; she's a social worker—she used to be a debutante. Stuff like that.'"

SOCIAL NOTES: Arthur Kober, the playwright, went to see his mother—who told him of a party she had attended in The Bronx, where, after boasting of her son's accomplishments, another woman interrupted to say: "My son's a writer also. He also went to Hollywood a couple of times. He also got $3,000 a week there" . . . "What was that man's name?" Arthur asked . . . "Don't worry about it. You probably never heard of him," Mrs. Kober shrugged. "The name is something like Kingsley, Shmingsley."

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Dec. 28.—When you feel tired and discouraged just remember this story of our Dr. Ellis Jones, one of the greatest bone surgeons in this country. A dynamic, gentle, kind little man—it was he who a few years ago set the broken wrist of Jascha Heifetz, and no one ever knew a thing about it. The doctor worked himself into a major collapse, resulting in a major operation. That was nine months ago, and his recovery though sure was tedious.

HEDDA HOPPER

On one of the bluest days, a friend suggested that he write some of his experiences. Never having written he protested he wouldn't know how, but to please her he tried. His first attempt got the year's first prize of $1,000 from Liberty magazine. It was titled "City Hospital" and only ran 1,000 words. One dollar a word—isn't that more than our former Presidents get?

Una Merkel, who wears a nurses' uniform and is one of the head girls in "Four Girls in White," has been visiting her father, who's laid up in the Hollywood Hospital. The other day Una didn't have time to remove make-up or uniform, and while walking through the hospital corridor a young doctor warned her saying: "Better get some of that make-up off your face, or you won't linger long here." Una merely murmured, "Yes, sir"—and walked on.

On the "Wizard of Oz" set they've added 50 school children to the 150 midgets, being sure the kids were the same size. Makes it mighty difficult for Miss MacDonald and her staff of school teachers, because the minute a scene is finished they grab the kids for their lessons, and nine times out of ten what they find on their laps is a midget.

A teacher got Billy Curtis the other day and he piped up: "Hey, I'll have you know I'm public enemy No. one-half! And I'll have none of your soothing syrup. The University of Iowa gave me two degrees, and don't ask me what for."

It was Billy who called for help from the men's section of the studio, and Nelson Eddy rushed in and saved him from drowning. Billy's been trying to date up Judy Garland, but she prefers Jackie Cooper. All of which Billy thinks is sissy—he knows he's the better man!

Wonder if Greta Garbo and Stokie are planning to build in Santa Barbara? They're being wined and dined by a prominent architect up there.

Warner's tell you that John Garfield is not set for "Golden Boy" but Columbia tells another story.

Ruby Keeler's sister never has given up trying to get a place in movieland—is singing and dancing at Club 17, hoping to be discovered.

A New York actor who'd been on salary for months without any assignment went to his agent and complained. "You'll have to get me out of this. I can't take all this money, my conscience is bothering me."

Bob Hope overhearing this said, "Pay him another 10 per cent for your conscience, and you'll feel okay."

Bob's discovery, "Honey Child" Wilder, is on his program. You'll remember he gave her first chance when he discovered her—years ago.

Bing Crosby's start in "The Star Maker" has been delayed until the end of February. Charlie Rogers will introduce another 13-year-old wonder child in that one.

Special Shows Will Welcome The New Year

Midnight Performances Scheduled for Saturday And Sunday; New Bills

Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy return to Loew's Palace Theater this morning as co-stars in "Sweethearts," a modern Technicolor adaptation of some of the universally popular music by Victor Herbert. The duo are seen in their fifth musical together and a lavish production is provided by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for the screen play by Dorothy Parker and Alan Campbell. Frank Morgan, Ray Bolger, Mischa Auer, Florence Rice, Reginald Gardiner and Herman Bing are also in the cast, directed by W. S. Van Dyke 2d. Robert Benchley's latest short, "Mental Poise," is also on the bill, which is rounded out with "shorts" and newsreel. Special midnight shows will be given on both Saturday and Sunday nights.

Opening tomorrow morning and also playing complete midnight performances on both New Year's Eve and Sunday night, at Warner Brothers' Earle Theater, will be "Going Places," a light comedy with music which climaxes in the running of the Maryland Steeplechase. Anita Louise, Dick Powell, Ronald Reagan, Allen Jenkins and Walter Catlett are featured, with Louis Armstrong and Maxine Sullivan, Holland and Hart, dancers, will be the leading lights of the stage revue, "Frolics of 1939," which will also offer Harry Savoy, comedian; Freddy Dosh, impressionist; the 16 Earle Roxyettes and "The Find of the Month," Frank Hornaday, who will inaugurate a new feature at the Thirteenth street house.

"Up the River," a musical comedy lead in a football-conscious State penitentiary, opens at RKO-Keith's Theater tomorrow morning and will celebrate the new year by showing at midnight performances for both New Year's Eve and Sunday night. Preston Foster, Tony Martin, Phyllis Brooks, Slim Summerville, Arthur Treacher and Bill Robinson head the cast of this feature, which shares the screen with "The Practical Pig," relating further adventures of Walt Disney's "Three Little Pigs."

Loew's Capitol Theater offers the popular Hardy family in further of their adventures for the week beginning tomorrow, in "Out West With the Hardys." Complete midnight shows will be given on Saturday and Sunday nights. The picture features Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford, Cecilia Parker, Ralph Morgan and Virginia Weidler. The vaudeville bill at the F street house will include the Three Slate Brothers, the slapstick trio of revue fame; Charles Carlisle, radio tenor; Gloria Gilbert and Raymond Wilbert "(w)hopping it up," and the Chester Hale Capitol Comets in precision dances. Short subjects and the Fox Movietone News complete the holiday bill.

"Blondie," the comic strip character will continue her pleasantly hilarious career at the Metropolitan Theater through today, with Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake, Gene and Kathleen Lockhart and Larry Simms featured. Friday, and as yet unannounced film will open at the Metropolitan and will play midnight shows on both Saturday and Sunday.

Awarded top ranking by the National Board of Review, "The Citadel" returns to F street tomorrow, reopening at the Columbia Theater. Robert Donat plays a struggling and conscientious young doctor in this excellent transcription of Dr. A. J. Cronin's popular novel. The need of those living in squalid sections for medical care is stressed strongly in this film. Rosalind Russell is cast opposite Donat and Ralph Richardson and Rex Harrison lead the support. There will be midnight performances both Saturday and Sunday evenings.

With story, direction and acting by Sacha Guitry, "The Story of a Cheat" continues its run at the Belasco Theater. As its title implies, it is the story of a man whose fortune is with him when he is crooked and whose ruin is always brought about by his honest actions. The English subtitles of the French dialogue are by John Erskine. A "Strange As It Seems" novelty, a travelogue and newsreels complete the bill at the Lafayette square house.

The Trans-Lux Theater will hold over this week's featured short, "Ferdinand The Bull," for another seven days beginning with its new program tomorrow. "Bird Dogs," which shows the training of setters, pointers and spaniels from puppyhood to the blue ribbon; "We The People," which concerns Washington's favorite recreation spots, and a travelogue on our far West are also on the list of shorts at the Fourteenth street home of the newsreels.

The International Cinema Festival enters the homestretch at the Little Theater tomorrow when the Russian film, "Chapeyev," will be the attraction, through Saturday. Beginning Sunday the hilarious satire, "Carnival In Flanders," will be the feature through Tuesday. "The Unfinished Symphony," the musical romance based on the life of Franz Schubert, will be shown on Wednesday and Thursday of next week. "The Informer" and "The Plow That Broke The Plains" will close the festival.

Valerie Parks, an American exotic dancer, heads her own company of burlesque artists in the production which will open at the Gayety Theater with the New Year's matinee. Sharing honors with Miss Parks are Joe DeRita, comedian; Harry Meyers, homespun funster; Crystal Cook, Carol Drake and Patricia Joyce, display artists and Dorothy Sevier, soubrette. There will be a New Year's eve midnight performance.

The Children's Theater, of New York, with a cast of professional players, will present "Cinderella" at the National Theater tomorrow morning at 10:30. Clare Tree Major has supervised this dramatization of the famous fairy tale, in which Marijane Morley will be the girl who lost her slipper and Revell Widdcombe the Prince Charming.

Child Bride Is a Divorcee at 16

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

A bride at 14, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Frantz (above) became a divorcee yesterday at 16. Circuit Judge Padberg awarded her a divorce at St. Louis from Walter Scott Frantz, 22, and custody of their 14-month-old son. They were married July 22, 1936, and separated last July 29. Her husband nagged, was indifferent and showed no affection, she charged

Little

"Tales from the Vienna Woods," which opened a two-day run yesterday morning at the Little Theater, is a true descendant of those operettas peculiar to the light opera theaters of middle Europe. Its music, the waltzes by Johann Strauss, is its chief claim to distinction and its plot, situations, characters and humor are of that stock variety which culminate on the American stage (so far as this generation is concerned) in those charming, but changeless, revivals of "Blossom Time."

The Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra of a less frenzied era contributes some excellently swirling music when it plays a concert for the sake of the plot, which is one of those mistaken identity romances that make all match-makers wriggle in their chairs.

It is a modern story concerning the heiress who wants to be loved for her face and not for her fortune. The impoverished Count is supposed to marry her, but he falls, instead, for sweet little Millie. All sorts of minor pompous characters scramble the situation into something resembling grilled millionairs. Nevertheless, yesterday morning's audience seemed to get genuine amusement from the tried and true business of regulation operetta.

One falls into the temptation to compare this film with the other current musical based on the melodies of the Waltz King, "The Great Waltz," now playing further down F street. While it is not at all fair to compare them, for the Little Theater production antedates "The Great Waltz" by some time and is in a foreign tongue, there is a definite contrast which shows the American film to advantage. The photography of the Astrian work, as well as its direction, is less imaginative than the Duvivier version and emphasizes the expert technical skill which has made Hollywood undisputed in its world-wide popularity. In giving Washington audiences the opportunity to observe these technical differences, the International Cinema Festival has performed a definitely useful function.

The Little Theater has also revived "Cover to Cover," the British documentary film which, with a brief discussion of the history of communication, gives a pictorial biography of a book. How it is written, chosen for publication, printed and finally distributed, makes for a brief and interesting film. W. Somerset Maugham says a few words and Authoress Rebecca West baits male anger by saying that while most successful writers are men, if it were not for the women no readers would be brought into the world.

Gaal to Receive Academy Honor

When Franciska Gaal returns in the spring for her first visit in more than two years, she will be given a special award by the Budapest Academy of Drama as its most successful graduate of all time. The significance of this honor is emphasized by the fact that the Budapest Academy has been in existence more than 200 years. The award will be in the form of a specially worded scroll and a gold medal. Miss Gaal's latest motion picture is "The Girl Downstairs."

Stan Laurel Sued

Los Angeles, Dec. 28 (AP).—Dead Pan Stan Laurel's third wife, Vera Illeana, blonde stage dancer, sued him today for $1,500 a month separate maintenance, charging their honeymoon was crammed with nightmares of his former wives.

On his time off in the picture, Mickey Rooney, on location at Sacramento for "Huckleberry Finn," industriously trotted alongside Max Baer as the fighter did his road work in training for his warm-up fight preparatory to that with Joe Louis in February. It's a Small World For Irish Stars

Two Irish thespians who started their careers in Dublin's rival theaters have not only met for the first time in Hollywood, but they're being featured together in the same motion picture.

They are George Brent and Geraldine Fitzgerald, appearing with Bette Davis in her latest vehicle, "Dark Victory."

Brent started his professional career at the famed Abbey Theater, in Dublin. Miss Fitzgerald received her dramatic training and played her first roles at the competing Gate Theater.

Brent had completed his apprenticeship at the Abbey and was already on his way to America when Miss Fitzgerald started at the Gate.

Garfield Dunked In Acting Career

John Garfield insists he knows exactly how it feels to be a trained seal, the walrus in the zoo, or a tropical fish in an aquarium.

He spent exactly three hours up to his neck in water for scenes in one picture, then came oack to the Warner Bros. Studio later for a ten-hour submersion in another.

He and the "Dead End" boys worked in the morning in a "drowning" sequence for "They Made Me a Criminal." A big steel irrigation tank was their pool.

In the afternoon, night and next morning Garfield, working also in "Blackwell's Island," was constantly dunked in the studio tank, representing the East River, New York.

Postoffice Survey

The slogan "Shop Early, Mail Early" is said to have resulted in much better service and fewer disappointments due to belated delivery of Christmas gifts than in previous years, at least so far as the District of Columbia is concerned.

No doubt experience in other parts of the country has been much the same. For not only this year, but for a series of years, the Postoffice Department, aided by business organizations, has been urging users of its facilities to avoid last-minute rushes. This effort to stabilize business means not only better service but also reduced cost to the Postoffice Department, which is able to get along with less extra help during the period of peak business.

During the fiscal year ended last June 30, the department's annual report shows, postal revenues were higher than for any similar period in the history of the service. Judging from scattered reports of the record volume of Christmas mail, and in view of the improved business outlook for the current fiscal year, it is probable that the 1938-39 revenue receipts will reach a still higher mark.

Postal expenditures, happily, have not kept pace with rising income, despite the additional costs of the 40-hour-week law for postal employes and maintenance of many new postoffices. Just how expenses have been kept within bounds is not indicated in the official summary released in advance of publication of the annual report. But undoubtedly some of the saving is due to the co-operative attitude of the public toward "mail early" campaigns, and to some extent, to less frequent deliveries.

It is especially gratifying to learn that the department has a slight surplus for the past year from its actual postal business, after deducting somewhat over $48,000,000 for non-postal items. Nobody expects the postoffice to be operated so as to produce maximum profits. But large deficits would indicate that a certain section of the public was being subsidized at the expense of the people who make only limited use of postal facilities. So long as the department remains virtually self-supporting, it will be in a position to defend its fiscal policies against critical attacks.

On The List Of Reforms

Congressman Ramspeck has chosen an appropriate time to press for action on his civil service bill. By common consent the 1939 session of Congress will be largely devoted to amendment of statutes and correction of policies inaugurated under emergency conditions. Restoration and extension of the merit system ought to have a place high on the list of measures to be considered in such a session.

In his executive order of last June, President Roosevelt went as far as he could go in extending civil service rules and protection to unclassified Government employes. Legislation is now necessary to bring within the classified service agencies specifically exempted by law. Congress must curb its own appetite for spoils if further progress in the selection of personnel is to be made.

Some of the Federal agencies now outside the civil service system, the Home Owners Loan Corporation, the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Federal Housing Administration, for example, are the type which should be most closely guarded from political influences. Each of the three mentioned is a huge business organization devoted to public service. Obviously the employes of each should be chosen solely on the basis of their fitness.

The fact that 10 to 15 per cent of the Government employes chosen without benefit of the merit system usually fail to pass noncompetitive examinations suggests the urgency of the reform Mr. Ramspeck is sponsoring. His bill would eliminate incompetents from some of the most useful New Deal agencies. Unfortunately, it would not assure them of the most capable staffs available. Under the noncompetitive-examination plan employes meeting minimum requirements may remain. Had a genuine merit system been in effect at the beginning, positions could have been awarded on the basis of maximum and not minimum qualifications.

There is general agreement, however, that organizations once built up should not be demobilized to permit application of civil service rules. Considering the previous attitude of Congress, enactment of the Ramspeck bill, with its provision for noncompetitive tests, would be correctly regarded as a major achievement.

Our Indian Minority

Recent efforts to rescue the Indian from the shameful state to which he had been reduced by governmental mismanagement of his affairs are outlined in an interesting pamphlet prepared by Prof. Jay B. Nash, of New York University; Oliver La Farge, president of the American Association on Indian Affairs, and W. Carson Ryan of the Carnegie Foundation. One does not have to be directly interested in Indian problems to find significance in this record of past abuse and current reform.

According to these authorities, the groundwork for the new policy was laid by Charles J. Rhoads and J. Henry Scattergood during the Hoover Administration. But the most decided step forward came in the passage of the Indian reorganization act of 1934. That measure effected a reversal of the policy of trying to Americanize the Indian and gave the tribes a new opportunity to preserve their ancient traditions and customs.

Two factors create a widespread sympathy for the new policy. First, it is democratic. It gives the Indians a much better opportunity to manage their own affairs and to live as they please within the confines of general law. Second, the old policy was thoroughly discredited by the results it produced. Under the system of breaking tribal lands into individually owned plots Indian holdings shrank from 137,000,000 to less than 50,000,000 acres. Indians as a group became desperately poor. Their civil liberties were often suppressed. They were fast becoming not so much wards as dependents of the Government.

There seems no doubt that substantial improvements in the status and outlook of the Indians have been effected by the Roosevelt Administration. Indian land holdings are at last increasing. With their old institutions revived and encouraged, some of the tribes are awakening from their lethargy. Schools have been improved and are now much more closely related to Indian life on the reservations. The machinery of justice is no longer under the complete control of bureaucrats.

In these improvements, however, the investigators see only "the beginning of a liberal Indian program." Twelve statutes oppressive of civil liberties have been repealed; "a good many dozen" are still on the books. Indeed, the investigators find that "the Interior Department has not yet set its own house in order in the matter of civil liberties." Hundreds of obsolete regulations are said to remain in effect.

Of great significance at the present moment is the indictment that: "The honor of the United States is still compromised by hundreds of broken treaties with Indian tribes." The material welfare of the Indian, important as it is, can not today be considered the strongest argument for correction of this disgraceful record in dealing with a dispossessed and helpless minority.

Pursuit of the policy now in effect may not offer a complete solution of the Indian problem. Indeed, it may make the Indian's relations with the rest of the country more difficult. But it does recognize the right of this conquered minority to live as it chooses, to preserve its own customs and way of life. And that may be far more important from the native viewpoint than any economic advantages which he may obtain from assimilation in an alien culture.

District Health Problem

President Roosevelt's awakened interest in the District's health problems is all to the good. He has discussed the subject with Representative Collins, chairman of the House District Appropriations subcommittee, and it is evident that he intends to use his influence to induce Congress to make more generous provision for the essential health needs of the District.

There is no need to expatiate upon the inadequacy of the facilities for medical care in the Nation's Capital or to call attention to the city's unenviable record as a breeding ground for tuberculosis. Such facts are well known. But it is not so generally realized that Washington's failure to meet the challenge of preventable disease and maintain the health standards of more progressive municipalities is not primarily attributable to local indifference or inertia. It is rather a product of a governmental system that puts a premium upon penny pinching budgetary economies secured at the expense of District residents.

No doubt the President will be able to make some headway if he launches a vigorous campaign to improve health conditions in the District. However, there is no assurance that gains would be preserved should he lose interest or should his successor fail to follow his lead. The poor health record of the District, as well as its inferior achievements in other fields of municipal activity, is not likely to be permanently bettered so long as the present multiple budget system permits Federal officials out of touch with local needs to prune again and again the original estimates of the District Commissioners.

After the Commissioners have prepared their estimates of expenditures for health and all other purposes, for instance, they are sent to the Federal Budget Bureau for scrutiny and revision. Then they go to District Appropriations sub-committees of House and Senate for further examination, with House and Senate inspection to follow before final approval. The result is that the revised estimates which finally emerge frequently diverge widely from the amounts actually needed.

Under such a system it is not surprising that the District's health needs have been neglected by a Congress knowing little, and seemingly caring less, about the welfare of this voteless community. President Roosevelt's active interest in elevating local health standards encourages the hope that he will appreciate the need for a more responsible form of local government managed by officials who formulate and carry out local spending programs without constant interference from irresponsible Federal officials.

A Political Offensive

The furious offensive launched a week ago by Gen. Franco appears to be far more political than military in its motivation, timed with an eye to the international situation rather than as a result of purely tactical considerations.

At this season of the year the mountains and valleys of Catalonia are deep in snow, with the temperature frequently falling to zero. No more unfavorable time, from the viewpoint of weather conditions, could have been chosen by the Spanish Nationalists for large-scale military action.

What, then, moved Gen. Franco to embark on this offensive? It is possible to suspect that one factor may have been dissensions and difficulties behind the insurgent lines. A positive military victory could be expected to curtail unrest which has become apparent even through the veil of Nationalist censorship. And it is to be remembered that for six months, prior to the beginning of the present thrust, the insurgents were held completely at bay by the government forces, gaining during that time not a single square mile of Loyalist territory.

Probably of more immediate moment, however, in inducing Franco to launch his legions against the Republicans at this time, is the international situation. His ace card is the terrible shortage of food and supplies on the government side. Were it possible for the Nationalists to extend their lines along the entire length of the French frontier they might well starve Madrid into submission. Such outcome would be more certain with a grant of belligerent rights to Franco from France and Great Britain.

This step France has refused to consider unless and until Italy is willing to withdraw a far more substantial portion of her "volunteers" from Spain than she has shown any disposition to do up to now. And Great Britain is evidently backing France in this resolve.

Early next month Neville Chamberlain is to visit Premier Mussolini at Rome. Spain is certain to be one subject of discussion and Franco-Italian relations another. It is possible that Mr. Chamberlain might be induced to get France to change her stand on the Spanish issue if, at the same time, Italy ends her efforts to intimidate the French government. But for domestic reasons, as well as out of consideration for French susceptibilities, the British prime minister will scarcely see his way to favoring Franco unless the prospect of an ultimate Nationalist triumph in Spain has again become bright.

In launching his offensive at this unseasonable time, therefore, Gen. Franco is actuated by invisible wires. The Duce needs an impressive Nationalist victory in Spain, secured at whatever cost, as a counter in his forthcoming dealings with Chamberlain. And the same counter could be very useful in forcing the hands of France. The gamble is a risky one, for if this drive is stalled, the insurgent position will be exceedingly shaky. But those who are laying down their lives in the mountains of Catalonia know more of cold and pain and terror than of the politics behind it all.

Zona Gale

It is usual to place Zona Gale among that regional school of American novelists which occupied so much of the stage throughout the prolific 1920's and which still shows considerable hardihood, as witness last year's success of "Slogum House" and the current success of "The Yearling." Certainly, Zona Gale made her native Portage, Wis., under its own name and others, more familiar to many American readers than Xanadu or Sarpedon.

But even though Zona Gale was herself of the whole stuff of Wisconsin, including the indigenous Progressivism, the focus of interest in her better known books is not upon the locale but upon the characters. Miss Cather's Antonia, for instance, is inseparable from her prairies, and in "Main Street" it is the conflict of Mrs. Kennicott and Gopher Prairie that makes the story. But Miss Lulu Bett and Mr. Marshall Pitt are in a way altogether independent of place. Either of them could have lived and died in, say, West Philadelphia, or East Aurora, without essential alteration in their destinies and pathos.

It is this quality in Zona Gale's work that gives the best of it some title to a permanent place in American literature. If Miss Lulu Bett falls short of being a universal woman, in the sense that Cordelia and Electra are universal, there is in her, nevertheless, something of the universal tragedy of the dependent spinster.

Conditions In The South

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In The Post of December 27, a letter from E. B. Henderson says, among other things, "in some sections the Southland still shows many schools, homes and living conditions lower than those among savage tribes, largely due to the fact that there are people in the South who would rather wallow in the gutter than rise in the economic or social scale if people for whom they have distinct aversion should also rise higher."

I do not wish to take issue with Mr. Henderson, but for the sake of fairness to the Southern people, and to Mr. Henderson, I ask that he state the exact places in the South to which he has reference, giving States and counties, and if he has seen the conditions about which he writes; and if so, when? If he cannot comply with this request, I ask that he state the authority on which he bases his statement and his reason for thinking that authority correct.

I would also like for Mr. Henderson to state what savage tribes he refers to as a basis of comparison. If Mr. Henderson will omit all generalities in his reply he will set a high standard for the letter writers to The Post, many of whom seem to use the opportunity to express personal opinion rather than present unquestionable facts and constructive thought.

Mr. Hull At Lima

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The part which our Secretary of State had in the Lima Conference will be a theme for many columnists. The one outstanding fact to this writer is Mr. Hull's triumph by force of moral integrity. Without resort to tricks, subterfuge, or any form of cross-cutting, he has, once again, as he did in London, won the compelled respect of the delegates to that critical South American conference. The faith of our people and of the world is strengthened by the fact that despite dictatorial rule that is rampant in the world and despite the implications we hear on every hand that armed force is the only force the world knows and respects today, one quiet man of peace-loving spirit, but wonderful consideration and patience, can bring a discordant, semi-belligerent conference of largely Latin peoples, to see the beauty and utility of genuine tolerance, yet with no sacrifice of principle.

Here we see statesmanship as opposed to political maneuverings. Even if in the Secretary of State's absence rashness took the place of calm counsel, and a subordinate, following the lead of a man of the Senator Borah type, came perilously near rushing us into the war spirit which is a prelude of war, Germany must see in the master hand of our Secretary of State a man who will go the length in point of patience, but who, like all such men, is a lion at bay when patience has ceased to be a virtue.

The Rome-Berlin Axis

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In The Post of December 18, Miss Sonia Tomara referred to the current expression "Rome-Berlin Axis" as having been pronounced for the first time by Mussolini on November 1, 1936, in Milan. Quoting Mussolini, Miss Tomara further said:

"The Berlin-Rome understanding is not a barrier. It is rather an axis around which all European states animated by a desire for peace may collaborate."

I regret to contradict your paper, but that expression "axis" was heard by me in France at least ten years before the date asumed by Miss Tomara. The word "axis" itself first appeared about the early part of 1923, shortly after Signor Mussolini had firmly established himself as leader of Italian politics, when the expression "Fiume-Danzig peace axis" originated.

The Fiume-Danzig peace axis had a distinct political purpose to achieve in Europe. It was clearly intended as a line of demarcation against the possibility of a renascent pan-Germanism attempting an expansion towards the east. In the light of political opinions of those days, that "axis" was the only way to preserve the peace of Europe, and to prevent another conflagration like the one of 1914-1918.

The "axis" was nothing short of an anti-pan-Germanic line-up of the east and west to prevent Germany as a leading Teutonic power from attempting any territorial aggression against her neighbors. The line Fiume-Danzig clearly meant that Germany had to remain west of that line. The line-up in the east was understood to be formed by Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Rumania. In the south, by Yugoslavia and Italy. In the west, by France, Belgium, and Great Britain.

In order to give a concrete meaning to that Fiume-Danzig axis, Signor Mussolini granted several loans to Poland, Rumania, Czecho-Slovakia, Yugoslavia, and Greece. These loans, dating as far back as 1924, were used for exchange stabilization with Italy and for the purchase of Italian armaments. Thus, Mussolini forecast the necessity of keeping Germany within bounds. His chief aim was to forestall a too-strong pan-Germanic group in central Europe likely to be a menace to Greater Italy. With the idea in mind, he was forever anxious about the existence and independence of Austria. As recently as June, 1936, Signor Mussolini told the French journalist, Bertrand de Jouvenel: "With France I will defend Czecho-Slovakia. With Italy, Franch will defend Austria."

But post-war politics of France and England underestimated the powers of the new Italian leader. There is no doubt that both countries had for a long time snubbed Mussolini. Later, England backed Mussolini against France, and at this time England is reaping the results. Gradually, Signor Mussolini challenged the power of both France and England, with the result that the Fiume-Danzig axis slowly shifted ground and became the Rome-Berlin axis. The original intention of the "axis" also underwent a radical change. Instead of continuing as a defensive anti-pan-Germanic line-up, it became an offensive German-Italian pact as we know it today. The interpretation given to it by Mussolini, as cited by Miss Tomara, is only a political camouflage.

Long before the advent of Hitler, we find that Italy had already cast her lot with republican Germany. We can trace the rapprochement as far back as the Centrist Government of Marx, and the Social-Democrat of Muller (1923-1928). Dissatisfied with her post-war status in Europe, Italy aimed to strike a blow at the Anglo-French hegemony in both Europe and in the Mediterranean. The necessity of presenting a strong front against France and England became more and more manifest. Hitler, in 1931, supplied the missing link needed by Mussolini.

As for the present tension between France and Italy, the Paris paper L'Eclair referred to it on January 26, 1924, thus: "In Italy, francophobia seems to be the rule of fashion." Referring to the Fiume-Danzig axis, the French paper Le Message d'Athenes in its issue of February 11, 1924, said: "Italy has her own way to make. She is apt to create a new groupment of power in central Europe in order to attain the realization of her aims."

The TVA Yardstick

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In the opinion of myself and friends who have spoken to me about it, Ernest Lindley's article on "The TVA Yardstick" in The Post of December 19 is just about the best piece of journalism we have seen on the TVA investigation affair.

It gives the busy, honest-minded but puzzled citizen facts on different sides of the question—which he can feel are facts—enabling him to do some informed thinking of his own. He can feel that he is not being imposed upon by an undercover propagandist.

That, you will agree with me, is real journalism and I may say that that is what keeps The Post on my breakfast table along with the New York Times. What I need and what I think the public wants is not "liberal" newspapers or "conservative" newspapers, but newspapers.

By and large, I think the fashion in which the American press as a whole has handled this entire TVA investigation is a disgrace to American journalism, not because the papers do not take my side of the controversy, but because they play up as front-page stuff the most glaring falsehoods which come as "charges" which they must have known were sheer bunk and then played down on the fourteenth page substantial testimony of reliable TVA officials of news value which showed those charges outright lies or twisted interpretations of the real situation.

The point is here. For a quarter of a century I have heard liberal-minded people growl over the so-called "kept press," but in this period those growls are turning into expressions of hate and outright disgust, and you know what that means to the long-run standing of newspapers.

JUDSON KING,
Director National Popular Government League.

Reply To Economists

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

It is with a feeling of unfitness to match wits with so erudite a group that I now differ with the 69—count 'em—economists and college professors who from their seats at Harvard, Chicago, etc., have petitioned the President not to drop the WPA.

It is only necessary to add that in this crude and humble opinion these learned authorities are all wet. It now remains for 69 other economists, equally learned, and perhaps better equipped with practical wisdom, to file demands for squelching the thing which, as much as any other New Dealism, is to blame for our present economic plight.

"The expansion of the spending program was the chief governmental weapon used in fighting the recession and stimulating the recovery," say the academicians. Yes, professors, but isn't there a point where weapons should be sheathed and an armistice declared?

They continue: "Such a policy would involve throwing some million breadwinners into destitution. Such cut . . . might even cause a serious setback in business activity."

What setback could outshine the one that has created the army of 12,000,000 unemployed and left alone will perpetuate it; that has raised debt to record figures, and blocked the channels of private capital?

What's more, my learned friends, the official findings of the British government are surely in your files. They concern efforts to promote recovery by public work, free spending and radical experiments. Also open to your infallible discernment are the favorable results that followed abandonment of such policies, in the face of just such protests as you are now registering.

"The Light That Failed"

WE WAVED GOODNIGHT and a Merry Christmas to our friends, and turned back to the gayly bedecked living room. It was 1 o'clock, and we were drugged with weariness. It was pleasant to sit down quietly and rest, basking in the satisfaction of our completed handiwork.

The room had assumed an air of tidy disarray. There were two stockings bulging with exciting lumps, bright packages piled in the corner, and sprays of hemlock and holly had replaced bittersweet and ivy in the flower bowls. From the piano an old-fashioned pomander made by a thoughtful friend threw its spicy fragrance about the room, calling to mind the frankincense of the Magi's gifts. Between the south windows, the tree bloomed radiantly, with each string of lights behaving as it should.

The decorations were part and parcel of many Christmases. There were balls of varying ages and degrees of brightness, and loops of silver tinsel that bound the tree into a shining Christmas package. There was the silly glass canary that always stood on its head, and the tiny trumpet that would really blow, reminding one of the first far-off golden note that the shepherds must have heard.

But the homemade decorations were my favorites. The children had spent rainy afternoons making long chains of metallic paper, and red and green cornucopias to be filled with hard candies. There were dozens of six-sided snow crystals, their lacy shapes fragile against the dark cedar boughs. And on the top was the star.

Donnie had made it in bed after his tonsils were taken out, and it had kept him busy and happy for a whole morning. The points were not all of the same length, and there were lumps of paste under the tinfoil, but he had cut and pasted it himself with infinite care and patience.

As he made it, I sat by his bed and retold the story of the shepherds and Wise Men. Although he had often heard it before, as the symbol came into being under his own small hands, it was vitalized into something more than a familiar tale. I watched his face as he looked up at me from his work, and could see the first real conception of the beginning of Christmas forming in his 5-year-old mind; that the star he was making had become, by some mysterious process of transmutation, the Star of Bethlehem.

Tonight, after the stockings were hung, Donnie had gone over to the bare green tree that awaited Santa's magic touch. The boxes of balls and tinsel were stacked underneath, and in one by itself lay the star, with a hole cut in the center to hold a light. He looked at it silently, then turned to me.

"Santa Claus will know, won't he? He'll know that it's the star, and he'll put it at the top? He will, won't he?" There was an urgency in his voice, and I knew that the star was tremendously important to him.

And now, at 1 oclock on Christmas morning, we sat and looked about us with weary satisfaction. We were ready, and the star shone brightly on the topmost twig of the tree. Then, silently and inexplicably, the lights went out.

My husband groaned, for we had wrestled with burnt-out lights all evening. We were relieved to find that the trouble this time was only a disconnected plug. The lights came on again—all except the string that lighted the star.

We reached for a spare bulb and started testing. The cord was twined in and out among the branches and hung with icicles for furtther concealment. There were eight bulbs, and after we had tested them all it dawned upon our tired minds that we had used a dead bulb. The clock struck the half hour.

In deadly earnest now, and somewhat more awake, we followed the circuit through once more. My husband suggested that we change the wires and use another string for the top, but that involved a full retrimming of the tree. It occurred to us that perhaps two bulbs were burnt out, so we denuded a string that that was behaving properly and started changing over. Our fingers were numb and awkward, and balls kept falling off. A candy cane crashed loudly to the floor. There was a stir in the next room and we held our breath, but the sound died away. We forced ourselves to go more slowly and carefully. At last the final bulb went in, and once more the tree lit up with the star shining at the top. It was after 2 when we turned out the lights and went to bed.

On Christmas morning I held the children in their rooms until my husband could go into the living room and turn on the lights. Then we opened the door. There was a moment of silence as they gazed in wordless wonder. My eyes followed theirs to the tree, and I saw in one black instant that the light of the star was out. There was a sick feeling at the pit of my stomach. For I realized that to us, as well as to Donnie, the star had become more than paste and paper. It was a symbol of childish faith, and I found that we had built our own Christmas upon a light that did not shine.

And then a miracle happened. Oh, I know that the explanation is simple enough and that a step or a slight jar to the cord must have closed the contact. But I prefer to think, in this most blessed of seasons, that something unearthly took place. For the Star of Bethlehem shone out of the darkness with a sudden light. And it has not failed us again.

Outstanding Commentators On Current Events At Home And Abroad

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Pegler's Bequest

FINDING HIMSELF in a mellow, holiday mood, the author of these dispatches has decided to do something rather handsome for posterity.

PEGLER

You know how it is when great writers die and leave their papers in a jumble. Their kinfolk fail to appreciate the importance to the world of the spoiled leads, the magazine rejects, the letters, and all, which lie about their desks, and permit these priceless mementos to be carried off as souvenirs by percipient worshipers or just thrown away and burned as trash. Or, if their kinnery be smart and without public spirit, these papers become the private property of their heirs and are kept in private possession, inaccessible, except by special permission, grudgingly given, if given at all, to students of the life and times, the inner character and achievements of the deceased.

IN EITHER CASE the result is a great loss or great denial to the world in after years, and any man with the sense of value to permit him to recognize his own greatness and the courage to admit it to himself and the public owes it to mankind to make appropriate arrangements.

Therefore your correspondent has decided to bequeath the contents of his desk to the public. The letters on the right-hand pile are the latest ones, and those on the left have been lying around for some time, awaiting answers. Quite a lot of them never will be answered, anyway, because your correspondent doesn't know the answers, and there are others in both heaps which will not be answered because they are indecipherable.

THERE ARE ALSO a lot of books and pamphlets for and against Nazi-Fascism and communism, and it has often occurred to your correspondent, along with a distinct chill, that if it ever should happen here, one way or another, he wouldn't stand a Chinaman's chance in one of those kitchen-table people's courts, because he surely would be caught with subversive literature. The communists would blow him through for a counter-revolutionist for possessing the Hitler and Mussolini stuff accumulated in Europe, and the Fascists, turned to bullets instead of ballots, would refuse to believe that the Browder and Trotsky stuff was innocently held. That, however, is just an aside.

The obstacle to this decision was a mere matter of taste and self-appreciation. Yet, if a President perceives himself to be a latter-day Lincoln and his political opponents traitors of the contemptible type who beset the path of the martyr, it is his duty to the world to admit his greatness and take steps to preserve the records of his struggle for future generations. A too-sensitive regard for modesty might object, but such a man's very greatness would carry him over this petty obstacle and give him the candor to recognize himself as a historic if, in some quarters, insufficiently appreciated benefactor.

IF A GREAT MAN foresees that in 50 or 100 years the people will wish they had a shrine to him, equipped with papers and intimate relics of interest to historians and of inspiration to citizens, he should not wait for the future to confirm his own opinion.

With the case of William Shakespeare in mind, your correspondent has decided to obviate the deplorable confusion and doubts which have befogged the record and to prevent any necessity, 300 years from now, for delving into the honored grave of his contemporary, Hugh S. Johnson, for a solution of the question, "Did this egg have a Bacon?"

As to the matter of archives and a shrine to Gen. Johnson, he himself will have to make his own decision. Maybe he thinks he is pretty good; and, if so, he certainly should make the necessary arrangements; but, speaking strictly for himself, your correspondent is determined to do this for posterity and let the jeers rise if they must.

THE SHAKESPEARE trouble would have been avoided had he had the wisdom to know how well he wrote and the consideration for posterity to provide a neat bundle and a sworn statement covering the Bacon thing, accompanied by affidavits from witnesses.

Of course, there may be critics of the moment who will see ill taste, perhaps even mild presumption, in your correspondent's own acknowledgment of his worth, but let them scoff and let it be hoped that 300 years from now, for humiliation of their memory and the vindication of true vision, some record of their estimate will be preserved in the same collection.

They scoffed at Shakespeare, didn't they?

Free Rides for Life Reward Russ Workers

Moscow, Dec. 28 (AP).—A Soviet decree today authorized medals for workers, entitling them to ride free on all Soviet street cars for life.

The medals for "labor valor" and "labor prominence" carry with them monthly stipends of 10 and 5 rubles ($2 and $1) respectively.

They are to go to workers who set outstanding examples of high production in the number of tons of coal mined, cotton picked, wheat raised and other tasks.

Japanese 'Invasion'

By Vicente Albano Pacis

Economic Penetration Of Philippines

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Manila.

WHEN PRESIDENT Manuel L. Quezon, the other day, boarded his yacht for a brief overnight rest, the American daily paper in Manila reported that perhaps he went out to help chase some of the 200 Japanese who mobbed the police force of the municipality of Coron Island, off the northern tip of Palawan, then dispersed in fast launches.

The report was false, but the mobbing was true. Commonwealth authorities are now investigating the incident with much secrecy in an attempt to avoid any international complication. Although the attack occurred over a week ago, Manila heard about it only when the body of the only casualty, a Japanese, was brought here several days later. The party of Japanese who brought the cadaver on a motorboat also took along by force a Chinese eye-witness of the fight.

The fact that the leaders of the mob, together with their dead, came straight to Manila to submit to official investigation indicated that the Japanese did not come directly from Japan on a mission of invasion. Nevertheless the authorities rushed a government cutter to the scene with orders to pursue "the fleeing Japanese," on the theory that they were probably making a bee-line for Formosa. A week later, the cutter returned to Manila with the report it had arrested only 19 of the 200 attackers.

ALL THE TIME, however, most of the Japanese were in Manila, having returned on their launches to their moorings in the Pasig River. Investigation further revealed that all the launches they used were owned by and registered in the name of Filipino citizens. Investigators believe that they had happened upon one of the frequent cases of Japanese citizens exploiting Philippine natural resources through Filipino "dummies."

For years, there have been semiofficial reports to the effect that, by using native "dummies," Japanese have been able to do the following in the Philippines:

1. Acquire lands, especially in Davao.
2. Acquire fishing concessions and set up fishing corporations.
3. Acquire lumber concessions and set up lumber firms.
4. Engage in manufacturing and other activities through corporations with Filipinos acting as "dummy" directors and stockholders.

IN DAVAO, the Japanese landholding is extensive, and it is no secret that many Japanese landowners there came upon their properties through native wives. Aside from Christian and Moro Filipinos, Davao and the rest of Mindanao are inhabited by a handful of an aboriginal tribe who, being native to the country, are accorded the same rights and privileges as the civilized Filipinos. Japanese immigrants have freely intermarried with aboriginal women and through them secured extensive public lands, most of which are now abaca plantations.

Partly through this process, Davao, one of the richest provinces of Mindanao, has become a veritable Japanese colony. The capital of the province has at least 14,000 Japanese inhabitants who own most of the cultivated lands and the public utilities. They maintain their own temples and schools, their own clubs and businessmen's associations. They live separate and apart from the Filipinos and trade directly with Japan.

Their children go to schools that for all practical purposes are part and parcel of the official Japanese educational system, and therefore completely outside of the Philippine school system. A considerable number of Filipino children are enrolled in these Japanese schools and are getting a Japanese education. Thus, even now, it can be said that instead of the Japanese immigrants being assimilated, they are assimilating the Filipinos.

THE PHILIPPINE CONSTITUTION and laws are definite in their prohibition against aliens in the exploitation of natural resources. But the waters of the Philippines, including Manila Bay, are swarming with Japanese fishermen. The 200 Japanese wanted by the Government for the Coron attack are fishermen. It is generally believed that these Japanese and their Japanese employers own duly registered fishing corporations for which Filipinos, some of them well-known businessmen, appear as "dummies."

What is true in fishing is true in the lumber business. There are lumber concessions secured in the names of well-known Filipino citizens, yet observers declare that hardly a Filipino intervenes in the operations from logging to marketing the lumber, all the personnel being Japanese. The "dummy" method seems to obtain in many instances whenever the prohibition against aliens in the case of natural resources has to be subverted.

In enterprises in which there is no prohibition against aliens, the Japanese in the Philippines are even more aggressive. Manila's Rizal avenue, a downtown commercial center, is practically all Japanese on one side, and the Manila situation is typical of practically every other Philippine town that has a commercial district. Only recently a Japanese firm put up the most modern brewery plant in the Philippines to compete against Manila's only brewery, located next door to Malacanan Palace, the residence of the President of the Philippines, and Spanish-owned.

ONE OF THE MOST ticklish problems of an independent Philippines will be how to keep out other Orientals from overrunning the country. Foreseeing this, the government has suddenly adopted the policy of strictly applying the American immigration laws, especially those against Orientals. This was partly prompted also by the current investigation of anomalies in the immigration office, almost exclusively involving Chinese, and partly by the growing alien participation in the development and harvest of Philippine natural resources.

Hypnotic Quality In Hitler's Speech Called His Power

Cleveland, Dec. 28 (AP).—A scientific experiment shows that the words of Adolf Hitler reduce his listeners to a submissive state bordering closely on hypnotism, Prof. M. D. Steer of Purdue University, told the Convention of American Speech Teachers today.

Describing the German Fuehrer as one of the men who has done most in recent times to cause "choral thinking," Dr. Steer explained that the frequency of the Nazi leader's voice in a typical sentence is 238 vibrations per second as compared with the 220 vibrations cited by one authority as the "usual frequency" for anger.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Level Of Spending

AS BETWEEN Senator Byrd and Chairman Eccles there is an issue of far-reaching importance; but they have not yet, it seems to me, defined the issue clearly enough. The fact from which they both have to start is, however, plain. The gross annual expenditures of the New Deal are rather more than twice the Federal expenditures of ten years ago.

LIPPMANN

The old budgets used to be fixed between $3,500,000,000 and $4,000,000,000; the new budgets have been fixed between $7,000,000,000 and nearly $9,000,000,000.

The underlying question at issue between Mr. Byrd and Mr. Eccles is at what level of expenditure the budget ought to be balanced. Mr. Byrd believes it should be balanced at something like the predepression level, say at $5,000,000,000, and Mr. Eccles thinks it should be balanced at the existing level, say at $8,000,000,000. This is the main difference between them, though there is a secondary dispute which follows from the main dispute.

The secondary dispute is this: Neither Mr. Byrd nor Mr. Eccles thinks that the tax rates ought to be increased. On this they agree. Then, because Mr. Byrd wants to cut expenditures drastically, he can argue that the budget should be balanced immediately. But Mr. Eccles, who does not believe that expenditures should be reduced, has to argue that the budget cannot be balanced until we have such enormous prosperity that the existing tax rates will yield not $5,000,000,000 of revenue, but $8,000,000,000, or $9,000,000,000.

THE CRUX of the question is always the level at which the Government's expenditures should be set. If the level is lowered, the budget can be balanced; if the level is not lowered, it cannot be balanced except temporarily at the very peak of a boom.

Both men realize this. Both men realize also that either the Government must provide relief or private industry must provide more employment. Mr. Byrd believes that retrenchment will revive confidence that will stimulate private industry. And Mr. Eccles believes that only Government spending in excess of tax collections will create a demand for goods that will produce the profits that will evoke the confidence that will stimulate private industry.

But underlying all their differences of opinion as to whether prosperity can be promoted by retrenchment or by spending, there is the fundamental question as to whether an $8,000,000,000 rather than a $5,000,000,000 budget is to be normal. Mr. Byrd thinks the $8,000,000,000 level insane and disastrous and abnormal; Mr. Eccles thinks it humane and necessary and permanent.

WE MUST ASK ourselves, then, whether it is true that an $8,000,000,000 budget is now permanently necessary. Obviously, the new high level is a permanent one if the Government is to continue to provide relief, to pay a subsidy to agriculture, to provide cheap money for the construction industry, to maintain the veterans' payments and social security. There can be some economy, no doubt. But real retrenchment, to the tune of two or three billions a year, can be had only by suspending many of the activities of the Government.

Now these activities cannot be suspended or even seriously curtailed and neither party in Congress and no important faction in either party has the slightest intention of making any move which will seriously reduce the level of expenditure. If businessmen and taxpayers now think that the Republicans will propose retrenchment, they are due for a rude awakening.

AND THAT BRINGS us to the really grave question in this whole business. It is this: Not only is there no prospect of reducing the level of the budget, not only is the present budget a more or less permanent minimum, but the whole pressure of politics will be toward a continually rising level of expenditure.

For the Federal budget has now become a platform, a floor, which sustains wage rates, farm incomes, many industrial prices. State and municipal activities all over the country. The WPA and the social security act plus the Labor Board plus the wages and hours law plus the prevailing wage clauses in Government contracts, hold wage rates well above the market level. That part of the population which is not employable at these rates is the relief population. The farm subsidies hold the net income of farmers above the level to which they would fall in a free market. The loans and grants to States and cities maintain those governments at a level of activity above that which their own taxpayers would support.

A drastic reduction of the budget level at any one of these vital points would be like removing the supports of the platform on which crowds of people stand.

THIS IS CLEARLY a very dangerous situation. It is, let us admit, not immediately dangerous, for the country is able to afford the expenditures it now makes. But it is dangerous for the future because it is a one-way process which no politician can check: the Federal Government is all engine and no brakes, and there is no real popular restraint upon the popular demand for more and more expenditures.

There is but one brake on which any reliance can be put, and that is to make taxes general and visible, and to have the tax rate go up or down automatically with every increase or decrease of expenditure. Appealing to the present income-tax payers will accomplish nothing. They are too small a minority. It is only by making the voters who elect the Congressmen who appropriate become also the taxpayers who pay the bill that the process of ever-expanding expenditure can possibly be brought under control.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Our Own Inquiring Reporter

Q.—What's the significance of that "trylon and perisphere" at the New York World's Fair? How do you interpret them?

Twitchell, Elmer, Smiffen Court.—It looks to me like a golf tee and a ball, that's all. It's symbolic of the world of today and of tomorrow. Nobody wants to do much else now but play golf and all we will ask tomorrow are larger cups on putting greens.

Bissell, Gregory H., Chicago.—I think it is meant to be a chicken croquette and a hard-boiled egg. I'm not good on symbolism, but I take it that the croquette is symbolic of the fair: there's a little of everything in it. The egg is put in for extra nourishment.

Pitsby, Dudley G., Kansas City.—I've been hearing about the trylon and perisphere for a year and I come East to take a look at it. I think it is meant to be an eye-dropper and a headache pill. I can't understand the idea of the eye-dropper, but that headache pill is certainly the symbol of tomorrow.

Boggle, Cassius R., Freeport, Long Island.—I read in the paper a letter from a contributor who said he thought it was a hypodermic needle and the eight ball, and it is the best interpretation I have seen yet.

Scrimmett, Arthur O., Philadelphia, Pa.—I have just returned from the fair grounds. I can't make out just what the trylon and perisphere are supposed to be, but my guess is that they are an old-fashioned toothpick and a peppermint ball. If you have ever eaten the food you get at these world's fairs and carnivals you will understand.

Hostetters, Clarence D., St. Paul.—Are they going to have pinball games at the New York World's Fair, and, if so, are they the motif? If so, it's all clear. The perisphere represents a pinball and the trylon is supposed to be one of those pins it hits on the way down so the machine won't pay off.

Gozzle, Theodore G., Galveston, Tex.—I came to New York last week and the first thing I did was to go out and look at this here trylon and perisphere. I give up.

Grompett, Mark W., San Mateo, Calif.—Taking just a quick look at it, I should say it looked like an old and somewhat dim print of Weber and Fields. There was the same relative difference in shape and size.

Tompkins, Asa G., Boston, Mass.—It looked to me like an ice cream cone (vanilla) standing beside a doughnut, but what it means is beyond me.

Grover Whalen, New York City, the man behind the fair.—I don't know either. I looked out one morning and there they were. All I can say is that we're making the most of 'em.

"I hate fireplaces—you burn up on one end and freeze on the other!"

Eccles' View Of 'Rights'

By Mark Sullivan

A Disturbing Thought

MR. MARRINER S. ECCLES is head of the Federal Reserve System. As such he has much power over the financial affairs of the Government. Mr. Eccles is chief in that school of thought, within the Administration, that believes in heavy Government spending. This week he has stated his belief, emphatically and emotionally, in a controversial letter to Senator Harry Byrd, of Virginia, who believes in reduced Government spending.

SULLIVAN

Possibly because Mr. Eccles was in an angry mood he made statements which, if accepted literally, would be disquieting. I quote some of them, and interpret them as they seem to me. I do so, subject to the qualification that there is always risk of misleading in quoting detached sentences from any document.

Justifying Government spending and consequent Government debt, Mr. Eccles hotly asks Senator Byrd: "Do you consider that Government debt is evil, whereas private debt is not? . . . Do not the same general economic considerations apply to both private and public debt?"

IT IS POSSIBLE that the qualifying word "economic" saves that sentence from having the meaning which seems inherent in the spirit of it. Yet this sentence, in connection with other expressions from Mr. Eccles at various times, seems to imply an attitude which, if Mr. Eccles really has it, would be gravely disturbing.

Does Mr. Eccles really think there is no difference between private debt and Government debt? No difference between the aggregate of debts incurred voluntarily by millions of private citizens and the debt that is imposed by Government? No difference between a debt arising between two citizens, in which one voluntarily undertakes an obligation and the other voluntarily undertakes a risk, a debt which may or may not be paid—and on the other hand a debt imposed by Government which takes priority over all other debts and which must be paid by taxes?

In this sentence, and in other expressions by Mr. Eccles, there is an implication that he habitually thinks of America not as the aggregate of 130,000,000 separate individuals, but as an organism containing 130,000,000 members—that he thinks of America not as a society of free men and women each exercising free will, but as a bee hive. If you really think that way, Mr. Eccles, watch your step. That way lies authoritarian government. That way lies Germany, and Italy, and Russia.

IN MR. ECCLES' statement is another sentence which seems to imply a similar attitude, and which certainly does not contribute anything to the clear thinking which America greatly needs.

Mr. Eccles says: "I believe that the most basic right of all is the right to live, and next to that, the right to work . . . Further than the right to eat and the right to a position, I think the individual, whether rich or poor, has a right to a decent place to live."

Right to live, of course. A classic American document, 162 years old now and still sound, says "that all men are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Observe that the Declaration of Independence does not say that men have a right to happiness. What they have a right to is the "pursuit of happiness." They are entitled to seek happiness by their own efforts, not to have happiness conferred on them by government. I imagine the signers of the Declaration knew that if men had a right to have happiness conferred on them by government, they could not at the same time have the other right to which the Declaration attached primary weight—the right to liberty.

DOES MR. ECCLES really believe that every person has a "right" to a position, a job? And a "right" to a decent place to live, that is, to a house? If every person has such a right, how can he exercise it? To whom can he go and say: "I hereby demand the house to which I have a right." Certainly it is not practicable for him to go to a private owner of a house and make that demand. If the right is valid at all, it must be the Government that is to meet the demand. The Government would have to own all the jobs there are and all the houses there are.

And even the Government does not hold itself ready to give houses to all persons on demand. Government, even under the New Deal dispensation, does not do that. The Administration does no more than say to a few persons, not to all, "We will sell—not give—you a house, provided you make a down payment, and provided you sign a mortgage, and provided you pay the interest, and provided you make the installment payments as they become due."

IN SHORT, Mr. Eccles is telling people they have "rights" which are not rights at all. And by doing that he is contributing to a confusion of thought which we must escape from if we are to get the country back on the rails.

As to Mr. Eccles' broad position, that increased Government debt is good, he ought to go back and read a speech made by his chief, President Roosevelt, when he was running for President, at St. Louis, October 21, 1932. It was an eloquent and forceful speech. In the course of it Mr. Eccles will find this sentiment, and this pledge:

"It is my pledge and promise . . . that rigid governmental economy shall be enforced by a stern and unremitting administrative policy of living within our income."

The Weakest Link

By Barnet Nover

War Clouds Over Djibouti

NOT LONG AGO a clamor arose in the Italian Chamber of Deputies for the cession to Italy of Nice, Savoy, Corsica and Tunis. The Italian press took up that cry and has rung the changes on it ever since.

NOVER

The assumption in many quarters was that this campaign was all bluff, that in launching it Mussolini entertained no serious hopes of getting France to give up any of these areas, that it was basically designed to force quite different kinds of concessions out of France.

This assumption appears to be largely though not wholly true. There is not the slightest indication that Fascist Italy intends to wrest Tunis or Corsica or Nice or Savoy from France by force, not now anyway. Italy is in no position to wage a major war and responsible French statesmen have made it very clear that France will not voluntarily cede an inch of French territory to Italy.

IT WOULD be a serious mistake to suppose, however, that Italian ambitions do not run in those directions. They do. Some day, if not now, Mussolini hopes to fall heir to at least part of the French empire and particularly to Tunis, which Italians have regarded as terra irredenta since France seized it in 1881.

In the meantime Italy's territorial claims cloak other designs. What Italy wants from France at the moment are three things. First, French Somaliland, the possession of which would round out Italy's East African empire and give her Djibouti—the only half-way decent port in that area. If that is out of the question, then Italy demands that at least she be given free port rights in Djibouti, that the rates on the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railway, the principal means of transportation between Ethiopia and the outside world, be lowered and that Italy be given a larger percentage of the railway's shares.

Secondly, Italy is anxious to be given a place on the directorate of the Suez Canal, now wholly French and British, except for one solitary Netherlander.

And, thirdly, there is the now-chronic problem of Spain. As long as France refuses to grant Franco belligerent rights, and on this point the French have been adamant, the insurgents cannot hope to starve out the Spanish government and end the war.

THE DJIBOUTI and Suez Canal demands are related. Italy's financial and economic position is not rosy. Above all she suffers, as does Germany, from a serious shortage of exchange. In this particular the conquest of Ethiopia has been a real liability to the Italian kingdom. Every Italian ship headed from the peninsula for Ethiopia must pass through the Suez Canal. The charges are fairly steep, though they were reduced last year 6 shillings a ton in gold for loaded ships, 3 shillings a ton for vessels in ballast. Last year Italian tonnage passing through the canal totaled 6,000,000, being second only to that of Great Britain.

Last year, too, some 300,000 Italian soldiers went through the canal and for each of these the Italian government had to pay 6 shillings, a total charge of more than $400,000. And at Djibouti there are additional charges by way of customs and port duties and rates on the Djibouti railroad are steep.

IT IS POSSIBLE that, for the moment, Mussolini would be satisfied if he could have at least part of what he wants with respect to Suez Canal rates, Djibouti port duties and an increased Italian financial interest in the Ethiopian railroad. But it would be a mistake to suppose that he would be satisfied with such concessions for long.

The point is that while Italy has established her domination over Ethiopia she cannot be sure of continued possession as long as the routes of communication to that region are in other and potentially hostile hands. For instance, should Italy ever get involved in war with Great Britain, Ethiopia would be cut off because the Suez would be closed to her ships and her men o' war. Legally, of course, that cannot be done. The Suez Canal, by international treaty is required to be kept open to ships of all nations at all times. But with Great Britain astride both entrance and exit the value of this provision in war time can be negligible, as Germany found out.

IF, THEREFORE, the new Italian empire is to be made secure, it must expand and it can only expand at the expense of France or Great Britain or both. Of the two, France appears to be the easier target at the moment. And the point where France is at her most vulnerable is French Somaliland.

With only a small garrison guarding that possession, France would appear to be no match for Italy should Italy send forces now stationed in Italian East Africa against her. The only alternative to surrender might be an attack on Italy herself and from that alternative the French government and people may shrink.

The fact that France has again and again retreated in the face of pressure from the totalitarian powers may encourage Mussolini in the belief she will do so again. He may be quite wrong this time. But it can hardly be denied that his line of reasoning has some justification. Anyway, if his tactics vis-a-vis Djibouti may not secure for him the complete cession of French Somaliland it may win for Italy some concessions from France. If Mussolini cannot have what he wants wholesale he is determined to get it piecemeal.

Sidelights at Meeting Of Music Instructors

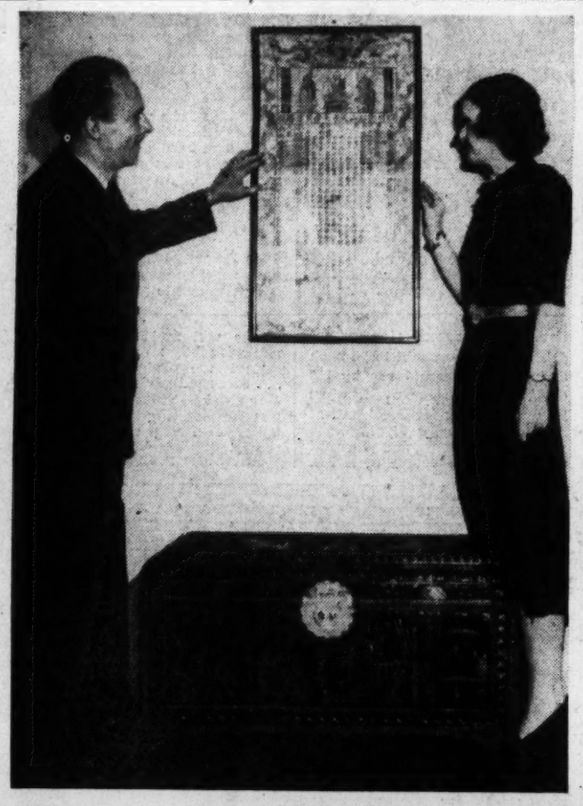

1. Music teachers in convention here are learning that America's greatest boom in music is getting under way. The boom is attributed to many factors, one of which might be Allan Lomax (above), showing how he records folk music for the Library of Congress. His studies have taken him to the hills and lowlands, tropics and north woods. Another reason could be . . .

2. . . . musical toys which teach children music at the age of 3. Mrs. M. D. Burgess (left), of the Washington School of Music and originator of toys for musical education, is showing some to Miss Madeline Amato, a teacher. Exhibit of . . .

3. . . . sheet music draws throngs of teachers and music lovers who get as much pleasure poring over piles of music as a bibliophile in a library of first editions. One factor in the increased interest in music apparently is symphony concerts on the air which are joined by thousands with musical instruments. Simplication of instruction . . .

Mary Haworth's Mail

Was It Mistake for Woman to Pen Tender Christmas Message to Business Associate—and Wife?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For a number of years, my work has brought me in contact with a much older man for whom I have always had the deepest admiration because of his upright character, sincere benevolence and magnetic personality. His wife seems very fond of me, and while we are not intimate friends, I have often met her socially . . . This year, on Christmas Eve, I sent a floral gift to their home, addressed to both, with my personal card enclosed bearing a holiday message which concluded with the words, "With love," and my signature.

My questions are these: 1. Did I exceed the bonds of good taste in so doing? 2. Would it seem that I might have a too personal interest in the man? (I have never shown in any way that it might be so.) 3. If it should be taken in that manner, how should I conduct myself, or what say—if anything? 4. Wouldn't it seem that a couple of such character would be too big to read anything else than a seasonably suitable gesture conveying real appreciation, into the gift and message?

Please answer as soon as possible, for, silly at it may sound, I have some slight reason for uneasiness, and very much wish an unbiased opinion on the subject. (Incidentally, I am married, have children and am at least 20 years younger than this couple.) M. J.

"Evil to Him Who, Etc."

DEAR M. J.: Actually, you are making much ado about nothing. It is plain to be seen, of course, that you have come to the conclusion, on sober second thought, that you rashly betrayed the strain of infatuation which underlies your sincere respect and affection for the man, in affixing the words, "with love," to your holiday message. You are acutely self-conscious as a result of having done so; worried, fearful and miserable lest he and, or his wife, read this construction into it, and pity or condemn you in consequence.

And this, I think, is a rather neurotic attitude for you to take. Naturally, I cannot say how the man or his wife will react to your impulsive and now irretrievable commitment, but if they have the wisdom and human understanding suitable to their years, they will rejoice in your devotion and in the spontaneous way it found expression during the warmly sentimental season of Christmas—which irresistibly impels most of us to backslap and well wish even our worst enemies and most carping critics.

It's no crime, no sin against moral or social law, to respond in spirit with all that is best in one's nature to some fine person of the opposite sex who can never, under existing circumstances, be more to one than a friend; and I should say that one was behaving in a sane and civilized manner in concedins, in suitable time and season, and in words that all may read, the existence of such lively appreciation of another's superior quality. By very candor, by forthright simplicity and sincerity, you disarm the incipiently prurient minded, who cannot sow the seeds of scandal save in the soil of furtiveness.

Looking back upon what you have done, be glad that you did it—just at the time, and just in the way, you did. If there should be any who choose to misconstrue, in the sense of holding you guilty of overboldness or lack of restraint, remember that the evil is to him who evil thinketh; that impersonal, unself seeking love of one's neighbor, sweetly expressed, is the most beautiful, most spiritual, flowering of personality of which the human nature is capable; and that, therefore, you have no need to apologize to anyone, not even yourself, for having yielded to the impulse to pay a merited compliment of the most elevating sort. M. H.

Are Ear Muffs Chic?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I would like to know if it is proper for a girl of 18, who is now working, to wear a small knit hat and ear muffs. Or is it only proper to wear them when engaging in active sports such as skating, etc. Or are they only intended for small children and boys?

PUZZLED.

Speaking of Millinery

DEAR PUZZLED: I have discussed your queries with The Post's fashion editor, who evades responsibility by replying: "Only Solomon himself could solve that problem." However, since Solomon was gathered to his forefathers centuries ago, I suppose I shall have to wrestle with this perplexity unaided. Being only casually fashion-minded, I have no acquaintanceship with the type of headgear you describe; do not know, indeed, whether it actually exists. But if it does, you should be able to wear it almost anywhere your fancy dictates without exciting an undue amount of commotion or comment.

During the past three years, the so-called civilized world has become well-nigh shockproof so far as women's hats are concerned. Anything and everything seems to provide inspiration for millinery designers, whose most fantastic creations are immediately adopted by the slaves of chic. This being the case, I see no reason why you shouldn't wear—anywhere you like—a headpiece at once so quaint, and so appropriate to the winter season, as a knit cap with ear muffs. M. H.

Skating Clothes Cut for Spills Shown This Year

New York (AP).—Skating clothes are cut for spills as well as fancy figures this year.

The renewed interest in the sport has resulted in the production of ice togs which are about as professional in finish as ski clothes. Suits are made of wools whose close weaves tend to repel moisture. Many have shorts to match, attached to skirt or blouse.

Skirts are designed to cut a pretty figure. Colors have life and lines have dash. Plaids are often lined with a plain color and plain skirts faced with plaid or a contrasting hue.

When you choose yours, look for one that fits smoothly over the hips and has a decided flare below to give grace when you skim over the rink. Choose a skirt that is slightly longer in the back so that it will not look as though it had pulled up when you bend forward. The fashion world generally advises street-length for beginners, knee-length for good skaters and several inches above knee-length for skating experts.

Prophetic Cafe Suit

The stately model, above, wears one of the newest and most dramatic of the New York nurtured cafe suits. Formerly called "little suits," "cocktail suits" and "bar suits," this recently created version is being worn this winter at the Florida races and for dinner parties. It is prophetic of late spring styles in these parts. Its fabric is copper colored silk faille, crisp and cool, and long wearing. Its bolero is zippered at the front closing and its sole adornment is the massive pair of red fox cap sleeves

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Dec. 28.

IF THERE'S one thing commoner than a busy cop in New York these days, it's this World's Fair thing. It's absolutely everywhere, nudged and pushed along by Head Man Grover Whalen and his huge corps of gourd-rat-rattlers. Now I'm darned if they aren't trying to run the approaching New Year's Eve strictly on a World's Fair basis! The idea is that while we are drinking our soda pop and pounding the table, we must focus our dizzy minds on the slogan of the fair—"The Dawn of a New Day."

ALICE HUGHES

Grover has got all the great stores on the avenue to do their windows on the New Day's Dawn—and last night His Honor LaGuardia pushed a button that made the avenue traffic lights blink five times. This was a signal for thousands of citizens to go on the water wagon, and also for the merchants to unveil their county fair windows.

Now, we New Yorkers (may the saints preserve us) are all hearty boosters for the World's Fair of 1939, now rising in the Flushing Swamps. We love the biggest of everything, and we want our fair to be the biggest—let alone the best and most cultural. Certainly Comrade Whalen and his merry men and maidens are getting magnificent co-operation all over the mad metropolis. Baby, when we stage a fair, it stays staged!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Judge Rotheberg nearly had a stroke in our Night Court a few evenings ago, when he heard a loud bass roar admitting that its owner had refused to pay a cab bill of $2.05. Looking twice, he saw that the thundering prisoner was a citizen of Salt Lake City named Mr. Frank Bird—who towered less than 4 feet in the air. "Have you been drinking?" asked the startled judge. "I always drink!" bellowed Mr. Bird. While the courtroom screamed, Mr. Bird was led away to cool off for a spell, after which the matter of the taxi bill would be reopened. Boy, they grow 'em out in Utah! . . .

All dancers and opera singers, from Isadora Duncan to Gerry Farrar, write their memoirs. Now it is Ruth St. Denis' turn. Harper's will publish her autobiography in March. It should be something to read, for Ruth has had some colorful life . . .

The Grand Duchess Marie, head of our royalist Russian colony, seems to have given up the fashion and cosmetics business entirely. Now she's a photographer. Next month she sails to Rio as official photographer aboard the Normandie. Nice going for the gallant Marie, who's always trying. Swell ride on the cuff—and lots of pictures to take.

A local troop of Boy Scouts has been busy this week keeping the birds fed—hanging big mesh stockings filled with corn and stuff for those feathered friends who haven't flown South for the season.

The ill-fated Midivanis of Georgia lost another well known figure when Mme. Sert died—which makes three of the present generation to die in the past few years. Mme. Sert was widely known in our town. I remember her well when she was here with her husband, Jose, the famous muralist while he did the decorations of the swankiest eating room at the Waldorf, always known as the Sert Room. A woman of great charm.

Toasts and Jokes Aid Sociability

A CLEVER toast for Tim who has a brand new job! How like Evelyn graciously to say the right thing at the right time:

"We knew you'd win by the set of your jaw.
And we're proud of you as your Maw and Paw."

"Here's to the girl who's strictly in it,
Who doesn't lose her head for a minute,
Who plays the game and knows the limit,
And still gets all the fun that's in it."

Nothing like having a store of toasts and jokes in the back of your mind. You need them for dozens of friendly get-togethers—club meetings, class dinners—even on a date for two!

Here's a timely little toast for a club affair:

"To our friends: the only ones who know the worst about us, but refuse to believe it."

Hostess (to 6-year-old guest): "Can you cut your meat, Tommy?"

"Tommy: "Yes, thanks. I've often had it as tough as this at home."

Be ready with a snappy comeback for any situation. Our 40-page booklet, "Jokes and Toasts for All Occasions," is chock-full of lively banter. Toasts both snappy and droll to start things rolling merrily along.

Caution Urged In Exercise By Diabetics

May Be Harmful In Advanced Cases; Doctor's Advice Best

By Ida Jean Kain.

SHOULD A diabetic exercise? With 500,000 diabetics in this country, that is a question frequently asked . . . and the answer is yes, maybe, and no.

To be more explicit, here is the opinion of Dr. E. P. Joslin, of the Harvard Medical School, who is a leading authority on the subject: "A mild diabetic is helped by exercise, a moderate diabetic may be helped by exercise, and a severe diabetic is harmed by exercise."

You should, of course, be under the supervision of your own physician, but unless the diabetes is severe, you probably would benefit from exercise. As Dr. Joslin has explained, in utilizing the muscles a large part of the carbohydrates is burned, thereby lowering the blood sugar.

Exercise a Prevention

There are approximately 2,000,000 potential diabetics in the United States. If there has ever been any diabetes in your family, it is very important that you have a normal amount of exercise, for the person who exercises normally is less likely to develop the disease than the person who takes no exercise.

You should, of course, be careful to keep your weight down to normal, for that is the surest means of prevention. Statistics on 1,000 cases showed 10 per cent to be thin while 75 per cent were overweight. In a study of 673 cases, 91 per cent were found to be overweight and 83 per cent had been more than 10 per cent overweight at the onset of diabetes.

Analyses of such surveys indicate that women have a higher diabetic tendency than men. They develop the disease after 40, the age at which they begin to take on weight.

Dr. Joslin is emphatic in his view that "Overnutrition is as harmful to the treatment of diabetes as it is encouraging to the development," and he stresses the importance of a diet providing milk, eggs, fruit, vegetables, lean meat, cereals.

Carbohydrate tolerance, however, varies with the individual, and the diet in all cases must be adjusted for your case by your doctor.

Such great advances have been made in the treatment of this disease that the life expectancy of the diabetic has been extended from five years to 25 years—and most diabetics live to die of something else, including old age. Doctors are even hopeful that a cure may be found.

DeGoofey Open House

To the rescue of timid and tired souls who dread frenzied New Year's Eve celebrations has come Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, founder and president of the Do Something About It League.

"It is high time something were done to save civilized persons from participating in these exhibitions," said Mrs. DeGoofey yesterday in an exclusive interview to this column. "However, don't get the idea I am trying to cramp anybody's style. If anyone wants to dance on a table in a dunce cap at midnight Saturday, it is all right with me. All I am trying to do is to help the fellow who doesn't."

"But after all," interposed the interviewer, "couldn't such persons stay home?"

"Certainly not!" exclaimed Mrs. DeGoofey. "Just try it once. Just suppose you faced your friends New Year's Day with the announcement that you had eaten some milk toast and retired at 9 o'clock the night before. What would happen? Why, you would be regarded as a person suffering from neurosis, psychosis, senility, pellagra, claustrophia and even latent criminal tendencies.

Social Short Cut

"No, the idea that there is some particular social distinction attached to whooping it up at midnight, December 31, has become too firmly entrenched to dislodge. The public cannot get out of its mind the notion that the possession of the price of a table reservation in a night club and the participation with a lot of strangers in a snake dance marks you as being one of the bon ton.

"However, the trouble is that not everybody really enjoys these exhibitions. There are many persons, especially middle-aged women, to whom paper caps are not becoming. There are many others who cannot throw confetti with just the abandon that the gesture demands. And there are those who cannot figure out just what sort of a noise to make when they are expected to yell, and there are many, many persons who feel a slight sense of constraint about kissing, especially when it comes to strangers."

"How do you propose to remedy this, Mrs. DeGoofey?"

"By a special party for all such persons. The Do Something About It League has decided to keep open house, beginning at 9 o'clock Saturday evening and lasting all night."

"Why all night?"

Relaxed Revelry

"So that no one will have to go home, cold cream, wash and undress after the festivities. You see, we are providing beds for the greater number of our guests so they may retire on their arrival. Then they will be awakened at midnight by chimes, permitted to say 'Happy New Year,' then turn over and go to sleep again!"

But surely, Mrs. DeGoofey, you will have some sort of—of whoopee," persisted the interviewer.

"Oh yes, for our more active members. You see, everyone will register on arrival for the type of entertainment desired. For instance, suppose you register as a 'recliner.' You will be taken into a room filled with couches and chaise longues. There you may recline comfortably, listen to the radio, converse or doze as the notion strikes you.

"Or if you happen to be extremely energetic, you may register for dancing and games. However, we guarantee positively that we will not have any games in which you have to use pencil and paper or any portion of your brain. Oh yes, and please quote me as saying that positively no one will be called upon to do a stunt.

Finally, if more of these activities appeal to you, you may register as a sitter."

Sitting It Out

"Yes. Many persons tell me that all their lives they have wanted to go to parties and just be sitters—say nothing, do nothing, meet nobody, feel no responsibility to be charming guests in payment for their ice cream and cake, but just sit and enjoy themselves. Well, we will have a sitters' group and any party pep leaders who don't like the idea can go jump in the lake."

"Does that complete your plans, Mrs. DeGoofey?"

"Just one more item. We will issue certificates of attendance to all guests. Each also will be presented with a large badge to wear New Year's Day. It will bear the inscription, 'Yes, I had a high time last night and I do not have a headache today.'"

Mind Training Helps in Reducing

You can lose those extra pounds and never gain them back if you will literally put your mind to it, says Samuel Tenenbaum, psychologist, in an article entitled "The Way to Stay Reduced," in the January issue of Coronet Magazine.

"Most reducing diets will reduce, provided you have the strength to continue them," concedes Tenenbaum in calling attention to the psychological approach to the subject, "but who can endure this perpetual battle? Trouble with most diets is that they are too severe!"

First law of psychological thinning process is learning to dislike fattening food you already like and learning to like non-fattening foods. It's the soundest, most sensible and best approach to the problem, according to Mr. Tenenbaum.

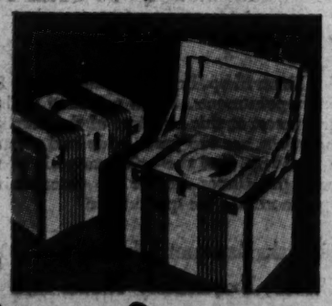

"Our liking or disliking of food is nothing more than a bundle of habits," he points out. "The overweight person has food habits which make him like fattening foods. His job is to break his old food habits and substitute new ones. He should acquire a taste for foods which are poverty-stricken in calories—for example, leafy vegetables, fruits and the like."

Eleanor Roosevelt Whirls Through Series of Parties

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Staying in Washington through the last days of 1938, Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, debutante niece of the First Lady, is having a whirl if there ever was one.

Last evening, she was among the guests at a dinner dance given by Miss Mary Adams for her debutante niece, Miss Mary Adams Manning, daughter of Mrs. Harry Hickey. The hostess' home on Edgevale Terrace, overlooking Rock Creek Park's swankiest section, was transformed into a bower of blossoms and ferns for the occasion.

Receiving in the drawing room before a bank of ferns and red and white poinsettia, the hostess was gowned in black velvet with a bodice of rhinestones embellished with crystal beads. With Miss Adams was her guest of honor, wearing a frock of pink tulle over pink and silver lame. Ruching around the neckline in an off-the-shoulder effect matched the panel of ruching on the skirt. Both she and her aunt wore wristlets of small violet orchids.

Arranged for both the debutante set and a few from the older circle, the dinner preceded dancing, which began shortly after 11 o'clock and drew almost 300 guests. Sidney's Orchestra played, a professional dance team gave a floor show before the evening was over, and a supper was served at midnight.

At the dinner there were two tables, one for Miss Manning and her friends, the other for her aunt and her mother. Both tables were centered with huge bouquets of white roses and snapdragons.

Several Debutantes Among the Guests

Seated with the debutante of the evening were Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sullivan, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Willcox, Miss Patricia Morris, Miss Angelica Lloyd, Miss Eleanor Meem, Miss Emily Davis, Miss Agnes Magruder, Miss Doris Becker, Miss Ann Wilkinson, Miss Jane Rust, the Misses Caroline and Harriet Hart, Miss Brereton Sturtevant, Miss Caroline Cecil, Miss Eleanor Flood, Miss Nancy Hoskinson.

Young men in the company included Frank Holcomb, Rufus Johnson, Thomas Adams, Bainbridge Crist, John Merriam, George Wheeler, Charles Glover, Barry Woods, Fred Hunt, Lawrence Baker, jr., Demarest Lloyd, Robert Wallach, James Mitchell, jr., Charles McKenney, Graham Claytor, Wilfred Buckland, Tinsey Adams, Lieut. Fletcher Cole, White House aide who escorted Miss Roosevelt; Harold Strong, jr., and Max Strong, of New York.

At the hostess' table were Mr. and Mrs. Hickey, Mrs. Beale Howard, grandmother of the debutante, who presented her to society at a tea last month; Mr. and Mrs. John Remey, uncle and aunt of the debutante; Mrs. Wallach Merriam, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Houghteling, Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, the Commandant of the Marine Corps, and Mrs. Holcomb; Mrs. John Bain, Col. John Haines, Charles Mason Remey, John Cunningham and Laurence Bungardeanu, of the Rumanian Legation.

Sturdevant Luncheon Also on Schedule

Another high light of Miss Roosevelt's schedule was the luncheon given by Mrs. Edward Warren Sturdevant for her daughter, Miss Mary Alice Sturdevant, who is holidaying from her studies at Bryn Mawr. A company of 20 girls and as many escorts drove out to Normandy Farms for a weiner roast and an informal buffet luncheon. Climaxing the event, there was a rollicking "paper chase," in which guests were paired off as "hares" and hounds," the former being given a ten-minute start and directions to scatter bits of paper along the way so the others could chase them.

Miss Roosevelt has set aside part of today for sleeping and sightseeing, but she plans to attend Miss Joan King's debut at the 1925 F street club this afternoon. Tomorrow evening she will be a guest at Miss Lucile Sheppard's debut dinner, and the following evening she will be in the company at Miss Eleanor Flood's dinner, preceding the Lloyd dance.

Oumanskys Honor Ropers

Constantine A. Oumansky, the Charge d'Affaires of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, and Mrs. Oumansky, entertained at dinner last evening in honor of the former Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper.

Other guests included the Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry H. Woodring, the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre; Senator and Mrs. William H. King, Senator Joseph F. Guffey and Miss Pauletta Guffey, and Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom and Mrs. Vera Bloom.

Also James W. Morris, Assistant Attorney General, and Mrs. Morris; Oscar Chapman, Assistant Secretary of Commerce; Mrs. J. Monroe Johnson; Rear Admiral James O. About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

SHE HASN'T sung in public since she was in the choir of Epiphany Church at the age of 10—but Mrs. Henri de Sibour has decided to join the ever-increasing ranks of society members who go in for night-club warbling. She is busy rehearsing already for her opening January 10 at the Pall Room of the Raleigh.

So many friends of the attractive young matron have admired her voice at private parties that she at last decided she might as well make some money with it, having turned down several New York offers. People who know say it's on the "torchy" side. Mrs. de Sibour, the former Mary Beckers, is a sister-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Blaise de Sibour and Mr. and Mrs. Jean de Sibour, and was a daughter-in-law of the late Viscount J. Henri de Sibour, a leader in the social life of the Capital until his death last fall.

A SOLID WEEK of social engagements has temporarily halted the career of another society singer, Peggy Townsend. She is taking this week off from her post at the Cafe Caprice to attend a number of debutante parties, but will be back after her holiday.

TWO ATTRACTIVE VISITORS from England who have been here looking us over are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Graves. Both write, the former a column for the London Daily Mail, and his wife, fashion and beauty aids for the Telegraph.

Before he left for this country Mr. Graves wrote a column asking his readers what they most wanted to know about America. He received hundreds of letters, with requests to learn about everything from what Grant's Tomb is like to a plea to find out why somebody's brother-in-law living in Louisiana hasn't written for several months. Mr. Graves promised to investigate everything and let his readers know.

The Britishers dined on Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Essary and then went to the White House dance for Eleanor Roosevelt. Mrs. Graves' mother was an American from Savannah. The couple will visit New York, Boston, Charleston, S. C., and other cities before retuning to England.

AND SPEAKING of England—we hear that Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Abel-Smith are planning to come here in March for a visit. Mrs. Abel-Smith was before her marriage two or three years ago Miss Peggy Morgan, of Washington.

Julia and Mimi Worthington Make Debut at Tea in Carlton

Parents and Classmate From Birmingham Receive With Sweet Briar Girls; More Than 500 Attend Party

Another "sister act" blossomed into Washington society yesterday afternoon when the Misses Julia and Mimi Worthington, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. George Y. Worthington, were presented at a big tea at the Carlton Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Worthington, their daughters and their house guest, Miss Frances Baldwin, of Birmingham, Ala., welcomed the guests in the reception room of the hotel, standing under a floral canopy. The company, more than 500, wandered into the large ballroom at one end of which was a buffet, with small tables.

A profusion of Christmas flowers, poinsettias, palms and ferns, transferred the Carlton Room into a veritable garden. From the many fountains the flowing water played a soft musical accompaniment to the orchestra which was hidden behind a bank of flowers in one corner of the room.

Mrs. Worthington was gowned in a black crepe model, floor length, fashioned on straight lines with a slight train and with a wide panel of American beauty crepe down the front of the gown. Her corsage was of gardenias.

Miss Baldwin, a schoolmate of the Worthington sisters at Sweet Briar, wore a gown of rose chiffon with a jeweled girdle, and a corsage of gardenias.

Assisting at the tea table during the afternoon were Mrs. Andrew Duvall, Mrs. George Worthington, sr., Mrs. Joseph Colquitt, Mrs. Berkley Simmons, Mrs. Spencer Gordon, Mrs. Edgar Snowden, Mrs. Jarred White, Mrs. Maurice Selinger, Mrs. Thornton Parker, Miss Elizabeth Jackson, Mrs. Henry Ravenel and Mrs. Francis Sayre.

Assisting the debutante were Miss Catherine Tilghman, Miss Margaret Craighill, Miss Jane Rust, Miss Roberta Quirk, Miss Julia Cahill, Miss Nancy Lee Masten, Miss Caroline Talley and Miss Beatrice Talley.

Movies that Dr. William M. Mann, director of the Zoo, took on his last trip through the zoos of England, France, Germany, Ireland and Scotland enlivened the dinner which the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Dr. Mann also showed pictures of the journey which he and Mrs. Mann made to Iceland and Russia last summer.

The guests last evening also included Mrs. Mann, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall C. Finnan, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Toll, Miss Betsy and Wolcott Toll, Miss Harriet Browne, niece of the hosts, who is studying at Pratt Institute in New York, and their young daughter, Miss Jean Wallace.

Gamble, took place last evening in the rectory of Nativity Church. The Rev. Lawrence McGlone officiated at the ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Shoreham.

Palms and candelabras decorated the church. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory velvet gown made with a hoop skirt. Her finger-tip veil fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a nosegay of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Janet L. Hawkins served as the bride's matron of honor and only attendant, wearing an old-fashioned gown of chartreuse velvet made with a hoop skirt, a small purple velvet hat, and mitts to match her frock. She carried a nosegay of violets and small yellow rosebuds. William S. Gamble, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

After a honyemoon in Chicago, the couple will continue on to Indianapolis, where they will make their home. As her going-away costume the bride wore a black crepe dress with a coat to match trimmed with Persian lamb, an orchid corsage and a black hat.

Ann Cluett Wed to Rector

Lace from her mother's wedding gown trimmed the dress which Miss Ann Bywater Cluett, daughter of Representative and Mrs. E. Harold Cluett, of Troy, N. Y., wore when she was married yesterday to the Rev. Nelson M. Burroughs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Burroughs.

The ceremony took place at noon at St. John's Episcopal Church, in Troy, the Rev. George Ashton Oldman, Bishop of Albany, officiating. White snapdragons decorated the altar.

Same Bridal Gown As Worn by Sister

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin gown which had been worn by her sister, Mrs. Page Chapman, jr., at her wedding two years ago. A tulle veil was attached to a cornet of lace used by her mother, and she carried a bouquet of white roses and bouvardia.

Miss Jean M. Cluett served as her sister's maid of honor and only attendant, wearing a frock of emerald green crepe with a matching turban and carried talisman roses. The Rev. John J. Paulsen served as best man.

A breakfast at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony, which was attended only by the immediate families. After February 1 the couple will reside at 1697 Tibbits avenue in Troy.

Bride Is Member Of Junior League

The bride attended the Emma Willard School and was graduated from the Westover School. She is a member of the Junior League. Her husband is an alumnus of Wesleyan University and the Berkeley Divinity School in New Haven. He was curate at St. Paul's Church in Syracuse, N. Y., and rector of St. Mark's there before going to Troy as rector of St. John's.

Curb on Jobs for Wives Held Aimed at Poor

Mrs. Littlejohn, Australian Feminist, Confers Here on Platform of Equal Rights

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Challenge of the right of a married woman to work, no matter in what field, is just another way of keeping the poorly paid worker poorer, according to Mrs. Linda P. Littlejohn, president of Equal Rights International, who is on her way from her home in Sydney, Australia, to London.

Mrs. Littlejohn, long an ardent feminist, today will confer with Miss Alice Paul, founder of the National Woman's Party and president of the newly-formed World Woman's Party, on steps to be taken at Geneva next June to promote the cause of equal rights.

No one minds how much income the rich man has—whether he holds ten directorates or whether his wife has an income equal to his own, says Mrs. Littlejohn. The effort to restrict the right of married women to work strikes at the average worker and only means keeping the poor persons poorer.

"To change the person unemployed does not relieve unemployment. If it is a case of giving a job to the man who has six children to support, employers should select their workmen on the basis of who needs it most rather than on that of fitness and efficiency. The Woman's Party put it aptly in their slogan: "It is not a question of shall married women work, but shall working women marry."

To Discuss Proposed Restrictive Treaty

Mrs. Littlejohn and Miss Paul, with other members of the council of the Woman's Party, today will discuss action in opposition to the proposed treaty which would provide for "regulation of employment of indigenous workers" and makes special provision under which married women "conclude contracts required to be in writing." Except when such a policy of restriction would be of disadvantage, married women should be allowed to make such contracts only for employment "not involving departure from their usual place of residence if they are to be employed in the same undertaking as their husbands or in the same neighborhood or as domestic servants."

Provision for single women has not been decided on and a questionnaire relating to the whole treaty has been sent to all governments, including our own.

Although drafted as a protective measure, the treaty admits of interpretation which might mean, were it ratified by the United States, that a woman engaged in any profession and coming from Hawaii or Alaska could not enter a contract to work in the States for longer than six months, said Mrs. Littlejohn. She considers it an entering wedge in a possible international effort to restrict the rights of women.

Finds Opposition To Social Legislation

On her first visit to this country, the Australian feminist finds here, among the wealthy, less willingness to share prosperity with workers than in Australia, New Zealand or the British Isles. "I have not felt the great hostility to social legislation in any other country that I have felt here," she said.

There are some protests to social legislation in Great Britain, she says, but they do not impede it.

"People run around talking about saving democracy," said Mrs. Littlejohn, "but have no plan about what democracy hopes to achieve. That's why democracy seems to be slipping. This is a day of planning and in that planning must be the realization that the very wealthy must give the working man a greater share of the world's goods."

Mrs. Saidie Dunbar Entertains 25 at Buffet Supper

Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, last night entertained a party of 25 friends at a buffet supper at the federation headquarters, 1734 N street, where she resides.

It was a Christmas party, with poinsettias decorating the dining room where the supper was served, a Christmas tree in the sun parlor and greens elsewhere through the house. Pink carnations and pink begonias were the flowers used in decoration of the drawing room. Mrs. Virginia White Speel and Mrs. Randall W. Arndt presided at the table, serving tea and coffee.

Among the guests were Mrs. Walter M. Pierce and Mrs. Homer Angell, the only two members of the Oregon Congressional delegation who have arrived in the Capital. Mrs. Angell, who is from Portland, is a prominent clubwoman and former president of the Woman's Club there.

600 Initiated By Auxiliary Of Argo Lodge

New Ladies' Group Receives Charter; Address By Felix Morley

The ladies' auxiliary to Argo Lodge, B'nai B'rith, last night received its charter from Maurice Bisgyer, international secretary to the supreme lodge of the organization, initiated 600 members and installed its officers, headed by Mrs. Morris Gerwiz. The ceremony was held at a joint meeting of the lodge and auxiliary in the Jewish Community Center, and was followed by a discussion of "The Background and Aftermath of the Munich Agreement" by Felix Morley, editor of The Post, as guest speaker.

"The result of the Munich settlement," said Mr. Morley, "depends on many imponderables. It depends, perhaps more than on any other factor, on the insight shown at this juncture by the United States. The country which has the greatest stake in the luxury of democracy must work in more positive fashion to preserve democracy."

Pointing out that Czecho-Slovakia was both an American and also a politically unnatural creation, Mr. Morley explained that the Treaty of Versailles assumed Prague would have the continuing support of the United States as well as that of Japan, Italy, France and Great Britain.

"Our part in the destruction of Czecho-Slovakia did not stop with repudiation of the Versailles Treaty which gave it birth and antagonism to the agency—the League of Nations—designed to protect its independence," he said. Our neutrality legislation, still on the books, which carefully makes no distinction between an aggressor state and its victim, has been instrumental in producing precisely what happened."

Auxiliary Makes Rapid Growth

The auxiliary chartered last night, was organized five months ago with 400 women at its initial meeting. Since then the 200 members have been enlisted. Serving with Mrs. Gerwiz as its first officers are: Mrs. Herman Hertzman, first vice president; Mrs. Leonard B. Schloss, second vice president; Mrs. Sidney Wiseman, third vice president; Mrs. Morris Bildman, treasurer; Mrs. Herman Eisenberg, recording secretary; Mrs. Alexander Tish, financial secretary; Mrs. Edward Ehrlich, assistant financial secretary; Mrs. Sol Schwartzbach, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Jack Tendler, assistnt corresponding secretary; Mrs. Zal Diamond, historian; Mrs. Samuel A. Berns, and Mrs. Max Mannes auditors; Mrs. Lawrence Koenigsberger, parliamentatrian.

They were installed by Dr. Ivy Pelzman, retiring president of Argo Lodge. Dr. Pelzman was succeeded by Seymour Guthman in the election of officers which took place last night at the business meeting of the lodge. Others elected were: Henry Salus, vice president; Gerald Oxenburg, warden; Phillip Goldstein, guardian; Moe Offenberg, financial secretary; David Wiener, recording secretary; Morris Garfinkle, treasurer, and Norman Freedenberg, monitor.

Committees Ready To Promote Work

Chairmen and co-chairmen of committees named by Mrs. Gewirz for the auxiliary were: Project, Mrs. Hoda Bisgyer, Mrs. Catherine Hertzberg; student welfare, Mrs. Helen Pelzman, Mrs. Emma Haaf; anti-defamation committee, Mrs. Leona Roller and Mrs. Edith Wallack; co-operation with Argo Lodge, Mrs. Belle Shepperman, Mrs. Ida Wilner; social service, Mrs. Minnie Goldsmith, Mrs. Beatrice Levinson; legislative, Mrs. Rena Segal, Mrs. Ethel Low; special gifts, Mrs. Esther Mendelsohn, Mrs. Sophie Stein; program, Mrs. Elsa Strasburger, Mrs. Binnie Rothschild; publicity, Mrs. Fannie Tashof, Mrs. Gertrude Pincus; youth, Mrs. Elsie Halpern, Mrs. Dora Glassman; affidavit, Mrs. Betty Paris, Mrs. Gertrude Mensh; budget, Mrs. Elizabeth Kahn, Mrs. Rose Basseches; ways and means, Mrs. Louise Saloman and Mrs. Mary Tempchin; ritual, Mrs. Yvonne Kushner, Mrs. Leah Wolf; music, Mrs. Lillian Klick, Mrs. Edith Kellert; insignia, Mrs. Sylvia Blajwas, Mrs. Sylvia Ostrow; auxiliary extension, Mrs. Rebecca Desoff, Mrs. Gertrude Lichtman; adult education, Mrs. Leah Janus, Mrs. Betty Wolfsohn; membership, Mrs. Ethel Blumenthal, Mrs. Jean Kal; hospitality, Mrs. Leah Lounsbury, Mrs. Dorothy Silverstein, Mrs. Frances Tavin; contact and telephone, Mrs. Peggy Goldman, Mrs. Lillian Bennett; dramatics, Mrs. Lillian Buller, Mrs. Yvonne Kushner and Mrs. Evelyn Diamond; choral society, Mrs. Leah Janus, director. Geologists Pick Vaughan As President

Mineralogists Also Elect Washingtonian In New York Meetings

Dr. T. Wayland Vaughan, senior geologist of the United States Geological Survey, has been elected president of the Geological Society of America, it was announced yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York City.

DR. VAUGHAN

Dr. Vaughan succeeds another Washingtonian, Dr. Arthur L. Day, former director of the Geophysical Laboratory of Carnegie Institution, who becomes a member of the council.

The Mineralogical Society, meeting at the same place, elected Dr. Waldemar T. Schaller treasurer. Dr. Schaller, chief mineralogist of the Geological Survey here, was awarded the Roebling Medal "for meritorious achievement in mineralogy and allied sciences."

Holds Many Degrees

A native of Jonesville, Tex., Dr. Vaughan won degrees at Tulane, Harvard, British Columbia and California universities. He joined the United States Geological Survey in 1894, and headed many research projects. From 1924 to 1936 he was director of the Scripps Institution of the University of California, now carrying on explorations of the sea floor off the coast of California. He is now director emeritus. Three years ago Dr. Vaughan was awarded the Agassiz Medal by the National Academy of Science for research in oceanography. He is 68.

Dr. Schaller was born in Oakland, Calif., in 1882. After earning degrees at the universities of California and Munich, he joined the United States Geologic Survey in 1903. He is a former president of both the Geological and Mineralogical Societies of America and of the Washington Geological Society.

Thomas A. Hendricks, Dr. Charles F. Park, jr., Dr. John C. Reed and Dr. Albert N. Sayre, associate geologists, United States Geological Survey; Dr. Roy W. Goranson, physical geologist; George Washington Morey, physical chemist, and Dr. George Tunell, petrologist, Geophysical Laboratory, Carnegie Institution; Dr. Herbert Insley, petrographer, National Bureau of Standards; Paul A. Smith, hydrographic and geodetic engineer, United States Coast and Geodetic Survey; Earl A. Trager, chief of naturalist division and chief geologist of Nation, National Park Service.

The Mineralogical Society named 14 fellows, three from Washington: Dr. Milton N. Bramlette and Dr. Eugene Callaghan, associate geologists, United States Geological Survey, and Dr. John P. Marble, vice chairman, committee of geologic time, national research council, United States National Museum.

Slayer of Farmer Hunted in Virginia

Palmyra, Va., Dec. 28 (AP).—Fluvanna County authorities today sought the killer of Charles Bruce, 70, a farmer of near Columbia, Va., who was found shot to death near his stable door on Christmas Day.

Commonwealth's Attorney W. N. Hannah said the farmer, who had lived alone for the past several years, was shot in the back with a rifle or revolver, probably while feeding his stock.

The Commonwealth's attorney said no motive for the slaying other that robbery had been found, and that this was "not definitely established."

meter bar.

"The inch thus defined is also about four-millionths longer than the British inch, which is determined directly from the imperial yard."

He pointed out that a bill standardizing the inch was introduced in the last session of Congress but it never reached a vote.

Dr. Briggs' address came immediately after the annual business meeting at which Dr. John T. Tate, professor of physics at the University of Minnesota, was elected to succeed him as president of the society. The latter is dean of the College of Science, Literature and Arts at Minnesota and editor of "The Physical Review."

Prof. John Zeleny of Yale University was elected vice president. W. L. Severinghaus and G. B. Pegram, of Columbia, were re-elected secretary and treasurer.

Cosmic Rays "Captured"

One of the highlights yesterday was a symposium on cosmic rays, participants including Dr. R. A. Millikan, California Institute of Technology; Dr. W. F. G. Swann, Bartol Research Foundation, and Baron Serge A. Korff, a Washingtonian now associated with Bartol Research Foundation.

Dr. Swann, a physicist, who is almost as well known as a 'cellist, described for the first time an apparatus developed by Dr. W. E. Ramsey and himself for recording and judging the behavior of cosmic rays as they reach the earth.

The device consists of 10 trays, each holding 18 Ceiger counters. Each counter is connected with its own electroscope, which is provided with a mirror that reflects a spot upon a photographic plate.

"The electroscopes are allowed to operate only when a ray passes through the whole system," said Dr. Swann, "and in that case the record of every counter discharge is automatically imprinted upon the photographic plate and the history of all that has happened in the event is obtained."

Formerly cosmic rays could be "captured" only by sending balloons aloft with delicate equipment. The new method, according to Dr. Swann and his collaborator, gives comparable accuracy and is much simpler.

Atoms' Force Measured

Further progress in tackling the mystery of the atom was reported by a group of University of Wisconsin physicists. They are R. G. Herb, D. W. Kerst, D. B. Parkinson, G. J. Plain, G. Breit, H. M. Thaxton and L. Eisenbud.

Bombarding ultra-microscopic protons with protons at a voltage of 2,400,000, they found for the first time (1) that atomic forces come into play when the two protons are only one-tenth of a millionth of a millionth of an inch apart and (2) the force which propels the two protons together at that distance amounts to a fall through 11,000,000 electrical volts.

"Recent work of our experimental group at Wisconsin," Drs. Herb and Breit and their associates said, "shows that the distance within which two protons act on each other with constant potential energy cannot be so great as physicists had previously supposed and it determines the exact force which finally propels them together."

At a dinner last night at the Wardman Park Hotel given jointly by the American Physical Society and the American Association of Physics Teachers, Dr. Harvey Fletcher of the Bell Telephone laboratories gave a demonstration of the peculiarities of sound.

D. C. Health Issue Drawn For Congress

Collins, of Supply Bill Group, to See City Officials, Talk To President Again

As a result of President Roosevelt's interest, the question of health conditions in Washington is expected to come to the forefront when Congress tackles the next District appropriation bill.

The President said Tuesday, after a talk with Representative Collins (Democrat) of Mississippi, that health conditions here were far from being what they ought to be in the Nation's Capital.

Representative Collins, chairman of the House appropriations subcommittee that handles the District supply bill, said yesterday that he would confer with Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, the District auditor, and other local officials, and return to the White House for another conference with President Roosevelt in about ten days.

Improvement Noted

Mortality rates indicate that Washington's health has improved considerably since Dr. George C. Ruhland was brought here from Syracuse to be the city's health officer four years ago. Nevertheless, in certain fields of public health—tuberculosis and pneumonia, for example—Washington's record continues to be disturbing.

Health Officer Ruhland asked $3,143,032 for his department for the next fiscal year, as against an appropriation for the current fiscal year of $2,400,212. The Commissioners cut his estimates to $2,511,032 before turning them over to the Budget Bureau, where they now are. What the Budget Bureau does will not be known until President Roosevelt delivers his annual budget message to Congress.

Health Centers Desired

No. 1 project on Dr. Ruhland's health program is the establishment of health centers. The indigent sick would call at these centers for diagnosis and treatment. In many cases, and particularly among tuberculars, patients die because their diseases are not discovered early.

Funds thus far have been made available for one health center, which will be in the southwest section. The center will be built as soon as final selection of a site is made. Dr. Ruhland now seeks funds for a second health center and contemplates locating it in the lower northwest section, but the Commissioners did not include an estimate for this in their recommendations to the Budget Bureau.

More Workers Asked

Dr. Ruhland also has been trying to get money for additional personnel, particularly nurses and other skilled workers for hospitals and clinics. He has been emphasizing the need of better quarters for the Health Department, which long ago overflowed offices allotted in the District Building. He has suggested that the department be housed in the old tuberculosis hospital at Thirteenth and Upshur streets northwest.

Dr. Ruhland recommended that a part of the $18,150,000 allotted to the District by PWA be used to build a 200-bed addition for adults at the Glenn Dale Tuberculosis Sanatorium, but his recommendation was not heeded by the Commissioners.

However, the Commissioners saw to it that a substantial part of the PWA allotment went to health facilities, as, for example, a new general medical building and a 200-bed tuberculosis building at Gallinger Hospital.

Rotary Club Presents Spacious Building to Georgetown Boys Club

If the boys' club movement had been started "40 or 50 years ago on the same basis it now has," America never would have known its "Public Enemies No. 1," Frank R. Jelleff, president of the Washington Boys Club, declared yesterday as he accepted the key to the Peck Memorial Chapel, Twenty-eighth and M streets northwest, which the Rotary Club has purchased as a new home for the Georgetown Boys Club.

Rotarians held their weekly luncheon on the spacious second floor of the three-floor chapel, acquisition of which brings to a climax their eight years of interest in Georgetown boys. Early in 1931, under Rotary sponsorship, the Georgetown Boy's Club opened in its present quarters at Thirty-first and M streets northwest.

In 1934, it was decided to turn the club over to the Washington Boys Club and thereby make it a member of the Community Chest. Rotarians, however, continued to buy equipment and to maintain their interests in its activities. Purchase of the new building for $35,000 will make it possible for the club to increase its membership from around 660 to above 1,000 boys and to expand its program to include crafts and other new departments.

In accepting the key from A. F. E. Horn, Rotary president, Jelleff declared his belief that "boys clubs are the solution to a large extent to crime in this country."

Jelleff, in turn, gave the key to C. C. Richardson, director of the Georgetown Boys Club, who said he and his boys would move in during next week and that before the next year is ended he hoped many vocational and educational projects would have been added to their program.

Donald M. Bernard, chairman of community service for Rotary, outlined Rotarians' interest in community problems over a long period of years and termed acquisition of the new club building "another big step forward."

Dr. Charles T. Warner, rector of St. Albans Parish, praised work of the late Frank A. Kerr, an organizer of Georgetown Boys Club, whose portrait will be hung in the new building.

At the head table was Edward C. Potter, president of the Board of Trustees of the Covenant First Presbyterian Church, which owned the property and was willing to sell to the Rotary Club because of its interest in boys' work.

Coming with the new building are a pipe organ and a piano, both of which will be used in the boys club activities—probably making the Georgetown Boys Club the only one in the country with a pipe organ.

The chapel has a large gym floor on the basement level, with ceiling twice as high as that in the old quarters and with two large spectator galleries. In the old quarters, which are the two floors above a grocery store, no spectators can get on the same floor where basketball is being played—for the court takes up every bit of space.

On the second floor there are large rooms for offices, a library and games. On the third floor are three big rooms—one for a senior game room, which has never been possible at the old place and another for a junior game room, which has also been impossible where all the boys had to play together. On the third floor, too, will be room for the print shop, carpenter shop and laboratory for mechanical drawing classes which Richardson hopes to add to the club's "curriculum." Room for a Boy Scout troop will also be found in the new building.

The old quarters are entered by outside stairs. The "library" is pantry size and Richardson's office is not as large as a medium-sized clothes closet.

Despite crowded conditions, however, the club has been a real success. The records its members have made in intracity sports are illustrative. In 1935 they won the city championship in football for the 135-pound class. In 1937, they had an 85-pound basketball team that played 35 games and lost none, and won every tournament it entered. The 85-pound team has held the city championship for three straight years. In 1937, also, the club won the Junior Golden Gloves boxing tournament.

Although "every Rotarian" has worked to make the new club possible, Horn said yesterday, the following were mentioned as among those particularly instrumental in obtaining the property and making the improvements necessary: Robert B. Swope, immediate past president; M. X. Wilberding, Percival Hall, Henry W. Fisher, Clarence Aspinwall, Howard S. Leroy, William R. Winslow, chairman of the boys work committee; Paul E. Leash, Donald M. Bernard, Charles P. L. Moran, Howard P. Foley, James A. Messer, Warde B. Stringham, Thomas L. Eagan, Frank Shipe, Edwin L. Davis, Thomas W. Gosling, Alfred G. Neal, Granville Gude, Lester B. Powell, William J. Kenealy, Sreed Fulton, and Mr. Jelleff.

Air Mechanic Training Held Lagging Here

Dr. Holmes Declares Washington Is Far Behind Other Cities; Outlet Growing

The District's vocational schools are lagging far behind those of other large cities in providing training in aviation mechanics, while outlet for men trained in aero-mechanics is rapidly growing in Washington, Dr. Chester W. Holmes, assistant superintendent in charge of junior high and vocational schools, said yesterday.

Dr. Holmes, who early this month attended a meeting of the American Vocational Education Association in St. Louis, said Washington's five vocational schools were "entirely without equipment or funds to provide training in aviation mechanics."

"In view of the fact that the Gravelly Point airport is expected to open up a new outlet for aviation mechanics, it seems that steps to provide training in this trade should be taken here," he said.

He added, however, that "so far as schools are concerned there is nothing we can do."

Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou said no efforts to obtain additional appropriations for installation of such courses of training in vocational schools had been taken here in compiling 1940 budget estimates. He said it would now be necessary to wait until spring when school authorities begin consideration of the 1941 school budget to seek funds for installation of the new courses.

"In Buffalo an entire high school has been given over to training in aviation mechanics," Dr. Holmes said. "A school similar to McKinley Tech in Cambridge, Mass., also is stressing this type of training. It would be comparatively easy to install such courses at Tech here."

The Board of Education's advisory committee on education, appointed by Dr. Ballou in October, is expected to meet next month to consider a program for vocational schools here. The committee is composed of three employers, three employes and three women homemakers.

Dartmouth Men Hear Luncheon Speakers

Democracy and the spirit of freedom flourish most perfectly in the liberal arts college, George Flather, Dartmouth undergraduate, yesterday told the Dartmouth Club of Washington, while William Shelton stressed the value of collegiate surroundings for obtaining a clear perspective on the modern world. Other speakers were George Maurice Morris, James Parks and Rodney McCathrain. David McCoy, president of the club, presided at the luncheon attended by 75 Dartmouth alumni and undergraduates.

Recovering from a heart attack he suffered while traveling by train Friday night from Wheeling, W. Va., to spend Christmas with his family here, H. C. Ogden, 69-year-old newspaper publisher, was quietly cheerful yesterday about the future.

Ogden, whose home is in Wheeling, spends each Christmas with his daughter, Mrs. George K. Nutting. Dr. Nutting, his son-in-law, met the train at Silver Springs, Md., when informed by telegram of Ogden's condition and the invalid was taken to the Nutting home, 4907 Rockwood Drive, where he stayed till Monday when he was taken to a hospital.

Publisher of 14 West Virginia newspapers and one in North Carolina, Ogden started in the business fifty years ago in Wheeling where he founded the Wheeling News.

NAA Calls Hughes Leading U. S. Flier

Howard Hughes, sportsman pilot who circled the world last July in 91 hours, 14 minutes and 10 seconds, yesterday was named the United States' outstanding aviator in 1938 by the National Aeronautics Association here. Hughes' record-breaking flight covered 14,672 miles at an average speed of 206.3 miles per hour.

The N. A. A. announced also that it had nominated Hughes as a candidate for the gold medal award of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, given annually to the world's leading flier.

Self-Help Aids 266

The Washington self-help exchange provided employment for 266 persons in the holiday week, it was announced yesterday. Although this figure was a decrease of 17 under the previous week, it was explained many of the participants secured cash employment in the Christmas season.

Hit-Run Cyclist Sought in Injury Of Blind Man

Police last night were seeking a youthful hit-run bicyclist who raced over the sidewalk in 800 block East Capitol street, knocked a partially blind pedestrian against a fence. The victim, Arthur B. Snyder, 60, of 1336 East Capitol street, was treated at Providence Hospital for injuries to nose and head.

Julian Pompieri, 17, of 520 F street northwest, a messenger boy, suffered a concussion when an auto struck his bike in 1300 block Sixteenth street northwest. He was taken to Emergency Hospital.

Joseph N. Potash, 22, of 201 Morgan street northwest, sustained a severe foot injury yesterday when his mail truck turned over after a collision with an auto and pinned him beneath it. The accident occurred at Georgia avenue near the District line.

Joseph Cariaga, 31, of 1923 K street northwest, was in Georgetown Hospital suffering from a concussion and internal injuries sustained in a crash near Charlottesville, Va.

Capper to Renew D. C. Vote Fight

Senator Capper, of Kansas, ranking Republican on the Senate District Committee, announced yesterday that he would again introduce his resolution for District suffrage when Congress convenes.

"Sentiment is growing stronger all the time for extending the right of suffrage to this community," Capper said.

Last spring, in a city-wide referendum on the issue, an overwhelming majority of Washington residents voted in favor of suffrage here. The House Judiciary Committee later held hearings on the question, but failed to act.

Mrs. Helen Mark Named Head of Station WOL

Mrs. Helen S. Mark, widow of Leroy Mark, president of the American Broadcasting Company, operator of station WOL, who died recently, was named yesterday to succeed him as head of the company in a general reorganization of the executive officers.

Others named were William B. Dolph, executive vice president and general manager; W. L. Shaffer, treasurer, and A. J. Jett, secretary.

Assumes Task of Dealing With $226,751 Deficit

John A. Reilly, president of Second National Bank of Washington, yesterday was unanimously elected treasurer of the Community Chest at a meeting of the board of trustees in the Chamber of Commerce Building.

The treasurer is the only officer of the Chest elected at this time of the year. Reilly will take over the custody of Chest funds, beginning January 1, his major problem dealing with the $226,751.38 deficit in the $2,127,000 goal drive.

Herbert L. Willett, jr., Chest director, reported that the audit through December showed total pledges of $1,900,248.62, an addition of $25,120.35 over the final figures released November 30 at the official conclusion of the campaign.

"The Community Chest has the growing support of a large percentage of the public," said William J. Flather, jr., campaign chairman. He pointed out that this year's 190,173 subscribers is the largest in the history of the Chest, Flather declared:

"The failure to reach the goal means that some of that group might have given more generously if they had realized that actual suffering—desperate families turned away from family welfare agencies, sick children denied the advantages of adequate convalescence, child kept out of nursery schools—would result from a necessary curtailment of agency budgets."

J. S. Gorrell, chairman of the budget committee, reported his unit is hard at work reconsidering each agency and its services in order to make the inevitable cuts "where they will hurt least." This is an almost impossible task, he said, since budges had been set up originally on a minimum basis.

Tribute was paid newspapers, radio, and theaters here for their support of the Chest drive by Charles B. Dulcan, sr., public relations chairman.

Lost 23 Years Ago, Watch Is Found But Owner Is Dead

Alexandria police learned last night the owner of a stolen watch which it took them 23 years to recover probably is dead.

The timepiece was stolen 23 years ago from Lawrence William, who was visiting the city at the time. When it was found in a second-hand store last week by Washington police, Alexandria authorities were unable to find William's address or the name of the family he had been visiting.

Yesterday the police received a letter from Alex F. Gibson, Ennice, N. C., who said William died several years ago. Gibson suggested that the watch be given his son, now living in Ennice.

Lieut. Edgar Sims, of Alexandria, said the watch would remain in the possession of Washington police until Gibson could give more definite proof of its ownership.

Daniels Lauds Wilson's Ideals; Wreaths Laid on Tomb Here

One Card Signed 'The President' Sent With Flowers Here

Maj. H. B. Smith, U. S. A., placed a wreath bearing a card signed, "The President," on the tomb of Woodrow Wilson in Washington Cathedral yesterday, a token of Franklin D. Roosevelt's remembrance that the day was the eighty-second anniversary of the birth of the World War President.

Maj. Smith, a White House military aide, was met at the door of the Cathedral Chapel by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, and the Rev. William Murray Bradner, canon precentor, who offered prayer at the tomb.

Beside the wreath of President Roosevelt, who was Wilson's Assistant Secretary of the Navy, were laid a wreath signed by Mary J. McKinley, chairman of the Woodrow Wilson Memorial Wreath Fund, of San Francisco; a wreath of white carnations from officers of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, of New York, and a floral remembrance from the Democratic Women's Luncheon Club, of Philadelphia, in the name of its president, Miss Ellen Gowen Hood.

Other floral tributes were expected from friends of President Wilson in Grand Rapids, Mich., St. Louis and other cities.

The tomb, recessed in the south wall of the chapel, had been decorated with Christmas greens and poinsettias by Mrs. Wilson, who came quietly to the Cathedral on the day before Christmas.

'Too Great for His Generation,' Asserts Wartime Navy Chief

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 28 (AP).—Josephus Daniels, Ambassador to Mexico, said today that most of the world's present troubles could have been averted if the ideals and aims of former President Wilson had been accepted.

Ambassador Daniels, who was Secretary of the Navy during the Wilson Administration, described the former President as a man "too great for his generation."

His statement follows:

"The last time I talked with Mr. Wilson, he said: 'Do not trouble about the things we have fought for. They are sure to prevail; they are only delayed.' With characteristic quaintness which gave charm to his sayings, he added: 'And I will make this concession to Providence—it may come in a better way than we proposed.'"

"As the years pass, my conviction grows that if the ideals and plans of Woodrow Wilson had been accepted most of the ills that afflict mankind today could have been averted. His great deed was too great for his generation, but it must be realized if the world is to avoid war and chaos."

Cab Man Points To Bandit Suspects

A District cab driver yesterday identified E. R. Kennon, 31, of Pender, Va., and Ronald Corrick, 31, 1100 block of M street northwest, at the Fairfax County Jail as the men who held him up and robbed him the same night the pair is alleged to have kidnaped a second driver and slashed a Vienna (Va.) druggist.

Roger Smith, colored, 45 Quincy place northwest, identified the pair as having robber him last Monday night.

The suspects were captured, police said, after they forced Carroll A. Neitzey, of 87 New York avenue northwest, to drive them from Fairfax to Vienna, and held up a drug store.

18 WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1938 X*

This Morning

Baseball's official Hall of Fame is being redied to receive another of the game's immortals. It is voting time again and the Nation's baseball writers are pondering their ballots, which will decide the newest name that will be inscribed on a plaque to be hoisted into a niche in the Cooperstown, N. Y., gallery.

POVICH.

The Hall of Fame is a tight little company, exceedingly tough to crash. Grover Alexander, inducted into the circle last winter, didn't make the grade until the voting was in its third year. This year, as usual the ballots are marked "vote for ten candidates." But none is assured the honor.

Only those baseball men who poll 75 per cent of the total votes cast are accepted. Such as George Sisler, Wee Willie Keeler, Eddie Collins, Frank Chance, Ed Delahanty, Roger Bresnahan have been figuratively black-balled. Immortal baseball figures they may be, but not immortal to the extent that they were the choices o. 75 per cent of the voters.

Last year the baseball writers voted for ten candidates, but Alexander alone polled sufficient ballots. And Old Alex, with a pitching record that in many respects was the most phenomenal in all baseball, had to wait three years before gaining recognition. The Hall of Fame, as I was saying, is getting tough to crash.

Alexander, for example, pitched in more National League games (696) and won more (373) than any other pitcher in history. For six years he led his league in the number of complete games pitched. He holds earned-run records, pitched 16 shutouts in a single season, and has four successive shut-outs to his credit.

Yet it was one pitched ball that probably catapulted old Alex into more fame than all his other pitching performances. That ball was the third strike of the oft-told strikeouts of Tony Lazzeri with the Cardinals, leading 3 to 2 in the seventh game of the 1926 World Series, with the bases full.

Wore Honors Modestly

Acclaimed for that feat, old Alex wore his honors modestly. "Yeah, but if that second strike by Lazzeri had been fair instead of foul, he'd have been a hero and I'd have been a bum," he said.

The fellow who broke into the big leagues in 1910 by setting an all-time record of winning 28 games in his first season, and won more than 30 games in three seasons, never did pitch a no-hitter. But he did pitch four one-hit games in a single season, and the fact that a pitcher of his caliber could never pitch a perfect game while no-hitters have been hurled by inferior pitchers would seem to make out a case against a no-hit game as a lucky affair. Walter Johnson waited 13 years to pitch his only no-hitter.

If last year's Hall of Fame voting is an indication of what might be expected in the current balloting, then George Sisler and Wee Willie Keeler will be elected to a place in the Cooperstown gallery. Each polled 68 per cent of the 1937 votes and it is reasonable to expect that either or both will top the 75 per cent mark this year.

But the voters will be remiss, I am thinking, if they do not elevate Clark Griffith to the Hall of Fame within a few years. For four years now they have overlooked a personality who certainly ranks with baseball's immortals. He was not the great pitcher that was Alexander, or Johnson, or Plank, but his recommendations are nevertheless many.

He did lead the American League in pitching with 27 victories in 1900, the first year of its organization, and by that time Griffith was far past his peak as a pitcher, definitely slowing up. And he piloted the Chicago White Sox to the first American League pennant that year as a playing manager.

But Griffith's recommendations for the Hall of Fame nominations are not confined to his playing talents. Until Connie Mack was elected president of the Athletics two years ago, Griffith stood alone as the only man in either league who rose from the ranks of the players to the presidency of a big league club.

Helped Organize League

He was, in fact, an organizer of the American League—one of the three men who successfully waged the war against the National League during those struggling early years when the National refused to recognize the American as a major league circuit. Ban Johnson and Charles Comiskey are the other two. And the Nats' owner has always been high in the councils of league affairs.

In fact, Griffith and Connie Mack are the only two baseball men in attendance when the league owners hold their annual meeting. The others are comparative Johnny-come-latelys to the game and look to Griffith and Mack for counsel. When the new American League rule permitting pitchers a freer use of their feet in delivering a ball was adopted this month, there were club owners at the meeting who had no idea how the rule would work or what it meant.

In fact, with Connie Mack looking on approvingly, it devolved on Griffith himself to give a demonstration of the rule to baseball writers. The old gentleman drew an imaginary pitching rubber and went through all the motions of making a pitch under the new rule.

Fifty-one years he has given to baseball. For 38 he has been a manager or a club owner. He is one of the few club owners who talks the ball players' language. There have been better pitchers, but none smarter. Not until the day his name reposes on a plaque at Cooperstown will he actually be given his due.

Western Grid Squad Stages Scrimmage

Hard Work Surprise As Team Practices For Game With East On January 2

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Dec. 28.—Scrimmage, and not of the powder puff variety, appeared on the training program of the Western team today in preparation for the big all-collegian charity football game here January 2 with the East.

It was a surprise move by the Western coaches, "Biff" Jones and Orin Hollingbery. With five days to go it had been expected practice would be reduced to tapering off routine. The Eastern squad directed by Bernie Bierman and Andy Kerr eliminated actutal scrimmage last Sunday when half a dozen of the players received bruises and other minor injuries.

Coach Hollingbery explained the time had come to determine just how good a squad he and Jones had under their charge. Stanford University players, on whose campus the West team trains, came to the rescue. They rounded up an eleven composed of Stanford and some Oregon State College players.

Against this pick-up team, the West ran off its assortment of plays, and polished defense against ground and aerial attack. Dave Anderson, University of California fullback, who hurt his side in the Georgia Tech game Monday, turned up in good shape for today's rough going.

In contrast to one practice for the West, Coaches Kerr and Bierman sent their Eastern stars through morning and afternoon drills. John Wysocki, Villanova end, who was the major casualty of the last scrimmage with a wrenched back, was in uniform, but took it easy.

Cliff Wilson, blocking back from Harvard, and Wilbur Moore, right half, from Minnesota, earned the day's coaching plaudits.

"Wilson's blocking is as powerful and correctly executed as I have seen this year," said Kerr. "Moore can really run with the ball. Not much has been said of these boys, but it wouldn't be surprising if they were headliners during the game.

The East's passing attack, employed against a group of college players who have completed the season and reside in the Berkeley area, clicked sharply. John Pingel, Michigan State star, filled the role of pass thrower.

$3,000 Open At Houston

Final '38 Tourney Starts With Pro-Am Tournament Today

By the Associated Press.

Houston, Tex., Dec. 28.—In raw temperatures more adaptable to skiing than golfing, many of the Nation's top-notch professional tournament players went the rounds of River Oaks' narrow fairways today in preparation for the 54-hole $3,000 Houston Open which gets under way tomorrow.

Sammy Snead, long-hitting West Virginian and the Nation's top golfing money player in 1938, was out for his first trip over the course. Snead has been installed as co-favorite with Harold Jug) McSpaden, winner of the 1938 Miami Open.

McSpaden has been on hand since Friday and has turned in several tuneup rounds.

Dick Metz, the Chicagoan; Byron Nelson, of Reading, Pa.; Ben Hogan, of Fort Worth; Don Schumacher, of Dallas, and Jack Burke and Jimmy Demaret, of Houston, all turned in near par scores in their first trips today.

Play in the pro-amateur event will begin tomorrow morning with approximately 100 players entered. The first 18 holes of the Open will be played Friday and the field will be trimmed to 64 players Saturday for the last 36 holes.

When the tournament closes Saturday afternoon, the P. G. A. will write some new marks into its record book. The $3,000 Open will boost the total tournament prize money for the year to $185,000, Fred Corcoran, tournament manager of the P. G. A., said.

Favorites Victors In Girls' Net Play

Chestnut Hill, Mass., Dec. 28 (U.P.).—Favorites moved into the semifinals of the fifteenth annual National Girls' Indoor Tennis tournament after gaining one-sided victories in quarter-final matches at the Longwood covered courts late today.

Defending Champion Helen Bernhard, of New York, defeated Carolina Cooke, of Newton, 6—0, 6—0, to enter the semifinals, while Cissy Madden, of Boston, seeded No. 2, defeated Lillian Lopaus, Garden City, Long Island, 6—0, 6—2.

The other quarter-final matches saw Dorothy Wightman, of Brookline, defeating Baba Madden, of Boston, 6—4, 6—1, and Josephine Sanfilippo, of Brooklyn, N. Y., besting Kathryn Hubbell, of Dedham, 6—0, 6—1.

Budge-Vines Match Draws Record Gate

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—The first Don Budge-Ellsworth Vines pro tennis match, scheduled for next Tuesday at Madison Square Garden, already is a financial record breaker according to Promoter Jack Harris.

A week before the match, Harris says, the advance sale amounted to $14,858, a record for tennis at the Garden.

When Vines and Fred Perry played before a record crowd and for a record "gate" the sale at the same stage was only $7,765. And top price for the Vines-Perry match was $9.90, as compared to a $7.70 top next week.

Local Boy Moves Into Fourth Round of National Junior Play; Other Choices Win

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 28.—Seedings in the National Junior Indoor Tennis championships remained intact today when 11 ranking players moved into the fourth round, led by Joey Fishbach, defending champion, who overwhelmed Judah Lober, of New York, 6—4, 6—0.

Seymour Greenberg, of Chicago, Fishbach's leading rival, crushed Andrew Reynolds, of Hastings, N. Y., 6—0, 6—2, while Isadore Bellis, of Philadelphia, seeded third, routed Rosslyn Lyell, of Rye, N. Y., 6—1, 6—2.

Bill McGehee, of New Orleans, ranked behind Bellis, subdued Costa Leodas, of New York, 6—2, 6—2, and was joined in the round of 16 by Bill Gillespie, of Atlanta, seeded fifth, who defeated Orme Wilson, jr., of New York, 6—3, 6—0.

Bill Umstaedter, of Millburn, N. J., seeded sixth, who drew a bye in the first round and won by default in the second, finally tasted competition today and dropped a set before eliminating George Collins, jr., of Forest Hills, N. Y., 6—4, 1—6, 6—3.

Other seeded winners were Robert Freedman, of Springfield, Mass.; Malcolm Weinstein, of Philadelphia; Harry Van Rensselaer, of New York; Don Buffington, of Atlanta, and David Johnsen, of Washington, D. C. Melvin Schwartzman, who was seeded eleventh, was defeated yesterday.

E. Victor Seixas, of Philadelphia, led his three seeded mates into the third round of the Boys National Championships when he turned back Paul Napolitano, of Trenton, N. J., 6—2, 6—2. Second seeded E. Blair Hawley, of New York, advanced by default. Gardner Larned and James Evert, of Chicago, completed the victorious quartet.

The first round of boys' doubles opened today with eight teams, two of them seeded. Evert and Larned, top-seeded, conquered Sid Weinstock and Louis Cohen, of New York, 6—0, 6—0, while Seixas and Albert Shafer, of White Plains, N. Y., seeded second, advanced by default. Tomorrow's second round will be the quarter-finals.

Bellis and Weinstein, second-seeded pair, led the way into the second round of the junior doubles championships with a hard-earned 5—7, 6—2, 6—3 win over Louis C. Boochever and Jerome Lieberthal, Cornell University pair. Fishbach and Johnsen, top seeded among the 25 tandems, drew a bye.

Lawrence, D. C. Golfer, Pinehurst Qualifier

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Pinehurst, N. C., Dec. 28.—T. L. Lawrence, of Washington, D. C., qualified for match play today in the annual midwinter golf tournament on the No. 2 championship course of the Pinehurst Country Club. The Capital City entrant turned in a score of 54, 53—107, to enter the fifth division of match competition.

The medal winner was Henson Maples, of Pinehurst, the defending title holder, who posted 40, 40—80. Fred Perry, British tennis star, competing in his first golf tournament, went out in 38 for the lowest score of the first nine, but faltered on the way back for a 51, and finished out of the championship flight.

Duke Is Fit Physically For Trojans

Dan Hill's 'Injury' Is 'Crick' in Back; Both Teams Hold Secret Workouts

By the Associated Press.

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 28.—Duke's gridiron followers turned to the lighter side of their Rose Bowl engagement today, leaving the Blue Devil team to finish unattended its training for the coming encounter with the Trojans of the University of Southern California.

Wallace Wade, the quiet man of Duke, escorted his outfit through a Hollywood movie studio this morning and announced it was the last sightseeing expedition until after the game Monday.

He barred the gates to the practice field to everyone, permitting his journalistic advisors, among others, to plunge into the usual round of Rose Bowl social activities, and said he and his staff would worry along alone with the business of preparing the team for the game.

Hill Will Be Ready

Howard Jones, of U. S. C., similarly accommodated his camp followers, and so the two rival factions were left free of the actual training problems and can haggle, hope and pray without interruption.

Little official anxiety was expressed over the "crick" in the back developed yesterday by Tiger Dan Hill, cocaptain and center of the Devils, or the strange ailment contracted by speedy Mickey Anderson, Trojan reserve quarterback, who was thrown for a loss by too much Christmas turkey. Both players, said their coaches, will be ready for the battle.

Coach Wade continued to put his squad through heavy contact work, covering punts and passing. Eric Tipton's tremendous kicks have fulfilled all that was said of his ability, but the Duke passing hasn't been very impressive.

Show Aerial Attack

The Trojans, with Grenville Lansdell, Anderson and Oliver Day whipping the ball around, have shown a lot of aerial tactics all week. The Trojan warhorse doesn't intend to crack its skull against the powerful Duke line any more than necessary.

Speaking of Duke's unmatched defensive record, the fast-charging Trojan line need not blush in comparison. Of the nine touchdowns scored against Troy all season, only two were made on running plays. Ohio State blocked a punt on the 1-yard line and it took the Buckeyes three downs to punch it across, and Dick Johnston, of Washington, broke loose for 51 yards from scrimmage to defeat the Trojans and account for the other taly.

Jacobs Ties Bedwell's Mark By Leading Trainers in 1938

By the United Press.

New York, Dec. 28.—Hirsch Jacobs, a former pigeon fancier who tied the consecutive winning streak record this year, was hailed tonight as the leading trainer of thoroughbreds in 1938.

His three victories since the Florida season opened on December 19 tied the record held by H. G. Bedwell for six straight years.

Bedwell's reign began in 1912 and continued through 1917 while Jacobs started his winning campaign in 1933. Although Bedwell is one up in the point of number of yearly championships, having also earned the title of leading trainer in 1909, Jacobs is undisputed king in the winner's circle.

During the seven years of his leadership, Bedwell accounted for 663 winners as against 774 for Jacobs in the space of six years.

Like Johnny Longden, the season's leading jockey, Jacobs started his turf career in Cuba about ten years ago. It was at Old Oriental Park that both champions met, Longden, a fledgling of 18, and Jacobs, 26 years old. Out of this meeting grew a friendship that was instrumental in formulating the successful careers of both horsemen.

Jacobs conditioned horses for Charley Ferraro, and Longden rode for A. G. Tarn, Canadian sportsman, at the Cuban track. Each met with almost instantaneous success.

After the end of the World War, Jacobs returned to New York and Longden quickly followed. Jacobs opened a public stable which he gradually augmented with horses of his own. The stable later became one of the largest on the American turf. It was raced in the name of Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs, his wife.

Besides conditioning the horses of his wife, Jacobs guided the destinies of the thoroughbreds of Al Jolson, Damon Runyan, Isadore Bieber, W. Adrians and others. Although he never had Longden under contract, Jacobs always took advantage of the Canadian youngster's services when available. The combination reached its peak at tracks on the metropolitan circuit this year.

Jacobs' feats are all the more brilliant when it is considered that with rare exceptions his triumphs were scored with ordinary horses, for his wife's stable has boasted of very few thoroughbreds of stake caliber.

Orange Bowl Coaches Are Pessimistic

Vols and Sooners in Drills at Scene of Monday's Struggle; Pilots Are Gloomy

By the Associated Press.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 28.—Shaking their heads like a pair of gloomy Gil Dobies, coaches of the unbeaten Tennessee and Oklahoma football teams expressed dissatisfaction today with the results of semisecret workouts for next Monday's Orange Bowl game.

"Not so good," Coach Tom Stidham said when asked how the Sooners looked. "The boys look sluggish. They haven't recovered from the effects of the train ride. We'll spend the next three days trying to get acclimated, then we'll go out on the field Monday and pray."

Maj. Bob Neyland, the Tennessee coach, was almost as pessimistic.

Passing Is Hope

"Our hope is in passing," he said. "We're going to have to pass to get through that Oklahoma defense. Why, they outweigh us by a good 10 pounds to the man. Our offense has been overbalanced on the running side all season and we are trying to do something about it."

Stidham didn't agree.

"Our boys just look big because they are wearing red jerseys," he said. "The weights won't make any difference."

The first part of the Oklahoma workout was in public, but the Sooners went inside for the serious part of their practice and policemen guarded the entrances.

Oklahoma looked again at Tennessee plays after a thorough drill in calisthenics.

Stidham said he still was undecided who would start at left halfback in place of Howard (Red Dog) McCarthy, who stayed at home with a broken thigh. He said it was an open battle among Bob Seymour, Otis Rogers and Beryl Clark.

Troy Trims Local Pros By 35 to 27

Schonfeld Scores 13 Points in Vain; 3,000 See Game

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Troy, N. Y., Dec. 28.—The individual scoring brilliance of Mickey Schonfeld availed nothing tonight as Washington Heurich Brewers, of Washington, D. C., bowed to Troy Haymakers in an American Basketball League game here, 35 to 27.

Some 3,000 fans, one of the largest crowds of the season, saw Schonfeld connect from all angles to score five field goals and three fouls, but his one-man bombardment could not overcome the combined efforts of Perkel and Husta, who tallied 18 points between them.

The Brewers completely sewed up Kellett and Dubilier, Troy scoring aces, Kellett going scoreless and Dubilier scoring but 3 points.

Troy stepped away to an early lead and was ahead at the first period's end, 10 to 5. The Haymakers were leading at the second period's termination, 23 to 15.

Washington fought back spiritedly in the final third, but could not overcome the early lead compiled by the locals.

Georgetown Five Beats Central Celtics, 15-14

Rodill Leads Winners' Attack in Feature of Elimination Event; Stanton Aces Advance to Semifinals; Powell, Merrick Also Win

In the outstanding game of the daytime quarter-final round of the Boys Club of Washington annual basketball tourney yesterday at Central and Southeast branches, Georgetown Blues, last year's champs in the 85-pound division, moved up five pounds and won a 15-14 engagement from the Central Celtics. The game was one of three at the Southeast Club. Three tilts were also played at Central Branch during the day.

Most of the points and the winning margin of the Blues were marked up by Rodill, a diminutive guard. Rodill accounted for 10 of the team's 15 points. Center Densmore of the losers was second high in the scoring column with 6. Georgetown held only a 6-5 margin at halftime.

Of the three other 90-pound frays, Georgetown Grays were on the shortest end of a score. They were hopelessly swamped by the Blackhawks, 34-8. The difference was not the widest between teams for the day, however. Alexandria Boys Club earned a 34-4 victory over Southeast Branch in the 120-pound section. Forward Smith was the hero of the triumph, scoring 15 points by himself and generally proving himself the best on the floor. The loser's four points were scored with a single field goal and two foul shots.

In the only other 120-pound clash, Stanton Aces advanced to the semifinals with a convincing 35-18 lacing of Northeast Branch. Other 90-pounders were won by Powell over Northeast Ravens, 18-9, and Merrick Boys Club over Southeast Branch of the W. B. C., 22-12. Georgetown 120-pounders took the only forfeit of the day, advancing to the semifinals when Merrick failed to appear on schedule.

The feature game of the evening schedule, which sent into action the 135-pound and unlimited class teams founds Stuart Boys Club defeating Langley, 34 to 30, in two overtime periods. Sparacino's two baskets, his only points of the game, provided the winers margin of victory.

In other 135-pound class contests, Eckington Bakery nosed out Merrick, 22 to 21, in an overtime period; Stewart Bros. Photo defeated Gallinger, 34 to 13, and the Fleetwings beat the Democrats, 35 to 22.

In unlimited games, the Boys Club of Washington, central branch, trimmed its rivals from the Georgetown branch, 29 to 16; Northeast Boys Club's Big Five trounced Alexandria Boys Club, 30 to 16, and Merrick Boys Club outscored the Boys Club of Washington, Southeast branch.

Cabmen Bow To Marlboro

Hotel Team Nears Season's Record in District League

Marlboro Hotel pinmen neared the pace-setting Cuff and Santini team in the Men's District League in a postponed set at Chevy Chase last night by sweeping three games from Diamond Cab bowlers.

The Cabmen totaled 1,904 for the set, a figure that would win a majority of matches, but it was not enough to win a lone game from the Hotel five, that totaled second high set of the season in the city's No. 1 league, 1,951. They hold the record with a nine-pin higher total.

Astor Clarke, top ranking duckpin artist in the United States, was high for the night with a 168 game and 411 set as he led the winners. Guither and Wesley, with 392 and 391 respectively, paced the losers.

A 636 count for the Marlboro team in the first game was 12 pins better than the Cabmen, and both teams went wild in the second tilt, with Marlboro topping Diamond by 13 pins with 685 to 672. A 630 count was good enough to take the third game for the Hotel team as the losers slipped to 608.

Reds Schedule 20 Exhibition Games

Cincinnati, Dec. 28 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds will put on 20 exhibition games with National and American League clubs during their spring training in Florida and the trip North for the 1939 race.

The schedule announced today showed the first game with Brooklyn at Clearwater March 11 and the last with Detroit at Cincinnati April 16.

No games have been booked with minor league teams.

Pitchers and catchers will report to the Tampa training quarters February 26 and the rest of the team March 4.

John Allen Enters Cleveland Clinic

Cleveland, Dec. 28 (AP).—Johnny Allen, ace pitcher of the Cleveland Indians, took his lame arm to Cleveland Clinic today for an examination. He expected to return tomorrow for further diagnosis in an effort to determine whether he would undergo an operation.

Bone fiber at the elbow is believed to have separated. A few weeks ago St. Petersburg (Fla.) surgeons told Allen an operation was not necessary, Indian officials said.

Allen said he made the trip here not because of any development, but as a precaution to insure his return to duty in the spring.

Nat Holman Hired By B'nai B'rith

Nat Holman, basketball coach at City College of New York for 20 years, has accepted appointment as national athletic director of Aleph Zadik Aleph, junior B'nai B'rith, whose 13,000 members sponsor the largest nationally directed Jewish youth sports program in the United States, according to an announcement by Sam Beber, president of the supreme advisory council of A. Z. A.

Krakauskas Was Griffs' Top Pitcher

Washington Ranked Sixth Among Teams; Grove's Earned-Run Average Was Lowest

A fact obvious to American League fans many months ago—that Lefty Grove and Charley Ruffing were the best pitchers in the league in 1938—is officially confirmed today by publication of the league averages.

Before his arm went dead shortly after mid-season, Grove compiled 14 victories against four defeats for the Red Sox and led all the pitchers with a winning percentage of .778. He topped the league's hurlers, too, in earned run averages with a low figure of 3.07.

Ruffing, working over the full season, turned in the most victories, 21, while losing only 7 and finished near the top in the earned runs column with a mark of 3.32.

Additional evidence of the woeful state of Washington's pitching staff in 1938 is revealed by the official averages which show that young Joe Krakauskas was the only Nats' hurler to win more games than he lost. Krakauskas turned in 7 victories against 5 defeats for a percentage of .583.

Krakky Nats Best

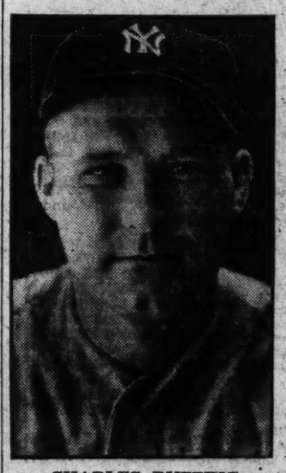

But the blond lefthander proved something of a sensation in the earned-run column. Among the pitchers who worked consistently, Krakauskas was second only to Grove in the earned-run ratings, allowing an average of 3.12 per game.

Dutch Leonard was Washington's second most effective pitcher, according to the statistics, which show him with a respectable earned-run average of 3.43. He won 12 and lost 15. Pete Appleton was the only other Washington pitcher to show an earned-run average of lower than five runs per game.

According to the team pitching figures, Washington rated sixth in the league, giving up an average of 4.94 earned runs per game. They pitched the fewest number of complete games in the league—only 59—and had the most wild pitches —47.

Yanks' Hitting a Factor

Heavy hitting of the World Champion Yankees undoubtedly accounted to some extent for the presence of five New Yorkers among the first

CHARLES RUFFING

14 regular pitchers. Ruffing and the other four—Vernon Gomez, Monte Pearson, Spurgeon Chandler and Irving Hadley—accounted for 78 of the Yankees' 99 victories last season.

Lefty Gomez, whose 2.33 earned runs mark was low in 1937, ranked close behind Ruffing the past season in this department and in won and lost standings. He allowed 3.35 runs per game, while winning 18 and losing 12.

Buck Newsom, workhorse of the St. Louis Browns, was Ruffing's only companion in the 20 games won class. He took an even 20 decisions and lost 16, working in 330 innings. No other pitcher participated in as many as 300 innings.

Bob Feller, Cleveland's young fireball star, put three new records on the books. He whiffed 18 Detroit batters in a regular nine-inning game, one above the previous mark, and struck out 28 men in 18 consecutive innings. This latter performance broke his own 2-year-old record of 27. He also fanned 38 men in three straight times on the hill for a new mark.

The dubious honor of issuing the most walks for a single season also went to Feller, who passed 208 batsmen, but he balanced this by leading the circuit in strikeouts, with a total of 240.

The league's only no-hit feat of the season was credited to Pearson, of the Yanks. Cleveland was his victim on August 27, only 27 men facing him. Two of these walked and seven fanned. He was the first Yankee to toss a no-hitter since Sam Jones turned the trick in 1923.

Bucs Shake Up Farm System

Pittsburgh, Dec. 28 (AP).—President W. E. Benswanger, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, announced today a revised list of working agreements with minor league baseball clubs for the 1939 season.

Three clubs discontinued as parts of the Pirate system were Montreal of the International League, Savannah of the South Atlantic League, and Mount Airy, N. C., of the Bi-State League.

Two new clubs added to the list are Gadsden, Ala., of the Class B Southeastern League and Valdosta, Ga., of the Class D Georgia-Florida League.

Football Coaches Decide Against Major Rule Changes

Down In Front

By Richards Vidmer

Back to the Battle

New York, Dec. 28.—On a September night, two years ago, the sturdy little fellow stood stunned in his corner of the ring and heard the crowd roar. But the cheers were not for him this time. Out in the center of the canvas-covered square another's arm was being raised, and the plaudits of the people were for the new champion.

VIDMER.

Even when they got around to thinking about the sturdy little fellow who had lost, they didn't feel especially sorry. After all, he needed no sympathy. He had worn two titles in the course of his career. He had been a favorite with the fans. He had known fame, and acclaim and popularity. And he had made a fortune from the ring. Now it was time for him to retire. There was nothing further the prize ring could give him, unless it was despair.

But the little fellow wasn't convinced. He had won too often. He had beaten better men than the new champion, yet when they faced each other six months later it was the same story. The sturdy little fellow was beaten again.

"All right," he said. "I'm through."

And everyone was glad, for they didn't like to see him lose. He had been too gallant a warrior in his time. He had been an heroic figure. He had been one fighter they could pay to see and know that they would not be cheated, for he packed every second of every round with action, and even when he was losing, even when he was cut and bleeding, battered and bruised, he never quit or curled up or stopped trying with his last ounce of strength and stamina.

Everyone was glad when he retired. They wouldn't have to worry about him getting hurt, and he wouldn't have to worry about himself. He was healthy, wealthy and wise.

Urge for Action

And that was over a year and a half ago. Yet the sturdy little fellow will be back in the ring at the Hippodrome Friday night. And as he sat on a rubbing table in Stillman's Gymnasium after a workout, I asked him why.

His curly brown hair was wet from the exercise he had just finished. His nose was spread across his face, his lips were puffed, his ears bulged in strange places. And his eyes were scarred, but bright and eager. Why are you making this comeback, Tony?

"Because I didn't have anything else to do," he said, looking up. "I've always been active. Had something to interest me. I couldn't just lie around and get fat."

But what had he been doing during the year and more since he retired? He hadn't just loafed. I had heard about various enterprises which at least carried his name. Tony Canzoneri's restaurant——

"Yes, but that didn't do so well. Dempsey can have that restaurant business. It's not for me. You know, I like people, but I can't like people I don't know. Dempsey's got a knack for that stuff—making everybody feel that they're his friends the first time he meets 'em. Or even if he doesn't meet 'em and they just come up and stick out their hand. But not me. Besides when I want to go out somewhere—to the pictures or a show—I want to go. No, the restaurant didn't work out very well."

Then there was some sort of haberdasher store. Whatever became of——

The little fellow shrugged his shoulders. Maybe he just wasn't meant to be a businessman. Maybe he belonged in sports.

Well, wasn't he making book at the Florida races last winter? How did that——

Apparently all the favorites won. Tony didn't seem to want to talk about that venture. It was just one more business that didn't work out so well. Could it be that he was making this comeback because he needed the money? Why, when he retired——

So Far, So Good

"Of course, money is the basis for almost everything we do. Besides when a fellow has been making money as long as I did, he doesn't like to stop. But that wasn't the reason, really. That restaurant and store and Florida business—they didn't amount to much. No, I'll tell you. I was down in Florida last winter and I suddenly discovered I weighed 166 pounds! Think of that."

"Yes, sir, I weighed 166 pounds. So I decided I had to do something about it. First I came up here to an athletic club and took some exercises. That didn't help very much. Then I went up to Bill Brown's place. What a workout they give you up there! Up before 6 o'clock and doing something all day long. You're supposed to be in bed by 8:45, but I was in bed by 8 o'clock every night. I couldn't wait."

And Bill Brown, the boxing commissioner, talked him into making a comeback——

"No. I just decided I would do a little boxing to keep in the shape he put me in. And as long as I was going to box, I might as well box for money while I was about it."

That decision was made as long ago as last July. A fight in Jersey. A fight in the coliseum. A fight in the Ridgewood Grove. One victory after the other. Friday night the Hipprodrome against Eddie Zivic. Tony is on the comeback trail, but where will it lead him?

"I don't know. I feel good. I felt loosened up in my last fight, like I used to feel. Maybe I'll be champion again. I've watched Henry Armstrong fight several times, and I know he's good. One of the best lightweights who ever lived. But, well——"

He hesitated, leaving his sentence unfinished and hanging in the air. I finished it for him; Tony Canzoneri was one of the best lightweights who ever lived, too.

Lou Little Urges Game Be Stabilized

Several Minor Changes to Be Made To N. C. A. A. Rules Body Next Monday

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—Intercollegiate football, the Nation's gridiron coaches decided today, is humming along smoothly and doesn't need any general overhauling.

A meeting of the National Football Coaches Association's rules committee failed to produce a single recommendation for a major change in the sport's regulations.

Lou Little, Columbia mentor and rules committee chairman, summed it up when he said: "We feel the game generally is satisfactory. Defense and offense are fairly well equalized and what we are after now is a period of stabilization—one in which little technical changes may be made to advantage, but which will not confuse either spectators, players or coaches."

Minor Proposals

Several minor proposals will be made to the National Collegiate Athletic Association rules committee, which meets next Monday at Colorado Springs, Colo. This rules body, with power to legislate gridiron regulations, will be asked to rule that a forward pass touched by an ineligible receiver on or behind the line of scrimmage carry a penalty of 15 yards from the previous down, together with loss of the down.

Under the present rule, if the forward pass hits an ineligible player, the ball goes to the opponent at the spot of the previous down. This change was recommended to permit more shovel passes without the severe penalty of loss of the ball.

The mentors also recommended that in the case of a forward pass, all ineligible men must remain on the line of scrimmage until the pass is touched or is incomplete, with the penalty for violation to be 15 yards from the spot of the preceding down and the play to be counted as a down.

Equipment Studied

The coaches recommended that equipment be studied to reduce injuries, several mentors reporting injuries suffered from shoe cleats made of material too brittle.

It also was decided to tighten up on the rule against intentional grounding of passes, the mentors recommending that "the fact that a defensive player is near the point where a pass is grounded should not be taken as prima facie evidence that the pass was not intentionally grounded."

Some coaches felt that on a kick from scrimmage, when a foul is committed while the ball is in the air, that the present rule giving possession to the offended team at the spot of the foul was too severe. The N. C. A. rules body was asked to study this question.

Punt Rule Altered

It also was recommended that a punted ball touched or downed by the kicking team no longer be considered a foul. Under the present rules, fouls by both teams on the same type of play offset each other. Under the recommendation, if the receiving team commits a foul on the play, the kicking team could decline the penalty and elect to continue play and take the advantage of what may have been a long punt.

Little said there was only brief discussion of the rule prohibiting passing from within 5 yards behind the scrimmage line and the possibility of giving more protection to passers.

New Mexico, Utah Gridders Prepare For Sun Bowl

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 28 (AP).—This Texas border city laid out the welcome mat tonight for visiting football firemen and a probably 22,000 who will witness them tangle next Monday in the Sun Bowl.

First to arrive were Coach Ike Armstrong and a squad of 30 Utah University gridders. They lost no time in getting on their cleats and going to work on the practice field.

At Albuquerque, the University of New Mexico squad, 43 strong, boarded their train to arrive here tomorrow morning. The New Mexico outfit appeared in top shape as it ripped through the last serious scrimmage before Monday's game.

Utah, Rocky Mountain Big Seven champions, will pit its vaunted power against the speed and open style of play of the New Mexicans, border Conference titlists. Neither Coach Ted Shinkey, of New Mexico nor Armstrong has seen the other's team play this season and go against each other without benefit of scouting.

Mount Vernon Purse Is Won by Fairflax

New Orleans, Dec. 28 (AP).—Fairflax, the speedy sprinter from the Fairflax Stable, won the Mount Vernon Purse today in easy fashion from a small but classy field at the Fair Grounds.

The 3-year-old son of Sweep went to the front from the break and drew out entering the stretch. The winner paid $5 for $2. Brown Knight was second and Zevson third.

Scottish Football

Glasgow, Dec. 28 (AP).—In first division, Scottish football league matches played today Motherwell defeated Kilmarnock, 3-1, and Albion Rovers and Ayr United played a 3-3 draw. The games were originally scheduled for December 24, fog and snow forcing postponements.

The meeting of the Terror and Chief Chewaki looms as one of the wildest, roughest matches ever seen here. Both big, strong fellows who have little regard for the rules governing the grunt and groan sport, they delight in infuriating the spectators by illegal tactics.

The Chief has been known to magically produce coat hangers, barrell hoops and even hatchets to subdue a stubborn foe.

Scalzo Foe Has Tutors

Lou Transparenti Has Kid Williams, Chaney as Helpers

If Transparenti, the youngest of a fighting family, can master these two things, Chaney and Williams predict he'll surprise Scalzo who shoved himself near the top of the featherweight ranks recently by chilling Joey Archibald, recognized as world champion by the New York State Athletic Commission.

Tommy O'Toole Meets Hank Methany, Ryan Opposes Chief Little Wolfe in Prelims

The Golden Terror and Chief Chewaki, a pair of villains, headline tonight's bargain bill wrestling show at Turner's Arena. The Terror, a 310-pound masked individual whose identity is carefully guarded, will be seeking his fifth straight local victory.

Four other matches are on the card. Tommy O'Toole, handsome Irishman who gave Champion Jimmy Londos quite a tussle here recently, meets Slammin' Hank Methany; Chief Little Wolfe, Navajo Indian who was the first to introduce the Indian death lock, clashes

Sox Card 30 Exhibitions

Boston Will Meet Cincinnati 14 Times Play No A. L. Teams

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Dec. 28.—The Boston Red Sox today announced a 30-game spring exhibition schedule, including a 14-game series with the Cincinnati Reds, four with the Boston Bees and three with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Following custom, the Red Sox management did not arrange games with any American League rivals and the only other major league teams on its "grapefruit" list was the St. Louis Cardinals.

Last season the Bosox scheduled 12 games with the Reds and six with the Bees. This season's list also includes games with the Newark International League Club, Louisville and Kansas City of the American Association, and Atlanta of the Southern Association.

Before breaking camp at Sarasota on March 31, the Red Sox have four games with the Reds and two with the Bees. The last half of that intra-city series will be played in Boston before the regular season openings.

After playing twice in Atlanta on April 1 and 2, the Red Sox will join the Reds for the trip north and will play at Macon, Ga., Augusta, Ga., Columbia, S. C., Florence, S. C., Lexington, N. C., Greensboro, N. C., Durham, N. C., Rocky Mount, N. C., before separating at Roanoke, Va., on April 12.

Frankman Wins Boxing Feature

Fairmont, W. Va., Dec. 28.—Leroy Frankman, Fairmont, hammered out a decision over Young Sparky, Moundsville, in the main bout of a matinee boxing show here. Frankman weighed 117, Sparky 115.

Frank took five of the ten rounds, Sparky won two and three were declared even. The Moundsville fighter was floored for no count twice in the second round and once in the seventh. Sparky sent Frankman to the canvas in the sixth for no count.

Carl Turner, 154-pound Fairmont Negro, took eight of ten rounds to win the decision over Joe Brannon, 158, of Pittsburgh.

Raiders Hold Stiff Workout

600 Numbed Fans See Texas Tech Drill for Gaels

By the Associated Press.

Dallas, Dec. 28.—Six hundred numbed fans poked their heads out of overcoat shells today and gaped at one of the strangest of football's many whacky angles—an "open house."

Disregarding the sacred rules of secret and mysterious football practice, Texas Tech's undefeated Red Raiders gave the fans a pretty concrete idea of what to expect when they meet the St. Mary's Gaels in the Cotton Bowl Monday.

Three tackling dummies were tied together in the center of the field and 38 raiders vied in seeing how far a human could knock three big bags of wet sawdust with a flying block.

Rather tame, this procedure, so Coach Pete Cawthon sent them into the "bucking strap plunge." Two dubious visiting coaches got on opposite ends of a contrivance that looked like a harness for an army tank and held it taut while ball carriers lunged into it at top speed and tried to take the coaches along with them. They did.

Then the guards and tackles got down on all fours and butted heads for a few minutes while the backs ran hidden ball formations in which the ball would bob up in an empty helmet on the side lines, etc.

Coach Cawthon gracefully explained beforehand that his boys wouldn't stoop to such things as being illegal on a football field and then let them loose on some trick kickoff formations.

The fun ended when Cawthon plunged a knife in the ball and stuck the limp leather under the jersey of a nonchalant halfback who trotted 40 yards without even his own mates knowing whereabouts of the missing ball.

Joe Dreifus Trial Coach

May Handle Local Professional Team Throughout Season

A trial basis whereby he will be tendered a contract for the remainder of the season in the event his services prove satisfactory yesterday was agreed to by Joe Dreifus, newly appointed coach of Washington Heurich Brewers, just prior to Washington's invasion of Troy, N. Y., for last night's American Basketball League game with Troy Haymakers.

Under the agreement entered into with sponsor Heurich yesterday Dreifus will be on probation prior to Washington's game with Philadelphia Sphas on the night of January 8. In the event Dreifus' services over that period are satisfactory he will be placed permanently in charge of Huerich's rebuilding program.

Dreifus made good in his official debut as coach when Heurich Brewers defeated Wilkes-Barre Barons, 36 to 33.

On Sunday night in Heurich gymnasium at 9 o'clock Kingston's Colonials, currently leading the American Basketball League as a result of seven consecutive victories, will be entertained. On Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock Brooklyn's Visitations will be the attraction.

Ki Aldrich's Eye Hurt; May Miss Sugar Bowl Game

Fort Worth, Tex., Dec. 28 (AP).—Physicians said today Ki Aldrich, Texas Christian All-American center, "stood a good chance of being unable to play" in next Monday's Sugar Bowl game at New Orleans with Carnegie Tech because of a serious eye ailment.

The big center, bulwark of the T. C. U. defense, became seriously ill last night. He had been troubled with his eyes for more than a year after a dormitory prank when contents of a fire extinguisher were accidentally emptied in his face.

An eye ulcer developed. Physicians said Aldrich definitely could not practice any more this week and were pessimistic about his chances of playing Monday.

State Open To Danville

Virginia Pros Decide on Course; Minimum Purse $750

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 28.—The Virginia State Open Golf Association today selected the Danville Golf Club as the site of its 1939 tournament and fixed the dates as Friday and Saturday, June 16 and 17.

Secretary Ben Wahrman, of Richmond, said the decision was reached after a study of proposals from several other cities, including Lynchburg and Virginia Beach.

The minimum purse has been set at $750, which Danville Golf Club officials agreed to underwrite, but State association officials said they hoped to raise a substantial additional sum before June to insure the richest meet in State Open history.

The 1939 tourney will be the first handled by the association of professionals which was organized at Newport News last summer to take over the heavy responsibility of the open meet from the Virginia State Golf Association. Fred J. D. Mackay, Richmond, W. S. G. A. secretary, gave his official blessing to the new organization's plans today.

The tourney month was shifted from August to June after a poll which indicated most of the players would have a better chance of participating on the earlier date. Sunday was eliminated as a playing day at the request of the Danville club.

Chandler Harper, young Portsmouth professional, who dethroned Richmond's Bobby Cruickshank on Newport News' Old Dominion course this year, will head the imposing group of Virginia professionals and amateurs who will attack Danville's sporty 18-hole layout. Plans have been made to toughen the course for the tournament.

Cruickshank, president of the State's professional linksmen, who is teaching the game at Delray Beach, Fla., this winter, also will be on hand to try to regain the crown he wore for five years.

The participants will include two Danville pros, Tom Thompson and Dorsey Meade, ninth money winner this year. It was expected that the selection of a southside site for the first time would attract some newcomers from that section to State competition.

The State golf association, headed by Fritz Souder, of Charlottesville, will still handle the men's and women's amateur events, and sites and dates will be selected at a meeting here in April. The men's tourney is slated to go to Virginia Beach in June, and the women's meet also is expected to be awarded to a Tidewater club, probably for the midfall.

Blue-Gray Grid Rivals On Scene

South to Offer 10 Captains on Squad; Foe Start Secret Drills Tomorrow

By the Associated Press.

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 28.—Gridiron talent from both sides of the Mason-Dixon Line mobilized here today for the January 2 "Blue and Gray" charity battle in "the Cradle of the Confederacy."

The teams held brisk workouts in near-freezing weather soon after arrival.

Coach Frank Thomas, who with Jack Meagher, of Auburn, is directing the Dixie outfit, looked over the array of all-stars and said:

"This Blue-Gray game will boast more football talent than any game in the country on January 2. The Southern boys are in fine shape. I wish I was starting the season with them next year."

Coaches Lynn Waldorf, of Northwestern, and Carl Navely, Cornell, beamed at the first showing of the Northern gridsters. Their first orders were for an intensive passing drill. The "Blue" boys will use variations of the Warner wingback style.

Meagher and Thomas, both former Notre Dame players, started drilling their men in the Rockne shift. They likewise emphasized a passing game.

Making up the invading "Blue" team were stars from Pitt, Fordham, Cornell, Northwestern, Michigan State, Ohio State, Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Purdue, Bucknell, North Dakota State and Dartmouth.

The South drew its defenders from Alabama, Louisiana State, Texas A. and M., Southwestern, Auburn, Mississippi College, Vanderbilt, North Carolina, Clemson, North Carolina State, Miami University (Florida) and South Carolina. Ten of the "Gray" gridmen were captains of their college teams.

Ligaroti, Owned By Crosby, Draws Top Weight of 126

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Dec. 28.—Ligaroti, the flashy South American horse owned by Bing Crosby and Lin Howard, drew top weight of 126 pounds today for the running of the $10,000 New Year's Handicap next Monday at Santa Anita Park.

A. A. Baroni's Specify, which nosed Ligaroti out of the $10,000 San Francisco Handicap at Tanforan two weeks ago, drew 118 pounds, the same weight he carried in the San Francisco. Ligaroti packed 128 pounds that day.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Heelfly, which ran a dead heat with Seabiscuit better than a year ago, gets in at 119, along with Louis B. Mayer's Main Man.

Other weights for the 1 1-16 miles race were: Bourbon King, 116; Indian Broom, 114; Gosum, 110; Sweepalot, 110; Quick Devil, 108; Galsun, 107; Advocator, 107; Piccolo, 105; Merymood, 104, and Pageboy, 102.

Sir Asia Leads Throughout Tropical Feature Race in Mud

Bill Bennings

At the Post

Tropical Park, Dec. 28.

Dear Al:

What is so rare as a day in June? The answer is a rainy day at Tropical Park in December. That's what we had today and that's about the only excuse I can find for the Bennings selections. In fact muddy tracks are so few and far between hereabouts that stables with horses that cannot run on fast tracks deliberately leave these horses in the North for the winter before shipping to the orange country. Whitey Abel, with Honey Cloud and other good off-track horses, passed up Florida for California this season. Speaking of California, I got my first peek at an early book on the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap today. Zeke Caress, a prominent Western bookmaker, made up the "line" on the usual "play or pay" basis. He quotes Seabiscuit at 8 to win, 4 to place and 2 to show. Some of the other horses in which the Benningites might be interested follow: Cravat, 30, 15, 7; Count Arthur, 60, 30, 15; Dauber, 15, 7, 3; Esposa, 40, 20, 10; Heelfly, 20, 10, 5; Honey Cloud, 50, 25, 12; Jacola, 20, 10, 5; Journey On 60, 30, 15; Kayak II, 60, 30, 15; Pasteurized, 20, 10, 5; Porter's Mite, 20, 10, 5; Sun Egret, 100, 50, 25; Stagehand, 20, 10, 5; The Chief, 100, 50, 25; Time Alone, 100, 50, 25; Xalapa Clown, 30, 15, 7; Yale O'Nine, 50, 25, 12 (I'd like to have about $20 worth of that Yale O'Nine). The longest shots are Cross Sign and Cayenne, both quoted at 1,000, 500 and 250. Nice odds if you could get one of them home. BILL.

First race—Conditions here seem to suit the purposes of R. Pinchot. This veteran sprinter was in seventh position turning for home in his last and finished second going fastest of all. Assist was an even second in that last and is dangerous. Mint Patch is a possible surprise on an off track.

Second race—Jessie V. L. turned in a fair performance in her last and seems to fit a field of this sort. I'm going to string along. Gold Knightess gets in with a feather impost and may make good for the tipsters. The promise of an off track will aid Bay Drop.

Third race—Coronado has had many chances and gets my call in this maiden field. He was beaten a nose in his first appearance here and is promised a good ride by Jockey Schmidl. Carlsbads was third to the formidable Joharie last out and is a threat. Bullet B worked like the wind before being shipped here.

Fourth race—Dulcimer is a fair sort and has been assigned Eddie Arcaro in the overnight jockey lineup. Looks like the right spot. Candy Hero is plenty dangerous, but is on the reserve list. Ladfield showed poor form in that last, but has some class.

Fifth race—Shoulder Arms carries the top weight of 118 pounds in this, but is in rare form and looks like the winner at short odds. Suninplay is in clever hands and could surprise. Bigey is the class, but has been away some time.

Seventh race—Earl Porter was knocked back at the break in his last and closed with rush in final stages. With clear sailing, this one could take it all. What a Pal was second to Chimney Top in a sprint. Proprietary finished close to Melody Maid recently.

Eighth race—Black Gift raced as if short in that last outing and may last long enough to defeat a field of this kind. Stalagmite was downed two noses in a somewhat similar race here. Grand Jester for the show award.

Best bet—R. Pinchot.

WRENACE, slow to begin and forced back while trying to slip through on the inside after entering the backstretch, was taken around the leaders in the last half mile and gradually improved his position, wearing ESPINACA down in the closing strides. ESPINACA, a forward factor all the way, assumed command rounding the lower turn, but was unable to withstand the winner's bid in the final drive. WEST SEA went to the front with a rush approaching the half-mile pole, but weakened in the final furlong. BAREBACK, whipped to the front and used up racing EXHORT into defeat, quit after going five furlongs. EXHORT showed early foot.

BALAPIN, suited by the footing, went in close pursuit of the pace from the start, took command rounding the last turn, was rated in front and held on courageously when the final test came. WOULD DARE, far back in the early running, moved up fast on the inside leaving the backstretch, came outside the leader at the furlong pole and finished with good courage and would have won clearly in another stride. REBEL YELL moved up stoutly midway around the turn, but faltered as if he did not fancy the going in the last furlong. ALBUQUERQUE stopped to a walk after displaying high speed in the early running.

Daily Double, Wrenace and Would Dare, Paid $11.70.

ISAIAH took command at once, held his opposition safe for speed and maintained his lead with determination when it came to a drive. CHIMNEY TOP, forced to race wide on the stretch turn, closed with a belated rush in the last furlong. EQUERRY, well up and saving considerable ground all the way, held on tenaciously through the stretch. SUN ANTIOCH made a game effort entering the stretch, but hung in the stretch drive. BRANNON and MUGGINS had no mishaps.

WEATHER, CLEAR. TRACK, SLOW.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $700; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:30. Off 3:31½. Winner, J. Y. Pyle's b. m. (5), by Lucullite—Capture. PATSEY BEGONE, prominent contender on the outside, lost ground turning into the stretch, but responded courageously under punishment to wear WHA HAE down in the final stride. WHA HAE moved to the front rapidly in the run down the backstretch, assumed a short lead and was steadied in front, held on courageously when put to a drive and just failed to last. ESCOHIGH, in close attendance of the pace throughout, was in tight quarters between the leaders in the last sixteenth mile and faltered in the closing strides. NOTICE ME gained steadily while racing wide and was going strong at the end. VOLO SNOW, rated early, failed to respond when called upon.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 3:59. Off 4:01½. Winner, W. C. Stroube's b. c. SIR ASIA bettered his position gradually on the outside in the run down the backstretch, raced HAZEL F. into defeat rounding the turn, then opened up a winning lead coming into the stretch. BILLABONG, strongly urged all the way, wore HAZEL F. down through the stretch. HAZEL F. displayed good speed, but faltered in the final furlong. PIT TERRIER broke alertly, showed foot for about a half mile, but then retired.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $700; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:30. Off 4:35. Winner, Mrs. E. D. Jacobs' b. g. (2), by Black Servant—Conquest. GENERAL HOWES, prominent from the start, responded with determination when placed to a drive and held CITY JUDGE safe at end. CITY JUDGE, going forwardly on the outside, made a game effort entering the stretch, but was eased out by the winner and faltered under his impost. CHANCE WATCH bettered his position steadily while stealing through on the inside and closed stoutly through the stretch. HANDIBOY broke alertly, showed speed to the furlong pole, but faltered. MAJOR B., hard ridden, closed some ground. MACIE MARGARET raced evenly.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 60 yards. Purse, $700; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:01. Off 5:03. Winner, C. Ponce's b. m. TONI, lightly restrained in the opening half mile, bettered her position gradually on the outside rounding the lower turn and, closing with determination through the stretch, outlasted CAUGHT. The latter, sluggish early, responded to punishment in the last quarter mile and finished fastest of all on the inside. MINTSON, a forward contender all the way, assumed command after leaving the backstretch, opened up what appeared a commanding lead entering the stretch, but faltered suddenly in the last 50 yards. DARK BEAU, keen contender from the start, held on well in the final drive. PANORASCOPE, hard ridden, could not improve his position.

MACMAC gained rapidly on the outside after straightening out into the backstretch, shook off SEED entering the stretch, but was kept under brisk pressure to the finish. SEED, hustled to the front, showed the most speed while saving ground, responded to punishment, but was no match for the winner. MIXED WEATHER, well up the entire trip, held on gamely and outlasted BOB C in the final drive. The latter had no mishaps. HIGH END displayed scant speed.

Dead Heat Recorded in Second Race

Would Dare Even With Balapin at Finish of Thriller Arcaro Saddle Ace

By the Associated Press.

Tropical Park Fla., Dec. 28.—With the racing strip muddy—a condition that prevails only a few times during a season in this sector—fields were small for the program offered this afternoon. The featured Long Key Purse of 6 furlongs attracted seven 2-year-olds to the post. The W. C. Stroube-J. L. Collins entry of Sirasia and Pit Terrier ruled favorite at odds of 9 to 10. Sirasia, ridden out by Joe Rosen, triumphed by four length in 1:14 3-5.

W. C. Winfrey's Billabong squeezed into the place position by a half-length, while Fanfare Farm's Hazel F. was third, several lenghts clear of Pit Terrier.

The large crowd was augmented by a strong contingent from Miami Beach, as the elements persuaded many of the ocean lovers to spend an afternoon away from the waves. A heavy rain fell overnight and early this morning, and the threat of more showers remained most of the day.

Both Sirasia and Pit Terrier had won in California the past summer, although neither was successful when entered in stakes competition. This was the first appearance for the pair this winter.

Sirasia Has Speed

Sirasia showed a brand of speed that left his rivals wallowing in the "go." Rushing to the front just after the start, the Sir Gallahad III colt opened up a long lead. Jockey Rosen took no chances through the stretch and kept his mount under a drive. Billabong, outrun early, picked up the forward-running Hazel F. in the final sixteenth. Pit Terrier dropped back after holding down second place for a quarter mile. His help was not needed, as it turned out.

The winning entry gave favorite players their fourth score of the day, including a dead heat payoff on Would Dare in the second contest.

When the photo decision made the finish of the second race a dead heat between the favored Would Dare and Balapin, double payoffs were necessary in the straight and daily double pools, which were split. Would Dare paid $4, $4.10 and $2.80 across the board, while Balapin returned $6, $6 and $3.50. The daily double on Wrenace and Would Dare called for $11.70, while Wrenace and Balapin brought $55.30.

Would Dare, far back early, reached contention before entering the stretch and gradually cut down Balapin's lead in the last quarter mile. Would Dare was on the outside and many of his backers thought Balapin had lasted to win. Third money went to Rebel Yell, eight lengths behind.

Arcaro Takes Opener

The pace-setting veteran of the local jockey colony, Eddie Arcaro, gave his legion of followers a splendid start by winning the mile and a furlong curtain raiser aboard the favored Wrenace, a recent winner. The combination paid $6.90 and back in 1:55 flat. Wrenace was a distant trailer in the early stages. The gelding responded gamely to hard urging and, catching Espinaca in the stretch, beat that 9-year-old plater by a half length. West Sea tired after getting to the front on the backstretch. He finished third, five lenghts away.

Isaiah added his name to the list of repeaters at the meeting when he lasted under Warren Yarberry to win the third contest by a half-length. Chimney Top was another half-length better than Equerry for the runner-up honors. Isaiah, a fleet 8-year-old sprinter, dashed right to the front, drew into a wide lead, but had to be placed under severe pressure by his Texas rider to stick it out. Chimney Top closed with a belated rush that caught the tired Equerry in the final strides. Isaiah returned $6.90.

In one of the most exciting finishes of the meeting, Patsey Begone was awarded the photo verdict at the end of the six furlong fourth race. Three horses were noses apart at the wire, with Wha Hae, the choice, taking the place and Escohigh the show. Notice Me was only a half-length behind. Eddie Arcaro had Wha Hae slightly in front of Escohigh and Patsy Begone during the running. Even Arcaro's powerful urging could not save the day for Wha Hae's backers when Patsey Begone staged his last second bid. The latter was a 7-to-1 shot.

Arcaro Takes Another

Eddie Arcaro bounced back into the sixth race when he booted General Howes, a $7.80-for-$2 shot, home for his second victory of the afternoon. The General clicked by three-quarters of a length over City Judge. Chance Watch, last away from the inside, was an exceptionally game third, a half length farther behind. General Howes wore down Handiboy and City Judge to gain command in the final furlong.

The thrills kept piling up for the fans with the running of the seventh event. This brought about another blanket finish. The camera caught the $21-for-$2 chance, Toni, winning on the outside. Caught was second and Mintson third. There was a long delay before the officials reached a decision.

Chancer was the early leader, then Mintson charged to the front around the bend. Toni and Caught both made late bids and wound up fighting it out for first money.

On Fishing

The angler fishing southern Florida this winter is going to have plenty to keep him interested from the first of the year to early summer, for in addition to the Greater Metropolitan Miami Fishing Tournament it looks as though there will be in the British Bahamas, just across the gulf stream, a bluefin tuna match that will rival those held each year in Nova Scotia.

ACKERMAN

This choice bit of piscatorial news comes from C. N. Cook, manager of Cat Cay, the island home of L. R. Wasey, while he was in Miami several weeks ago, getting final details arranged for this fishing contest that will take place off Cat Cay sometime late in May or early June . . . the actual dates, of course, depending entirely on the time of the run of big fish, which varies slightly from year to year.

So that each angler will have an equal opportunity in the matches, it has been decided to fish only one from each boat, which brings up the rather important question of getting enough cruisers to accommodate the more than threescore big-game fishermen expected to compete. If it were no more than a good fishing cruiser needed, the answer would be simple, for there are hundreds in the Miami area. But it isn't so simple as that. The cruiser must be equipped for this fishing, and the captain and mate know not only their boat, but experienced in this fishing.

Already some thirty-five of the better known and experienced Miami guides have signified their willingness to participate, but if these events are pulled off in the usual Cat Cay manner there is little doubt but what that many more will be needed to fish the well known big game anglers from England, Cuba, Bermuda and this country.

Although the time of competition will be the usual three days of actual fishing, there will be fourteen days of real fishing, the judges designating the days to be counted in the contest. It is so arranged to be sure the big fellows are running, to prevent another fiasco such as that at Liverpool this summer, when for some unknown reason the large fish went far offshore, leaving only the small school tuna to supply what action there was.

Being on the grounds all the time it will be a simple matter for the judges to pick the days when the run is strong from watching the migrations of the fish.

There is to be a permanent prize for the matches, which seems to be ample proof these events are to be run each year, in the form of a silver tuna nearly 4 feet in length. The winner will have his or her name inscribed upon this trophy, and will in addition receive a sizable replica as a prize. This prize is more in the way of glory for the best accomplishment, the other prizes involve an outlay of money that in all probability will exceed $10,000.

To make it interesting for the boatmen there will be $1,000 for the one fishing the winner, $750 for the one fishing the runnerup and $500 for the one guiding the one in the show place. Enough to make the contest more than a little exciting, for those guides will be in there every day of the 14, fighting to bring home the bacon—and the cash.

As if that was not enough, the Cat Cay Tuna team already has posted a side bet of $5,000, and we understand, been covered by the Cuban team, winners of a like bet and the matches in Nova Scotia this year.

Teams from Jersey, Canada and England are expected to enter these events which will make this section a real hot spot of piscatorial activity.

Tommy Aitken has accepted as a new world's record for women the 92½-pound sailfish caught this month off Miami by Mrs. J. F. Crane, of Louisville, Ky.

Considering that the average weight of the Atlantic sailfish is about 35 pounds, that the women's record has stood at 88 pounds since 1925 with the fish taken off Fort Lauderdale by Mrs. John Lochrie, and that the largest ever caught only weighed 119 pounds, it looks like a real accomplishment for the fair sex. Shows that they are in there all the time and need to take a back seat for the sterner sex at no time, that it is only the law of averages that keeps them from holding more records. But they probably will, within the next few years for their numbers are increasing by leaps and bounds each season.

Another catch worthy of note was that of a sailfish last week off Cape Florida which weighed but 4½ pounds, and a happening worth mentioning, the small broadbill swordfish, estimated to weigh only about 50 pounds, that played around the baits of a fishing cruiser in the same section for more than 10 minutes, but failed to strike at any of them, although he seemed very much intrigued by an old feather that was being used as a teaser. We don't know just how it seems to have one of these greatest of all the fish that swim the open seas come up to a bait because we have never experienced it, but it is almost safe to say these anglers were about ripe for heart failure by the time he went on his way.

Wheat Prices Advance With Cold Report

Foreign Purchases of U. S. and Canadian Harvest Aids Rise

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—Predictions that a second cold wave would overspread the United States grain belt by tomorrow night moved Chicago wheat prices up nearly a cent today.

Transatlantic purchasing both of United States and Canadian wheat assisted the market to mount. About 3,000 tons from Canada were bought for shipment to Palestine, and 2,000 tons from the United States to go to Norway.

Adverse domestic weather also stimulated demand for corn, and there were more complaints of scorching temperatures in Argentina, where moisture is urgently needed by the new crop. About 400,000 bushels of United States corn was taken to be exported to Europe.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅜@¾ higher compared with yesterday's finish; May 68½@68⅝, July 68¼@68⅜; corn, ¼@½ up; May 53, July 53⅞; oats ¼@⅜ advanced; rye showing ⅛@¼ bulge, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents jump.

1938 Bond Defaults To Total $606,970,020

New York, Dec. 28.—Bond defaults in 1938 totaled 112 issues of a par value of $606,970,020, against 66 issues of a par value of $403,405,000 in 1937, and 862 issues of $3,454,870,000 par in 1933, according to the Standard Statistics Co.

In the past year, the railroads accounted for the greater part of the gain over 1937 when the total was $140,000,000. Utility defaults almost doubled in 1938. Industrial defaults on the other hand were less than 20 per cent of the 1937 figure. Real estate and foreign bonds showed little change from 1937. In the case of the industrials, 1933 was not the worst year of the depression, being exceeded by 1932 with defaults of $699,000,000. The utility bondholders also suffered more in 1932 with defaults of $593,000,000.

B. & O. Bond Sale Largest for Year

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—One of the largest individual transactions in the the bond market this year was recorded on the tape today in the sale of $238,000 face value of Baltimore & Ohio Railroad 6s of 1995 at $170 per thousand dollar bond. The previous sale was at $180.

The unusually large offering was attributed by bond brokers to year-end tax selling.

Rail Income Up 54% for Month

Net operating income of Class 1 railroads in the United States in November is estimated at about $50,000,000 as compared with $32,440,920 in the like 1937 month, a gain of 54 per cent. While this figure is some 27 per cent under the $68,565,755 reported in October, it is the highest level reached so far this year.

Gross revenues for the month are placed at slightly more than $320,000,000. This compares with gross of $318,180,377 in November, 1937, a gain of 5.7 per cent. Gross in October amounted to $353,440,983, which was 9.5 per cent above November.

The gain in net operating income over a year ago in November was the second consecutive month in which an increase in this figure has been reported. Moreover, the drop in 1937 from October to November was from $60,860,439 to $32,440,920, a decline of 46.7 per cent.

Year's Aircraft Production Is 30% Over '37

Valued at $150,000,000 Expected to Double in Value in Next 3 Years

New York, Dec. 28.—Considering that the tentatively indicated expansion of military demand might push annual aircraft production in this country to a level well above $300,000,000, prospects for manufacturing companies in the aviation industry are generally favorable, according to the monthly analysis of major industries published by Fenner & Beane. Production in 1938 is expected to total about $150,000,000, 30 per cent more than in 1937 and 50 per cent more than in 1936.

The transport division of the industry faces a full year 1938 net loss, probably the largest since 1934 when the air mail contracts were cancelled. The industry's hopes and prospects are bright, however, according to the survey.

"Great as it now is, dependence upon military business in the aircraft branch of the industry will be intensified, even if press accounts of a large scale defense program materialize only in part," the report states. "Within about three years, possibly as many as 7,000 planes may be added to this country's present air force of about 3,000 ships.

Foreign programs considered, export demand likewise will mount; air transportation also should contribute to the expansion of aggregate aircraft demand. Indications are that annual production may climb to a level well above $300,000,000.

Prices Rise in Year's Broadest Market Bond and Curb Trading Also Heavy Utilities Only Group to Yield

New York, Dec. 28.—Year-end influences on the stock market today took the form of producing the broadest market in well over a year and an increase in activity at rising prices. The tape carried transactions in 1,001 individual issues, the greatest number since October 21, 1937. Turnover on the big board amounted to 2,164,080 shares, the largest since last November 10 and similar records were piled up on the curb exchange.

On the smaller board there was trading in 591 individual stock issues, the largest number since October 19, 1937, and the curb's volume of 586,000 shares exceeded any day since last October 17. Trading in bonds of $15,440,000 on the big board was a new top since last October 19, and there were 768 individual bonds traded in, the greatest number since December 29, 1936.

New Peace Conference

Action of security markets was encouraging to the bullish forces. After an early morning dip, stocks rallied briskly. Firmness made its appearance early in the afternoon and a more convincing advance got under way when the news tickers carried reports that the big four of the Munich conference would get together soon for another conference. The cause of the meeting, according to Berlin dispatches, is the differences which have arisen between the French and Italians in the Mediterranean.. At the close of the market there had been no official word confirming the dispatches, but the rumor improved sentiment in the Street.

Just before the close the action for the rise was so spirited that the ticker was forced to fall behind two minutes in its effort to print transactions. Judged by the composite average, there was a rise in the market of 0.38 point, with only the utilities showing any softness.

This one division was weakened by drops in Detroit Edison and American Telephone. The former had not appeared on the tape since last Friday and a few transactions today dropped it down 5½ points. American Telephone has been a feature of recent weeks and displayed great firmness when the balance of the list was soft or irregular. It gave way a point today.

Steels and Rails Higher

Gains of 1 to 3 points were numerous among other speculative leaders with the best progress noted in the steels, equipment and rail issues. Aviations again were a feature, the most active stock of the day being Bendix Aviation, which is under General Motors control. It closed up nearly 2 points, making a new high. North American Aviation, up a point, also was at a new top.

Electric Boat, up about 2 points, was the second most active stock, being buoyed by the talk of larger armaments and the belief that the President, in his address to the new session of Congress, which will convene next week, will discuss in detail what the Nation should do to prepare itself. Steels moved along with the armament issues, United States Steel adding 1⅜ and Bethlehem nearly 3. Republic was up fractionally. Motors moved along with the upward trend, gains including about a point in Chrysler and ⅝ in General Motors, both made after these issues had sold off in early dealings.

Rails were helped along by the prospect of legislation in their favor in the early days of the new Congress and also by encouraging reports of loadings. Exact comparisons with a year ago are impossible because Christmas in 1937 was on a Saturday. With Monday a legal holiday this year, there was more than the seasonal decline in rail traffic. On the other hand the roads have felt the results of the generally satisfactory level of business at the close of the year, one reflection of which was the sudden spurt in Christmas buying just before the holiday.

Among the favorable items as we approach the new year was the report of the National Association of Purchasing Agents, which showed a further reduction in inventories during December in all sections of the country. Stocks on hand in some plants are said to be close to the operating minimum.

Bonds Active and Higher

Listed bonds were mostly higher today, in an active session that produced a turnover of $15,440,000, or the largest figure since October 19, 1937. Year-end tax adjustments obviously accounted for a large part of the business, as transactions were pushed in some instances and occasioned losses that were substantial in a few inactive bonds. The general trend of speculative bonds nevertheless was upward, while high grade investment media held around previous levels.

The great bulk of railroad bonds showed small gains, with occasional increases of 1 to 3 points recorded. Some of the cheaper issues that lately have been depressed owing to interest reductions were marked downward, since these bonds offered opportunities for tax sales. Default carrier bonds were in mild demand. Holding company bonds were dull, but convertible industrials tended to improve. The local traction group showed more losses than gains, and commodity bonds likewise declined. Other special groups improved.

United States Treasury issues were quiet in the formal market, with variations ranging from gains to 4/32 point to losses of 10/32 point. The intermediate maturities that lately were pushed upward suffered declines, but shortest datings advanced. Guaranteed issues of the farm and home corporations held to former levels. Best rated utility, railroad and industrial bonds were in quiet demand and remained at their high levels.

In the foreign section Latin-American bonds were generally maintained, with the results of the Lima conference disregarded. German and other European default bonds were irregular. Italian and Japanese bonds continued to drift lower. The best grade foreigns of Australian, Canadian and Scandinavian origin were fratcionally higher.

Year-End Steel Activity Holds At 40 Per Cent

January Orders of Auto Firms to Boost Rate to 50 Per Cent

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 28.—Iron Age said today in its weekly summary that automobile companies "probably will come into the market again for large tonnages" in the latter part fo January.

Ingot production this week, the magazine reported, will not exceed 40 per cent of the industry's capacity because of year-end cautiousness in steel buying and holiday shutdowns. It predicted, however, a rebound to about 50 per cent for next week.

"If automobile production during the winter months comes up to expectations," said Iron Age, "the needs of this industry, together with larger rollings of steel for construction, the railroads, the can manufacturing industry and the increasingly important group of miscellaneous consumers, should be sufficient to support ingot production to 60 per cent or higher during a considerable part of the first quarter.

"The steel industry is keenly interested in the proposals for railroad rehabilitation made by the special committee of railroad managements and labor, which if carried out constructively would mean much to both steel mills and equipment builders.

"With large-scale railroad buying, the outlook for 1939 would be materially improved, as other major consuming channels, including automobiles, construction and can manufacture, promise to take substantially larger tonnages than in 1938.

Advertising Lineage Gains 8.3% in Nov.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—The "printers' ink" index of newspaper advertising lineage for November, made public today, showed an advance of 8.3 per cent over October, the largest gain of any month this year.

The index, which is adjusted for the normal seasonal trend, showed a decline, however, of 5.2 per cent from the November, 1937, total. In October the year-to-year decline was 15.8 per cent.

Stock Issues Traded In Cross 1,000 Mark

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—The number of individual stock issues traded in the stock exchange today crossed the 1,000 mark for the first time since October 21, 1937.

Today's total was 1,001 and that on October 21, 1937, was 1,006. The greatest number of issues ever traded in the exchange was 1,043 on October 19, 1937.

At that time the market was just steadying up after a climatic selling period which capped a long decline.

Cotton Climbs In Trade Buying

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—Cotton advanced today when trade and foreign buying revealed a scarcity of contracts. March advanced from 8.33 to 8.47 and closed at 8.46, with final prices 12 to 15 points net higher.

The market opened 3 points higher to 2 lower, with the effects of steadier Liverpool cables offset by moderate liquidation and Southern selling. A spurt of covering in January carried that delivery up 11 points from an early low when only 3 additional delivery notices were issued.

Other months responded to the near month action and later received additional support, especially from Bombay and trade sources. The advance attracted covering late in the session and prices sold at the highest levels for the day in the closing dealings.

Federal Debt Hits All-Time High Record

Up to 38.6 Billion In November Despite Increased Revenues

New York, Dec. 28.—The Federal Government's receipts in November were larger than in the corresponding month last year but this increase was more than offset by a sharp rise in expenditures, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute today. The net result, after adjustment for debt retirements and trust fund operations, was an increase in the deficit to $302,000,000 this year from $205,000,000 last year.

Part of the deficit in November this year was met by withdrawing $122,000,000 from the Treasury. The remainder of the deficit was met by borrowing $180,000,000. This borrowing raised the Federal debt to a new high record of $38,603,000,000.

Social Security Funds

The Government in November, however, did not contribute to inflation by the full amount of the deficit, since expenditures included $129,500,000 of Social Security trust fund investments. However, the contribution to inflation was greater than a year ago when investments were nearly as large as they were this year while the deficit was smaller.

For the first five months of the current fiscal year, beginning July 1, the Government's actual deficit amounted to $1,207,000,000 or nearly twice the deficit of $614,000,000 in the corresponding period last year. While the Government's contribution to inflation was considerably larger than a year ago, it was still relatively small from the standpoint of the National income. It is thus apparent that the Government's financial operations this year have been a much smaller factor in the recently expansion than is generally supposed.

Only small clean-up lots of greasy shorn domestic wools were available at prices below last week's quotations, and only an occasional sale was being closed at asking prices. Boston wool houses were quite consistently refusing to grant further price concessions.

Foreign Markets

By the Associated Press.

London, Dec. 28.—The stock market reopened today with holiday influences still hampering price movements. Most transatlantics were marked down a shade. British funds were a trifle higher, while central European bonds were generally pushed back fractionally. Oils, coppers, rubbers and kaffirs held about steady. Industrials were neglected.

Paris.—Rentes shot up .80 to 4.30 francs in a generally steady bourse today. Bank of France, however, dipped 45 francs and international shares had an uneven tone. Suez Canal sagged 445 francs.

Liverpool.—Cotton ended 2 to 3 points higher as trade and professional support overbalanced pressure in sympathy with weakness of cotton at Alexandria. Wheat futures advanced to final gains of ¾ to 1¼ pence in response to cold American weather, renewed inquiry from India and fewer Canadian and Argentine offerings.

Trend Indicates Record Reduction In Traffic Deaths

Chicago, Dec. 28 (AP).—The National Safety Council tonight predicted traffic deaths in the United States this year would total 31,500 if the favorable trend of the first 11 months continued until January 1.

That would be a reduction of 8,000 from the all-time high of 39,500 recorded in 1937.

Should December fatalities equal those of last December, statisticians figured, the 1938 total would approximate 32,000.

That would be the lowest for any year since 1933 and the greatest decline for any one year in the Nation's history.

The November total was 3,110, a drop of 17 per cent from the same month last year. It was the thirteenth consecutive month of unbroken traffic improvement.

During the first 11 months of 1938 motor vehicle accidents cost 28,370 lives compared with 35,770 during the same period in 1937.

D. D. Fennell, president of the Council, attributed the downturn to "a general tightening of the entire safety program throughout the country."

British Airways Buys Two More Lockheeds

Burbank, Calif., Dec. 28.—A repeat order from British Airways for two more Lockheed 14 standard transport airplanes was announced today by Carl B. Squier, vice president in charge of sales of the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation. The two planes will cost approximately $220,000. One will be delivered in January and the other in March.

British Airways was the first transport company in England to buy equipment from the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation. Early in 1937 it purchased four of the ten-passenger Electra transports, and subsequently has added two more Electras and six Lockheed 14's, not including the two ordered yesterday.

Teachers Use Toys to Make Music Easier

Teachers of modern music, if not the composers, have some sweet notes for the scholar who hopes some day to succeed Paderewski, Heifet or Benny Goodman.

And they're yours for the asking at the national convention they are holding this week at the Mayflower.

For example, if the deadly beat of the metronome has about driven you crazy, forget it—the melody is the thing.

If you can't tell B flat from F sharp don't worry—there's a little invention that'll help you—an instrument called the saxette.

If you like to hear Toscanini's music, but can't follow a score, don't let the highbrows get you with their sneers—there are some new simplified scores out that'll teach you all in a jiffy.

Teach Music by Toys

There's no end of sugar to sweeten the bitter pill of practice. And the scores of Bach, Beethoven and Brahms will soon be as easy to read as the adventures of Alice in Wonderland.

Mrs. Maurine D. Burgess came to the convention with a set of "music toys." She has shaped music notes in the form of blocks, brilliantly colored. The keys on the piano come in blocks, also. You put your own keyboard together, and learn by doing, how the notes belong.

E. J. Fitchborn brought his saxtette all the way from Ohio to show the teachers how sight-reading can be made easy. The instrument is a small-size, reedless clarinet. It won't do all that Goodman's will, but it'll carry the tune of "Yankee Doodle" fine.

90 Per Cent Can't Sight-Read

And students who carry that tune can do more than most college people are able to negotiate.

"Why, do you know," said the inventor, "that less than 10 per cent of the high school graduates, who try to enter glee clubs and orchestras in college, can sight-read grade two music?" ("Yankee Doodle" is in that grade.)

Fitchborn says his saxtette is so easy to play that it will make fast music readers out of all who try it.

T. Robin MacLachlen, young co-author of a new piano course for beginners, said the time is long past when you can expect youngsters to sit down at a piano and practice for many hours at a time.

Uses Gradual Introduction

"There are too many distractions," he said. "Their time is divided up like ours, and, like us, they have to go at a faster pace than we did when children.

"So we try to improve the method, so that it doesn't take such a long time. And we interest them in music, by leading them into the work gradually."

To introduce his beginners to melody-making, Teacher MacLachlen composed tunes entitled "Let's Go" and "Forward March."

"I shouldn't say this with so many teachers around," said MacLachlen, "but the really good teacher nowadays is the one who'll teach his pupils to get along without a teacher."

Opera Scores Simplified

Nelson M. Jansky, president of the Music Education Exhibitors' Association, said few people are satisfied to listen; most want to play. So many publishers are bringing out simplified versions of the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, of such operas as "Faust," "Bohemian Girl," "Tannhauser" and "Hansel and Gretel."

Emil Hilb, of New York, who is interested in a new type of orchestral score, said there is today a great demand for copies of the piece of music being heard in concert or over the radio.

"But young pupils find the average orchestral score too complicated. So I have here an edition that adds at the bottom of each page a piano arrangement of the music. That can be easily followed. Gradually one learns to follow the orchestral score. He begins to beat time—to conduct an imaginary orchestra. He imagines he is a young Toscanini."

But as one bystander put it, "They haven't invented anything yet that will really take the place of practice, practice, practice."

Roosevelt Shows Bankhead and Rayburn Message

Speaker Bankhead and House Majority Leader Rayburn yesterday viewed a rough draft of the message the President will read to Congress next Wednesday and promptly forgot all about it.

On leaving the White House, Rayburn declined to "anticipate" the President's legislative recommendations. He said they had "talked about matters the President is going to speak about in a few days."

Bankhead added little.

"There is a pretty strong sentiment in the country for additional measures for national defense," the Speaker said.

Both Bankhead and Rayburn will return to the White House next Monday, on the eve of the session, for a general legislative conference.

Americans Chief Victims In Shanghai Holdup

Shanghai, Dec. 28 (AP).—Fifteen foreign men and women, mostly Americans, were robbed of money and jewels tonight in the biggest holdup in the Shanghai area in years.

Five Chinese, armed with pistols, placed an automobile across Columbia road, on the western outskirts of the International Settlement, halting traffic. Seven automobiles returning to the city from the American country club were stopped and their occupants robbed. The robbers escaped.

Christmas Toys, Decorations Cause 2 Fires

Four Families Routed, One Hurt in Warning Of Two-Alarm Blaze

Electrical Christmas decorations and toys were blamed yesterday for two fires in and near the District. A two-alarm blaze routed four families from a building at 1406 Eleventh street northwest and flames destroyed basement furnishings at 820 Greenwod avenue, Takoma Park, Md.

A short circuit was believed to have started the Eleventh street fire, which spread through four stories of the building before it was brought under control.

John Williamson, of 108 I street northwest, who saw flames from the street and ran into the burning structure to warn occupants, received treatment for minor lacerations at Emergency Hospital.

Many Flee House

Mrs. Georgia Byrd, colored, 26, trapped on the fourth floor, climbed from a window into an adjacent house. Her two children, Wanamaker, 5, and James, jr., 6, escaped by running down a fire escape.

Firemen rescued Mrs. Pearl Meredith from a third floor window. Mrs. Gladys Evans, colored, 28, and her son, Earl, 8; Mrs. Elizabeth Clinton, colored, 26, and her three children, Landora, 6; Joan, 4, and Grant, 3, all fled from the house.

The Takoma Park blaze started in the recreation room of a two-story apartment house apparently from defective wiring on electric toys.

Milkman Warns of Fire

Mrs. Norman Drake, occupant of a first floor apartment, partially overcome by smoke, was revived by Takoma Park firemen.

Mrs. Robert Gaylor, another resident of the building, was notified of the blaze by a milkman, B. Pierce McCreary, of 1002 M street northwest, and hurried to safety with her two children, Joan, 2, and Nancy, 1.

If Germany fights Russia, whom would U. S. voters want to win?

Many military observers believe that a war between Germany and Russia is inevitable. While Americans reject the two different ideologies of Germany and Russia, if these two countries come to war, U. S. sentiment would nevertheless be strong for one of these nations. If you had read the Gallup Poll in The Post on Sunday, December 11th, you would know which one.

You cannot keep informed on shifting trends of American opinion if you do not read the Gallup Polls which appear in The Post every Wednesday, Friday and Sunday. Be sure to read the two Gallup Polls which appear regularly in The Sunday Post. You miss half the polls if you don't get The Sunday Post.

Psychiatrist Calls Naziism Disorder Of Childhood

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—A child grows from a "polytheistic savage" at the age of five to "a kind of Nazi" at 10 years old, Dr. Foster Kennedy, president, today told the nineteenth annual meeting of the Association for Research in Nervous and Mental Diseases.

Interpreting Freud, Dr. Kennedy said the development of the individual from embryo to adult was a miniature replica of the evolution of mankind.

"When the child reaches the age of 10," he said, "he is a kind of Nazi, naturally characterized by restricted imagination, hyperthrophied tribal emotions, and truculence towards other tribes.

"He is regimented in ritual, totally intolerant, and—to offset his annoying sense of inadequacy—brutally contemptuous towards all those weaker than himself."

RESULT—USED CAR PRICES CAME DOWN!

Yes, there's a good reason why used car prices are down. November was one of the best automobile months in nearly two years. New car sales mean used car bargains. Dealers are loaded with trade-ins—late models that they want to unload quickly and so prices have been reduced sharply. Turn to the classified section of today's Post.

Miss Frazier's Debut Cost Set At $23,350

N. Y. Paper Puts Ritz Ballroom Suite at $7,500 Breakage at $1,000

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—The estimated cost of formally launching 17-year-old Brenda Diana Duff Frazier into Manhattan society was disputed today, with guesses ranging generally between $20,000 and $25,000. Official reports were indignantly lacking.

The hotel said the champagne cost nearly $4,000, and the Scotch, rye and soft drinks approximately $500.

The World-Telegram said that here's approximately the bill Brenda's executors may have studied today after the party dispersed at 4 a. m.:

Breakage	1,000
Champagne	1,500
Scotch, rye, soft drinks	1,000
Music (Emil Coleman's 25-piece orchestra, Alexander Haas' 6-piece Hungarian Gypsy Band)	2,500
Private detectives (they have to hire dress suits)	350
Decorations, including 50 dozen calla lilies at $1 apiece, several hundred poinsettias at $1 a flower, and 1,000 or more chrysanthemums at $6 a dozen	4,500
Tips (100 waiters, 20 captains, 5 assistants to the banquet master)	1,000
Gowns and accessories for deb and mother (not including jewels)	1,000
Fee for pedigreed stag list of 300	500
Social secretary	2,500
Total	$23,350

Last January a court order granted Brenda $36,000 for her support in the year ending November 30. The debut bill will be paid out of her current allowance.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

The contract bridge players of the Whist Club are leading the members of the Manhattan and Union Clubs by the scant margin of a half match in the annual interclub team-of-12 tournament conducted by the outstanding men's clubs of the city. The Manhattan Club players won the title last year and are receiving particularly strong competition as a consequence

The six other clubs competing in the event are by no means out of the running, for only half of the matches have been played The new year will see the completion of the contest, and the first match on the schedule, to be played on January 17 among the Whist, Manhattan and Union Clubs, the three leaders, will provide plenty of excitement for the spectators.

Team.	Won.	Lost.
Whist	3½	½
Manhattan	3	1
Union	3	1
Knickerbocker	2	2
Racquet and Tennis	2	2
Union League	2	2
University	1½	2½

Luck vs. Skill

Mary Zeta Jacoby, wife of Oswald Jacoby and one of the best backgammon players in the country, once said, "backgammon is 90 per cent luck and 10 per cent skill." This may be true of backgammon, but contract bridge, played with the precision of the national champions, is 10 per cent luck and 90 per cent skill.

Take today's hand as an illustration. Using the Lightner slam double, which asks for the lead of an "off" suit, and the lead directing signal which indicates to partner which of two suits to return, Mrs. A. M. Sobel and her partner, Philip Abramsohn, defeated a slam contract two tricks for a top on the board.

The use of such signals, which provide additonal eyes and ears for the defense, is merely routine to the experts, who consider each card as if it were an ace. To less careful players it is an event.

(1) East's bid of three spades indicated no losers in the suit and invited a slam.

(2) North's double requested partner to refrain from making the normal opening lead of diamonds.

South obediently selected a club, foregoing the temptation to lay down the ace of diamonds, leading the three to tell partner that his entry was in the lower of the remaining suits, spades and diamonds. North trumped the first trick and led back a diamond, which Abramsohn won with the ace, playing another club, which was trumped, and the contract was defeated two tricks.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

THE SMILING girl in the photo is Miss Louise M. Carr, of the Bureau of Reclamation, Interior Department, one of the 11th-hour candidates for the title of "Miss Civil Service." And the last-minute reminder now is that the lists close on Saturday; that The Post cup to the ideal feminine employe will be awarded the night of January 16; that the award is a high-light in the observance of National Civil Service Week. The lists of candidates for the title are representative of the best the Federal field here has to offer.

MISS CARR

GOINGS-ON: It's tough going, trying to find anyone in the Government these days; those who aren't getting 10 days off for four charged against leave are calling in saying they have terrible colds. And this column would be the last on earth to say that the colds epidemic has anything to do with the Christmas cheer period . . . And over in Commerce, New-Born Secretary Hopkins says he will do some looking around to get the feel of matters before he holds a press conference—which more than likely will be held next Wednesday afternoon. And meanwhile, the employes are all poised to spring some rumors about personnel changes, which is inevitable when a new boss comes in . . . And over in the Biological Survey 'tis said that the sale of surplus buffaloes this year was light because many of them were sold last year. Since the fall, 20 buffaloes were sold in Nebraska and 8 in North Dakota. But they still might have a couple of left-overs if you want one and can prove you run a reputable zoo or want a buffalo for breeding purposes.

ADD diversity of intentions or scrambled eggs a la Federal: Out come loud reports that pretty soon the axe will fall and only first-rate New Dealers of the finest political voice will hold the top jobs everywhere. This school of thoughts holds that the top jobs will be made safe with high-fighters who will make the New Deal safer in the intrenchments. Out comes another report that Senator Byrd is crouching in wait with an alternative reorganization bill that would take into account just such a maneuver as the placing of high-voiced and dyed-in-the-wool politicians in these top places. He wants economy in the top flights and the lower flights, too. He wants efficiency; doesn't care much about the political outlooks. Out come the groans of old-line Federal employes that they are already being squeezed because New Deal top flighters are giving all the promotions and the plums to recent-comers with New Deal leanings. They claim they will make themselves heard when reorganization comes up again. Out come reports that the Republicans, in greater feather than ever before, will be ferociously militant and against anything that doesn't conform with ancient principles and hearth-side practices. In the middle of this omelette are the employes who say they foresee the possibilities of a good baking.

NELSON LOOMIS, chief of the new U. S. Travel Bureau, is back from a brief holiday period in Albany, N. Y., where he was joined by his brother who has just returned from Spain, where he flew for one side or another in the war. Loomis' brother's comment: "I won't go back; I had enough."

A WHOPPER of a job is in the offing in the Agriculture Department's museum section. In preparation for the Seventh World's Poultry Congress, to be held in Cleveland next July, the section must arrange a vast exhibit showing everything the Federal Government is doing toward furthering the chicken business. And Government activity in this connection is more extensive than one might expect. But the exhibit won't emphasize the works of any particular department. It will give a glimpse—and a tremendous one—of the work of all. The technical work is to be done in the mechanical shop at the foot of Thirteenth street, in the various warehouses, in the big department's building. . . . Shannon Allen, acting director of Interior's broadcasting apparatuses, congratulated himself that his current audition is being held in Washington where there is much professional or potential radio talent. His station will be able to use a small stock company for future programs and Allen has been swamped with aspirants, who sing, or yodel, or who have perfect speaking voices or play the trombone, all the gamut of them. His comment: "Many of them are pretty good."

Bob Burns Says—

The Duke football team is a practicin' out here for the Rose Bowl game. It's rumored, since Duke ain't let any team score on 'em this season, that Southern California up and slipped one of the royal family into their line-up. They intend to put one over on Duke by goin' over the goal line with a Count.

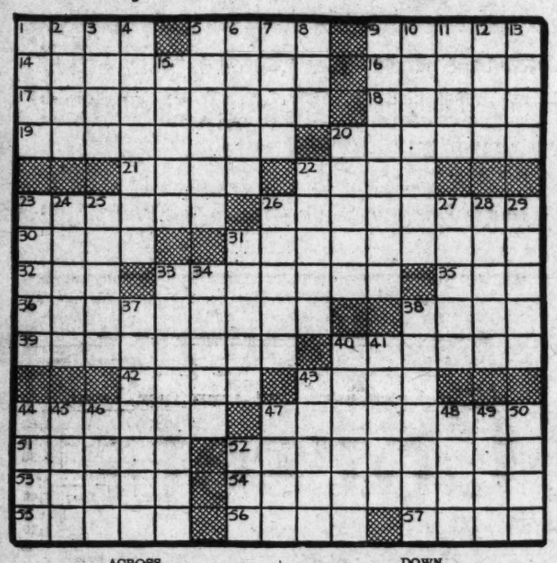

It's gettin' now so football's a year-around sport and I've been a wonderin' why it's so gosh-durn popular. The idea's jes' hit me that most people are kickin' about somethin' all the time and they probably go to the football game to get it out'n their hides by rootin' for the players to kick the stuffin's outa each other. That's a lot easier and less painful than gettin' kicked in the teeth themselves!

Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Some Other Day

Reddy Fox is a light sleeper. This is true of most of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows save those who go into that deep winter sleep called hibernation. People who are easily awakened are sometimes said to "sleep with one eye open." Reddy desn't sleep with one eye open, but he does sleep with both ears open. When he sleeps those ears are his two little back sentries on guard. He can trust them, and does.

So Reddy, curled up at the foot of a tree for a nap, was instantly awake at the sound of Sammy Jay's voice screaming "Thief! thief! thief!" In a flash he was on his feet and as alert as if he had not been asleep. Ready never has to rub the sleep-winks from his eyes.

For a moment he stood listening. Then as he turned and hurried away he grinned. "Sammy is a good person to have around sometimes," muttered he. "He has spoiled many a hunt for me by telling just where I was, but he has done the same thing to others who were hunting me. I don't know whether he is screaming now to warn me or to annoy someone else, but it doesn't matter. If someone is following my trail, I'll soon find out."

Presently he slowed down. Partly hidden by a spruce tree was a big stump. He jumped up on this the better to watch his back trial. There he sat for some time. Not once did he take his eyes from that trail. Now, Sammy Jay was screaming again and Sammy was right in the very tree beneath which Reddy had been napping. This settled the matter for Reddy. He was being followed and Sammy could see whoever was following. Reddy jumped down from the stump. Now that he knew that he was being followed he wanted to know what it was that was on his trail. There was no barking by a Dog, and this was something to be thankful for. He did not feel like a long run today.

Reddy stood still just long enough to test the wind and make sure from which quarter it was blowing. There was very little, but that little was enough. As long as the air was moving at all it would pick up and carry any scents it might encounter. It wasn't coming from the direction of his back trail, so it brought him no information as to who was following him. He began to trot swiftly now, swinging in a half circle until the wind was across his back trial.

He didn't have long to wait. He heard a stick snap. Then a Merry Little Breeze brushed his nose with a scent that coused him to make a face. It was the man smell. It was faint, but unmistakable. It was enough. It was all he wanted to know. It might come from a hunter with a terrible gun. He didn't wait to find out. He turned and was off. He didn't hurry, just trotted along as a comfortable pace. He swung in a big circle so as to cross his back trail far back of the point from which that scent had come. He saw the footprints in the snow following his own. Once across that trail he swung straight into the wind and settled down to a long run. With the wind in his face he would be warned in ample time of an enemy ahead. He was no longer hunting, but as luck would have it a Rabbit appeared just ahead of him. Reddy had him in two jumps. He didn't stop, but kept on until he was certain he was safe for the time being. Then he circled back to a spot from which he could watch his back trail and there ate the dinner he so needed.

Tommy, Sue and Sammy came to the tree beneath which Reddy had taken his nap. Tommy saw the round place melted in the snow by Reddy's body. He pointed it out to the others. "Reddy was taking a nap here when Sammy Jay screamed and wakened him. We won't see Reddy today. It will have to be some other day," said he.

You see, Tommy knows Reddy and his ways. Sue and Sammy wanted to keep on, but when Tommy showed them where Reddy had sat on the stump watching his back trail they agreed that probably Tommy was right, and that if they would see Reddy it would have to be some other day.

Bethlehem Steel to Fight Ban on Union

Grace Calls NLRB Report 'Contrary To Labor Act'

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 28.—The Bethlehem Steel Co. announced today it would contest recommendations of a trial examiner for the National Labor Relations Board that the company abolish its 20-year-old employe representation plan.

E. G. Grace, Bethlehem president, said in a statement that the examiner's findings, made public in Washington yesterday, "are not supported by the facts and are contrary to the intent of the labor act."

Disestablishment of the existing bargaining organizations of Bethlehem employes, Grace said, "should be for our employes to decide. They have continuously shown their desire that the organizations be continued."

Grace Accuses C. I. O.

Grace charged that the 10-month inquiry into Bethlehem's labor policies was "instigated by the C. I. O." as "the latest phase of its attempt to force upon our employes an organization which they do not desire."

In his report to the Labor Board, Frank Bloom, the trial examiner, held that the steel company had engaged in unfair labor practices by "dominating and interfering" with the formation and administration of the plan in Bethlehem's nine plants and by supplying financial and other support for its maintenance.

Thus, Bloom reported, employes were denied their right, under the Wagner act, to choose their own representatives.

Grace said that Bethlehem for more than 20 years had recognized that "the right of our employes to form their own organizations for collective bargaining and to select representatives of their own choosing is fundamental. Only recently has it been declared by the national labor relations act."

Predicts Chaos

Grace said: "The report makes no constructive suggestion as to how to avoid the chaos that would follow the disestablishment . . . nor does it suggest that the wishes of the employes be ascertained. Indeed, C. I. O. does not want to see the issue put to a vote until the employes' collective bargaining agencies are thrown into discard; in other words, C. I. O. wants to compete only with itself."

The Bethlehem president said he could not refrain from expressing his "profound concern for industry in this country if the examiner's recommendation to scrap such relations be approved by the board."

The plan, Grace said, was worked out in 1918 with employes in co-operation with the War Labor Board, of which the late former President Taft was chairman. He said financial support by the company ceased when the labor act was declared constitutional.

To Back Amendments

By the Associated Press.

Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, said yesterday he would support any reasonable amendment to the Wagner labor act to provide for an "impartial tribunal" in settling business-labor disputes.

"The labor relations act, as it was drafted, was definitely a prolabor act," Borah said. "There was much argument that labor's rights needed protection, that capital could take care of itself.

"I am not saying that that was not true to a large extent. But labor has become stronger and more able to take care of its rights, and the law now should be more impartial."

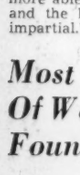

Most Injuries Of Women on Jobs Found Needless

After a study of industrial accidents to women over a three-year period, the women's bureau of the Department of Labor concluded yesterday that most women hurt on their jobs are injured needlessly and that steps to enforce first-aid for every injury, no matter how slight, should be taken.

Citing fatal accidents from infection of a thumb punctured by a fork, from an explosion of a coffee urn and from an infected knee caused by a scratch in cleaning a stairway, a bulletin prepared by Margaret T. Mettert, of the bureau's research division, stated that falls are a major cause of women's injuries.

England Calls; Told Minneapolis Is Warmer, Safe

Minneapolis, Dec. 28 (AP).—When Police Chief Frank Forestal, of this city, picked up his telephone this afternoon and was told to "hold the line for London," he thought someone was having a bit of fun with him.

A moment later a reporter for the London Daily Sketch was on the line, asking if it was true that Minnesota was having its worst cold wave in history, that people were freezing to death on streets and highways and if so, what the police were doing about it.

Forestal assured the reporter the sun was shining, the temperature was rising, and that no one was freezing to death. The mercury stood at 21 degrees above zero this afternoon after a minimum last night of 9 below.

Chinese Troops In Shansi Flee, Japanese Say

Governor's Army Being Driven Into Trap, They Report

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai (Thursday), Dec. 29.—Four Japanese columns assigned to mop up southwestern Shansi Province were reported today to be routing an army under Gen. Yen Hsi-shan, considered by Chinese as governor of the province.

The mop-up forces were driving westward from the Shansi railroad and the Fen River with Yen's reorganized army between them and the Yellow River, where it forms the boundary between Shansi and Shensi Provinces.

Meanwhile, a fifth Japanese column was said to have skirted Chinese defenses and to have occupied the Chienchianchen Ferry across the Yellow River, cutting the Chinese line of retreat.

Nazis Say Japan, Reich, Italy Will Dominate Asia

Special Cable to The Post.

Berlin, Dec. 28.—A complete reversal of foreign trade influence in the Far East, with Japan, Germany and Italy playing the dominant roles, while the democracies are excluded from any participation, is forecast today by the Nazi newspapers.

In an editorial written from Hankow, the Voelkischer Beobachter declares that "in Tokyo there is already talk of Germany's and Italy's share in development of the Japanese-controlled iron ore mines."

The Westfaelischer Landeszeitung states that "Japan once and for all will do away with participation and influence" of the democracies in the Far East.
